

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE statutes collected in this Supplement connect, without break or duplication, with those contained in the 1909 Supplement to FEDERAL STATUTES, ANNOTATED. They are the general, permanent, and public acts passed at the second and third sessions of the Sixtyfirst Congress, and all such acts passed at the first and second sessions of the Sixty-second Congress down to January 1, 1912. As in the 1909 Supplement, these acts are classified according to the scheme of titles in the main work, and in using this Supplement the reader should examine the corresponding title to locate the late, amendatory, or repealing legislation upon the topic under consideration. cross-references are unusually abundant, and pains have been taken to prepare an index which is both exhaustive and usable. The notes of cases decided under these recent acts are necessarily few. various sections of the new Iudicial Code will be found full historical and explanatory notes which are intended to lighten the practitioner's labor in working under this important statute. The usual tables of titles, Revised Statutes sections, and statutes chronologically arranged are given at the beginning of the first volume.

The last half of the first volume and all of volume two are devoted to the supplemental notes. These connect with the notes in the original work and annotate the acts found in the 1909 Supplement. The aim has been to present all the decisions construing any federal statute which have appeared since the editorial work on the earlier volumes of the set was completed. The arrangement is by title, volume, page, and section as the statutes are found in preceding volumes, and the investigator has merely to turn to the corresponding title, volume, page, and section as shown by the captions in this Supplement to find the late cases. The omission of a title or of page and section captions implies that no new cases have been found.

The fresh notes on the Bankruptcy Act are specially voluminous. For this reason, and because the amendments to the original act are numerous, an exception has been made as to this title, and the entire act as amended is given in connection with the supplemental notes. Special mention should be made of the excellent work by the editor of this title, Mr. Edward M. Thornton.

"Every statement herein required shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the candidate, taken before an officer authorized to administer oaths under the laws of the State in which he is a candidate, and shall be sworn to or affirmed by the candidate in the district in which he is a candidate for Representative, or the State in which he is a candidate for Senator in the Congress of the United States: Provided, That if at the time of such primary election, nominating convention, general or special election, or election by the State legislature said candidate shall be in attendance upon either House of Congress as a Member thereof, he may at his election verify such statements before any officer authorized to administer oaths in the District of Columbia: Provided further, That the depositing of any such statement in a regular post office, directed to the Clerk of the House of Representatives or to the Secretary of the Senate, as the case may be, duly stamped and registered within the time required herein shall be deemed a sufficient filing of any such statement under any of the provisions of this Act.

An Act To amend an Act entitled "An Act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States," approved February twentieth, nineteen hundred and seven.

[Sec. 1.] [Classes of aliens excluded.] That section two of the Act entitled "An Act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States," approved February twentieth, nineteen hundred and seven, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 2. That the following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United States: All idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons, and persons who have been insane within five years previous; persons who have had two or more attacks of insanity at any time previously; paupers; persons likely to become a public charge; professional beggars; persons afflicted with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; persons not comprehended within any of the foregoing excluded classes who are found to be and are certified by the examining surgeon as being mentally or physically defective, such mental or physical defect being of a nature which may affect the ability of such alien to earn a living; persons who have been convicted of or admit having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude; polygamists, or persons who admit their belief in the practice of polygamy; anarchists, or persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States, or of all government, or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials; prostitutes, or women or girls coming into the United States for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons who are supported by or receive in whole or in part the proceeds of prostitution; persons who procure or attempt to bring in prostitutes or women or girls for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons hereinafter called contract laborers who have been induced or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment or in consequence of agreements, oral, written or printed, expressed or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; those who have been, within one year from the date of application for admission to the United States, deported as having been induced or solicited to migrate as above described; any person whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who is assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively and satisfactorily shown that such person does not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes and that said ticket or passage was not paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government, either directly or indirectly; all children under sixteen years of age unaccompanied by one or both of their parents, at the discretion of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor or under such regulations as he may from time to time prescribe: Provided, That nothing in this Act shall exclude, if otherwise admissible, persons convicted of an offense purely political, not involving moral turpitude: Provided, further, That the provisions of this section relating to the payments for tickets or passage by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government shall not apply to the tickets or passage of aliens in immediate and continuous transit through the United States to foreign contiguous territory: And provided further, That skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed can not be found in this country: And provided further. That the provisions of this law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, ministers of any religious denomination, professors for colleges or seminaries, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession, or persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants." [36 Stat. L. 263.]

This section as originally enacted is given in the 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 162.

SEC. 2. [Prostitutes, etc.] That section three of an Act entitled "An Act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States," approved February twentieth, nineteen hundred and seven, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 3. That the importation into the United States of any alien for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose is hereby forbidden; and whoever shall, directly or indirectly, import, or attempt to import, into the United States, any alien for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose, or whoever shall hold or attempt to hold any alien for any such purpose in pursuance of such illegal importation, or whoever shall keep, maintain, control, support, employ, or harbor in any house or other place, for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose, in pursuance of such illegal importation, any alien, shall, in every such case be deemed guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof be imprisoned not more than ten years and pay a fine of not more than five thousand dollars. Jurisdiction for the trial and punishment of the felonies hereinbefore set forth shall be in any district to or into which said alien is brought in pursuance of said importation by the person or persons accused, or in any district in which a violation of any of the foregoing provisions of this section occur. Any alien who shall be found an inmate of or connected with the management of a house of prostitution or practicing prostitution after such alien shall have entered the United States, or who shall receive, share in, or derive benefit from any part of the earnings of any prostitute; or who is employed by, in, or in connection with any house of prostitution or music or dance hall or other place of amusement or resort habitually frequented by prostitutes, or where prostitutes gather, or who in any way assists, protects, or promises to protect from arrest any prostitute, shall be deemed to be unlawfully within the United States and shall be deported in the manner provided by sections twenty and twenty-one of this Act. That any alien who shall, after he has been debarred or deported in pursuance of the provisions of this section, attempt thereafter to return to or to enter the United States shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned for not more than two years. Any alien who shall be convicted under any of the provisions of this section shall, at the expiration of his sentence, be taken into custody and returned to the country whence he came, or of which he is a subject or a citizen in the manner provided in sections twenty and twenty-one of this Act. In all prosecutions under this section the testimony of a husband or wife shall be admissible and competent evidence against a wife or husband.["] [36 Stat. L. 264.]

This section as originally enacted is given in 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 163.

20, 1907, above mentioned, see 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 170.

Constitutionality of statute. - The provision in this section for the deportation of any alien woman who after her immigration into the United States shall be found practicing prostitution therein, regardless of the length of time which has elapsed since her entry, is within the constitutional power of Congress, and valid. U. S. v. Weis, (1910) 181 Fed. 860; U. S. v. Williams, (1910) 183 Fed. 904.

Time for deportation unlimited. — Under the provision in t...is amended section that "any alien who shall be found an inmate of or connected with the management of a house of prostitution or practicing prostitution after such alien shall have entered the United States . . . shall be deemed to be unlawfully within the United States and shall be deported in the manner provided by sections 20 and 21 of this Act," there is no limitation of the time within which an alien prostitute may be deported to three years from the time of her entry as was the case under the section before amendment, it being one of the purposes of the amendment to abolish such limitation as to the class of aliens referred to therein; and the amended section, while not retrospective, applies to any alien woman found so conducting herself as to come withiound so conducting nerself as to come within its provisions since its enactment, regardless of her previous conduct or of the time of her entry into the country. U. S. v. Weis, (1910) 181 Fed. 860; U. S. v. Prentis, (1910) 182 Fed. 894; U. S. v. North German Lloyd Steamship Co., (1911) 185 Fed. 158.

Three years' previous residence no bar.—
Under this amended section an alien prosti-

Under this amended section an alien prostitute is subject to deportation though she has been in the country more than three years at the time of her arrest and before the passage of the statute. U.S. v. Williams, (1910) 183 Fed. 904; Sire v. Berkshire, (1911) 185 Fed. 967; Ladaux v. Berkshire, (1911) 185

Fed. 971.

Venue. — Where an indictment charged an illegal importation into the United States of an alien woman for an immoral purpose, and showed that the importation was complete at the port where the alien was landed, the venue was in that district, and could not be laid in another district to which accused and the alien thereafter went. U. S. v. Krsteff, (1911) 185 Fed. 201.

In U. S. v. Lavoie, (1910) 182 Fed. 943, it appeared that the accused imported a female alien, who was a prostitute, from British Columbia into the northern district of California in March, 1908, visited her in San Francisco occasionally, where she continued to practice prostitution, but after the spring of 1908 their relations were interrupted until 1910, when defendant again met her in Seattle, in the western district of Washington, and renewed illicit relations with her. It was held that such relations had in Washington were not "pursuant to the illegal importation," there being no continuity of association, and hence defendant could not be convicted of keeping or maintaining in the Washington district, but was only guilty of importing, for which he was only subject to prosecution in the northern district of California.

Immoral purpose. — An indictment for keeping, maintaining, controlling, supporting, or harboring an alien female pursuant to an illegal importation for an immoral purpose, alleging that such purpose was unlawful cohabitation and adultery, sufficiently charged that the purpose was immoral. U. S. c. Krsteff, (1911) 185 Fed. 201.

Mere unlawful cohabitation within a district with an alien woman imported for immoral purposes is not in violation of this section prohibiting the holding or attempt to hold any alien woman or girl for immoral purposes in pursuance of an illegal importation; Congress having no jurisdiction to control the morals of alien women within the United States unless in some manner connected with unlawful importation. U. S. v. Krsteff, (1911) 185 Fed. 201.

Intimidation by inspectors.—In U. S. v. Williams, (1911) 185 Fed. 598, the evidence was held to show that aliens detained pending proceedings for their deportation were, by the influence of the inspector who was hearing their case, persuaded and intimidated from exercising their right to be represented by counsel, under the rules prescribed by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor providing that in such cases the alien arrested shall be given a hearing before the Commissioner of Immigration or an immigration inspector, and that in such stage of the hearing as the commissioner or inspector shall deem proper the alien shall be apprised that he may thereafter be represented by counsel, who, if selected, shall be permitted to be present during the further conduct of the hearing, so that the proceedings were fatally irregular, and the order of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor deporting such aliens based upon the proceedings was invalid, and the detention of the aliens thereunder illegal.

Fair trial.—Where certain alien prostitutes on being arrested in deportation proceedings were each granted a hearing on the question of deportation, and there voluntarily testified, and each admitted facts essential to authorize an order of deportation, an objection that they were not accorded a fair trial was untenable. U. S. v. Williams, (1910) 183 U. S. 904.

Amendment not retroactive as to carrier. — This section abrogates the three-year time limit for deportation of aliens at the expense of the carrier by which they unlawfully entered as provided by the Act of March 3, 1903, ch. 1012, sections 19 and 21, 32 Stat. L. 1218, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 108, but does not operate retroactively and hence does not apply to an alien prostitute where the three-year limit expired before the passage of this amendment. U. S. v. North German Lloyd Steamship Co., (1911) 186 Fed. 672.

[Sec. 1.] [Immigration service — credit of reimbursements.] * * * That from and after July first, nineteen hundred and eleven, all moneys paid into the Treasury to reimburse the Immigration Service for expenses of detained aliens paid from the appropriation for expenses of regulating immigration, shall be credited to the appropriation for the expenses of regulating immigration for the fiscal year in which the expenses were incurred. An Act To provide for determining the heirs of deceased Indians, for the disposition and sale of allotments of deceased Indians, for the leasing of allotments, and for other purposes.

[Sec. 1.] [Indian trust allotments — disposal to heirs of intestate Indians — discretion of Secretary of Interior — partition — rules for sales, etc. issue of patents in fee — distribution of proceeds — competency certificates deposit of Indian funds in banks - indemnity bond.] That when any Indian to whom an allotment of land has been made, or may hereafter be made, dies before the expiration of the trust period and before the issuance of a fee simple patent, without having made a will disposing of said allotment as hereinafter provided, the Secretary of the Interior, upon notice and hearing, under such rules as he may prescribe, shall ascertain the legal heirs of such decedent, and his decision thereon shall be final and conclusive. If the Secretary of the Interior decides the heir or heirs of such decedent competent to manage their own affairs, he shall issue to such heir or heirs a patent in fee for the allotment of such decedent; if he shall decide one or more of the heirs to be incompetent he may, in his discretion, cause such lands to be sold: Provided, That if the Secretary of the Interior shall find that the lands of the decedent are capable of partition to the advantage of the heirs, he may cause the shares of such as are competent, upon their petition, to be set aside and patents in fee to be issued to them therefor. All sales of lands allotted to Indians authorized by this or any other Act shall be made under such rules and regulations and upon such terms as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, and he shall require a deposit of ten per centum of the purchase price at the time of the sale. Should the purchaser fail to comply with the terms of sale prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, the amount so paid shall be forfeited; in case the balance of the purchase price is to be paid in deferred payments, a further amount, not exceeding fifteen per centum of the purchase price may be so forfeited for failure to comply with the terms of the sale. All forfeitures shall inure to the benefit of the heirs. Such bonds shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. [36 Stat. L.

SEC. 2. [Disposal of trust allotments by will.] That any Indian of the age of twenty-one years, or over, to whom an allotment of land has been or may hereafter be made, shall have the right, prior to the expiration of the trust period and before the issue of a fee simple patent, to dispose of such allotment by will, in accordance with rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, however, That no will so executed shall be valid or have any force or effect unless and until it shall have been approved by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the Secretary of the Interior: Provided further, That sections one and two of this Act shall not apply to the State of Oklahoma. [36 Stat. L. 856.]

Application of statute. — In Bond v. U. S., (1910) 181 Fed. 613, it was held that the provision of this section that when any Indian to whom an allotment has been made, or may bereafter be made, dies before the expiration of the trust period, and before issuance of a patent, without having disposed of the allotment by will, the Secretary of the Interior shall ascertain the legal heirs of the decedent and his decision shall be final and conclusive, applies to any allottee who dies before the expiration of the trust period, whether the allotment has been made at the time of the passage of the act or is made in the future, and whether the death occurs before or after the passage of the act.

Repeal of earlier acts. — The provision of this section that if an Indian allottee dies before the expiration of the trust period and the issuance of a patent without having disposed of his allotment by will, the Secretary of the Interior shall ascertain the legal heirs of such decedent, and his decision shall be final and conclusive, operated to repeal Act Cong. Feb. 6, 1901, ch. 217, 31 Stat. L. 760, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 503, conferring on Circuit Courts of the United States jurisdiction over matters growing out of the execution of the Allotment Act, and deprived the courts of jurisdiction to determine such heirship, and since the Act of 1910 contained no saving clause, the authority of the courts under the repealed Act of 1901 immediately ceased in so far as pending causes were concerned. Bond v. U. S., (1910) 181 Fed. 613.

SEC. 3. [Surrender of trust allotments to children—conditions.] That in any case where an Indian has an allotment of land, or any right, title, or interest in such an allotment, the Secretary of the Interior, in his discretion, may permit such Indian to surrender such allotment, or any right, title, or interest therein, by such formal relinquishment as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, for the benefit of any of his or her children to whom no allotment of land shall have been made; and thereupon the Secretary of the Interior shall cause the estate so relinquished to be allotted to such child or children subject to all conditions which attached to it before such relinquishment. [36 Stat. L. 856.]

- Sec. 4. [Leases of trust allotments.] That any Indian allotment held under a trust patent may be leased by the allottee for a period not to exceed five years, subject to and in conformity with such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, and the proceeds of any such lease shall be paid to the allottee or his heirs, or expended for his or their benefit, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior. [36 Stat. L. 856.]
- SEC. 5. [Inducing conveyances by Indians of trust interests unlawful—punishment for.] That it shall be unlawful for any person to induce any Indian to execute any contract, deed, mortgage, or other instrument purporting to convey any land or any interest therein held by the United States in trust for such Indian, or to offer any such contract, deed, mortgage, or other instrument for record in the office of any recorder of deeds. Any person violating this provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars for the first offense, and if convicted for a second offense may be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any lease or other contract authorized by law to be made. [36 Stat. L. 857.]
- SEC. 6. [Timber depredations punishment.] That section fifty of the Act entitled "An Act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March fourth, nineteen hundred and nine (Thirty-fifth United States Statutes at Large, page one thousand and ninety-eight), is hereby amended so as to read:
- "SEC. 50. If such common carrier within the time specified shall make reparation for the injury alleged to have been done, the common carrier shall be relieved of liability to the complainant only for the particular violation of law thus complained of. If such carrier or carriers shall not satisfy the complaint within the time specified, or there shall appear to be any reasonable ground for investigating said complaint, it shall be the duty of the commission to investigate the matters complained of in such manner and by such means as it shall deem proper.

"Said commission shall, in like manner and with the same authority and powers, investigate any complaint forwarded by the railroad commissioner or railroad commission of any State or Territory at the request of such commissioner or commission, and the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have full authority and power at any time to institute an inquiry, on its own motion, in any case and as to any matter or thing concerning which a complaint is authorized to be made, to or before said commission by any provision of this Act, or concerning which any question may arise under any of the provisions of this Act, or relating to the enforcement of any of the provisions of this Act. And the said commission shall have the same powers and authority to proceed with any inquiry instituted on its own motion as though it had been appealed to by complaint or petition under any of the provisions of this Act, including the power to make and enforce any order or orders in the case, or relating to the matter or thing concerning which the inquiry is had excepting orders for the payment of money. No complaint shall at any time be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant." [36 Stat. L. 550.]

For sec. 13 of the Act of Feb. 4, 1887, see 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 842.

SEC. 12. [Section 15 of Interstate Commerce Act amended.] That section fifteen of said Act to regulate commerce, as heretofore amended, is hereby now amended so as to read as follows:

[Violations — commission to determine if charges, classifications, etc., are unjust, discriminatory, etc. — just and reasonable rates to be observed — orders to carriers — taking effect of orders — continuance — apportionment of joint rates, etc., by commission on failure of agreement by carriers.] "Sec. 15. That whenever, after full hearing upon a complaint made as provided in section thirteen of this Act, or after full hearing under an order for investigation and hearing made by the commission on its own initiative (either in extension of any pending complaint or without any complaint whatever), the commission shall be of opinion that any individual or joint rates or charges whatsoever demanded, charged, or collected by any common carrier or carriers subject to the provisions of this Act for the transportation of persons or property or for the transmission of messages by telegraph or telephone as defined in the first section of this Act, or that any individual or joint classifications, regulations. or practices whatsoever of such carrier or carriers subject to the provisions of this Act are unjust or unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential or prejudicial or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of this Act, the commission is hereby authorized and empowered to determine and prescribe what will be the just and reasonable individual or joint rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the maximum to be charged, and what individual or joint classification, regulation, or practice is just, fair, and reasonable, to be thereafter followed, and to make an order that the carrier or carriers shall cease and desist from such violation to the extent to which the commission finds the same to exist, and shall not thereafter publish, demand, or collect any rate or charge for such transportation or transmission in excess of the maximum rate or charge so prescribed, and shall adopt the classification and shall conform to and observe the regulation or practice so prescribed. All orders of the commission, except orders for the payment of money, shall take effect within such reasonable time, not less than thirty days, and shall continue in force for such period of time, not exceeding two years, as shall be prescribed in the order of the commission, unless the same shall be suspended or modified or set aside by the commission, or be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction. Whenever the carrier or carriers, in obedience to such order of the commission or otherwise, in respect to joint rates, fares, or charges, shall fail to agree among themselves upon the apportionment or division thereof the commission may, after hearing, make a supplemental order prescribing the just and reasonable proportion of such joint rate to be received by each carrier party thereto, which order shall take effect as a part of the original order. [36 Stat. L. 551.]

[New rates, classifications, etc. — commission to determine propriety of suspension until decision — final determination — extension of suspension hearings on rates increased since January 1, 1910.] "Whenever there shall be filed with the commission any schedule stating a new individual or joint rate, fare, or charge, or any new individual or joint classification, or any new individual or joint regulation or practice affecting any rate, fare, or charge, the commission shall have, and it is hereby given, authority, either upon complaint or upon its own initiative without complaint, at once, and if it so orders, without answer or other formal pleading by the interested carrier or carriers, but upon reasonable notice, to enter upon a hearing concerning the propriety of such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice; and pending such hearing and the decision thereon the commission upon filing with such schedule and delivering to the carrier or carriers affected thereby a statement in writing of its reasons for such suspension may suspend the operation of such schedule and defer the use of such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice, but not for a longer period than one hundred and twenty days beyond the time when such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice would otherwise go into effect; and after full hearing, whether completed before or after the rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice goes into effect, the commission may make such order in reference to such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice had become effective: Provided, That if any such hearing can not be concluded within the period of suspension, as above stated, the Interstate Commerce Commission may, in its discretion, extend the time of suspension for a further period not exceeding six months. At any hearing involving a rate increased after January first, nineteen hundred and ten, or of a rate sought to be increased after the passage of this Act, the burden of proof to show that the increased rate or proposed increased rate is just and reasonable shall be upon the common carrier, and the commission shall give to the hearing and decision of such questions preference over all other questions pending before it and decide the same as speedily as possible. [36 Stat. L. 552.]

[Commission may establish through routes, joint classifications, and rates, etc., on failure of carriers — water connection included — electric roads not carrying freight excepted — water transportation excluded.] "The commission may also, after hearing, on a complaint or upon its own initiative without complaint, establish through routes and joint classifications, and may establish joint rates as the maximum to be charged and may prescribe the division of such rates as hereinbefore provided and the terms and conditions under which such through routes shall be operated, whenever the carriers themselves shall have refused or neglected to establish voluntarily such through routes or joint classifications or joint rates; and this provision shall apply when one of the connecting carriers is a water line. The commission shall not, however, establish any through route, classification, or rate between street electric passenger railways not engaged in the general business of transporting freight in addition to their passenger and express business and railroads of a different character, nor shall the commission have the right to establish any route, classification, rate, fare, or charge when the transportation is wholly by water, and any transportation by water affected by this Act shall be subject to the laws and regulations applicable to transportation by water. [36 Stat. L. 552.]

[Through routes to embrace entire length of railroad — exception — shipper's choice of routes to be observed — issue of through bill of lading, etc., as requested — choice of competing lines.] "And in establishing such through route, the commission shall not require any company, without its consent, to embrace in such route substantially less than the entire length of its railroad and of any intermediate railroad operated in conjunction and under a common management or control therewith which lies between the termini of such proposed through route, unless to do so would make such through route unreasonably long as compared with another practicable through route which could otherwise be established.

"In all cases where at the time of delivery of property to any railroad corporation being a common carrier, for transportation subject to the provisions of this Act to any point of destination, between which and the point of such delivery for shipment two or more through routes and through rates shall have been established as in this Act provided to which through routes and through rates such carrier is a party, the person, firm, or corporation making such shipment, subject to such reasonable exceptions and regulations as the Interstate Commerce Commission shall from time to time prescribe, shall have the right to designate in writing by which of such through routes such property shall be transported to destination, and it shall thereupon be the duty of the initial carrier to route said property and issue a through bill of lading therefor as so directed, and to transport said property over its own line or lines and deliver the same to a connecting line or lines according to such through route, and it shall be the duty of each of said connecting carriers to receive said property and transport it over the said line or lines and deliver the same to the next succeeding carrier or consignee according to the routing instructions in said bill of lading: Provided, however, That the shipper shall in all instances have the right to determine, where competing lines of railroad constitute portions of a through line or route, over which of said competing lines so constituting a portion of said through line or route his freight shall be transported. [36 Stat. L. 552.]

[Disclosing information of shipments unlawful — receiving, unlawful exception for legal process — adjustment of accounts — penalty for violations.] "It shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this Act, or any officer, agent, or employee of such common carrier, or for any other person or corporation lawfully authorized by such common carrier to receive information therefrom, knowingly to disclose to or permit to be acquired by any person or corporation other than the shipper or consignee, without the consent of such shipper or consignee, any information concerning the nature, kind, quantity, destination, consignee, or routing of any property tendered or delivered to such common carrier for interstate transportation, which information may be used to the detriment or prejudice of such shipper or consignee, or which may improperly disclose his business transactions to a competitor; and it shall also be unlawful for any person or corporation to solicit or knowingly receive any such information which may be so used: Provided, That nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent the giving of such information in response to any legal process issued under the authority of any state or federal court, or to any officer or agent of the Government of the United States, or of any State or Territory, in the exercise of his powers, or to any officer or other duly authorized person seeking such information for the prosecution of persons charged with or suspected of crime; or information given by a common carrier to another carrier or its duly authorized agent, for the purpose of adjusting mutual traffic accounts in the ordinary course of business of such carriers.

"Any person, corporation, or association violating any of the provisions of the next preceding paragraph of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and for each offense, on conviction, shall pay to the United States a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars. [36 Stat. L. 553.]

[Allowance for transportation facilities, etc., furnished by shipper — determination by commission.] "If the owner of property transported under this Act directly or indirectly renders any service connected with such transportation, or furnishes any instrumentality used therein, the charge and allowance therefor shall be no more than is just and reasonable, and the commission may, after hearing on a complaint or on its own initiative, determine what is a reasonable charge as the maximum to be paid by the carrier or carriers for the services so rendered or for the use of the instrumentality so furnished, and fix the same by appropriate order, which order shall have the same force and effect and be enforced in like manner as the orders above provided for under this section. [36 Stat. L. 553.]

[Other powers of commission not excluded.] "The foregoing enumeration of powers shall not exclude any power which the commission would otherwise have in the making of an order under the provisions of this Act." [36 Stat. L. 554.]

For sec. 15 of the Act of Feb. 4, 1887, see 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 843.

Character of shipment. — In Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Louisiana R. Commission, (1910) 183
Fed. 1005, it appeared that complainant railroad companies filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission a schedule of rates from points in Louisiana to New Orleans for export shipments. The railroad commission of Louisiana had also fixed a schedule of different and lower rates on local shipments between the same points. It also by an order allowed four days' free storage on local shipments and twenty days on shipments intended for export, in which order the railroads acquiesced, and also delivered shipments for export at the ship's side free of charge for switching. Certain shipments were delivered to complainants from points in Louisiana for carriage to New Orleans on bills of lading of substantially the local form, and on their arrival the consignees demanded and received the free storage accorded export shipments and free delivery to the vessel carrier; the shipments being delivered by complainants directly from their cars to such carrier, as was intended by the owner when it was shipped. It was held that, notwithstanding the use of the local bills of lading, the contract between the shippers and complainants was one for an export shipment, over which the Louisiana railroad commission had no jurisdiction, and that complainants were entitled, and even required, to charge the rates on such shipments fixed by their schedules filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

SEC. 13. [Section 16 of Interstate Commerce Act amended.] That section sixteen of said Act to regulate commerce, as heretofore amended, is hereby now amended so as to read as follows:

[Enforcing orders of commission — payment of money damages.] "Sec. 16. That if, after hearing on a complaint made as provided in section thirteen of this Act, the commission shall determine that any party complainant is entitled to an award of damages under the provisions of this Act for a violation thereof, the commission shall make an order directing the carrier to pay to the complainant the sum to which he is entitled on or before a day named. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Proceedings in Circuit Court if money be not paid — findings, etc., of commission prima facie evidence - attorney's fee - time limit for filing complaints.] "If a carrier does not comply with an order for the payment of money within the time limit in such order, the complainant, or any person for whose benefit such order was made, may file in the circuit court of the United States for the district in which he resides or in which is located the principal operating office of the carrier, or through which the road of the carrier runs, or in any state court of general jurisdiction having jurisdiction of the parties, a petition setting forth briefly the causes for which he claims damages, and the order of the commission in the premises. Such suit in the circuit court of the United States shall proceed in all respects like other civil suits for damages, except that on the trial of such suit the findings and order of the commission shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, and except that the petitioner shall not be liable for costs in the circuit court nor for costs at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless they accrue upon his appeal. the petitioner shall finally prevail he shall be allowed a reasonable attorney's fee, to be taxed and collected as a part of the costs of the suit. All complaints for the recovery of damages shall be filed with the commission within two years from the time the cause of action accrues, and not after, and a petition for the enforcement of an order for the payment of money shall be filed in the circuit court or state court within one year from the date of the order, and not after. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Joining of parties — service of process — recoveries.] "In such suits all parties in whose favor the commission may have made an award for damages by a single order may be joined as plaintiffs, and all of the carriers parties to such order awarding such damages may be joined as defendants, and such suit may be maintained by such joint plaintiffs and against such joint defendants in any district where any one of such joint plaintiffs could maintain such suit against any one of such joint defendants; and service of process against any one of such defendants as may not be found in the district where the suit is brought may be made in any district where such defendant carrier has its principal operating office. In case of such joint suit the recovery, if any, may be by judgment in favor of any one of such plaintiffs, against the defendant found to be liable to such plaintiff. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Service of orders.] "Every order of the commission shall be forthwith served upon the designated agent of the carrier in the city of Washington or in such other manner as may be provided by law. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Suspension of orders.] "The commission shall be authorized to suspend or modify its orders upon such notice and in such manner as it shall deem proper. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Compliance by carriers required.] "It shall be the duty of every common carrier, its agents and employees, to observe and comply with such orders so long as the same shall remain in effect. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Penalty for carrier not obeying orders.] "Any carrier, any officer, representative, or agent of a carrier, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, or agent of either of them, who knowingly fails or neglects to obey any order made under the provisions of section fifteen of this Act shall forfeit to the United States the sum of five thousand dollars for each offense. Every distinct violation shall be a separate offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day shall be deemed a separate offense. [36 Stat. L. 554.]

[Recovery of forfeitures.] "The forfeiture provided for in this Act shall be payable into the Treasury of the United States, and shall be recoverable in a civil suit in the name of the United States, brought in the district where the carrier has its principal operating office, or in any district through which the road of the carrier runs. [36 Stat. L. 555.]

[Duties of district attorneys, etc.] "It shall be the duty of the various district attorneys, under the direction of the Attorney-General of the United States, to prosecute for the recovery of forfeitures. The costs and expenses of such prosecution shall be paid out of the appropriation for the expenses of the courts of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 555.]

[Employment of attorneys, etc., by commission — expenses.] "The commission may employ such attorneys as it finds necessary for proper legal aid and service of the commission or its members in the conduct of their work or for proper representation of the public interests in investigations made by it or cases or proceedings pending before it, whether at the commission's own instance or upon complaint, or to appear for and represent the commission in any case pending in the commerce court; and the expenses of such employment shall be paid out of the appropriation for the commission. [36 Stat. L. 555.]

[Commerce court to enforce orders other than money payments — powers of court.] "If any carrier fails or neglects to obey any order of the commission other than for the payment of money, while the same is in effect, the Interstate Commerce Commission or any party injured thereby, or the United States, by its Attorney-General, may apply to the commerce court for the enforcement of such order. If, after hearing, that court determines that the order was regularly made and duly served, and that the carrier is in disobedience of the same, the court shall enforce obedience to such order by a writ of injunction or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such carrier, its officers, agents, or representatives, from further disobedience of such order, or to enjoin upon it or them obedience to the same. [36 Stat. L. 555.]

[Copies of schedules, etc., made public records — receivable as evidence — certified copies.] "The copies of schedules and classifications and tariffs of rates, fares, and charges, and of all contracts, agreements, and arrangements between common carriers filed with the commission as herein provided, and the statistics, tables, and figures contained in the annual or other reports of carriers made to the commission as required under the provisions of this Act shall be preserved as public records in the custody of the secretary of the commission, and shall be received as prima facie evidence of what they purport to be for the purpose of investigations by the commission and in all judicial proceedings; and copies of and extracts from any of said schedules, classifications, tariffs, contracts, agreements, arrangements, or reports, made public records as aforesaid, certified by the secretary, under the commission's seal, shall be received in evidence with like effect as the originals." [36 Stat. L. 555.]

For sec. 16 of the Act of Feb. 4, 1887, and prior amendments, see 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 844; 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 268.

SEC. 14. [Section 20 of Interstate Commerce Act amended.] That section twenty of said Act to regulate commerce, as heretofore amended, is hereby amended by striking out the following paragraph:

[Annual statements - matter stricken out.] "Said detailed reports shall contain, all the required statistics for the period of twelve months ending on the thirtieth day of June in each year, and shall be made out under oath and filed with the commission, at its office in Washington, on or before the thirtieth day of September then next following, unless additional time be granted in any case by the commission; and if any carrier, person, or corporation subject to the provisions of this Act shall fail to make and file said annual reports within the time above specified, or within the time extended by the commission for making and filing the same, or shall fail to make specific answer to any question authorized by the provisions of this section within thirty days from the time it is lawfully required so to do, such parties shall forfeit to the United States the sum of one hundred dollars for each and every day it shall continue to be in default with respect thereto. That at any time when, in the opinion of the marshal of any district, the public interest will thereby be promoted, he may appoint one or more deputy marshals for such district, who shall be known as field deputies, and, who, unless sooner removed by the district court as now provided by law, shall hold office during the pleasure of the marshal, except as hereinafter provided, and who shall each, as his compensation, receive the gross fees, including mileage, as provided by law, earned by him, not to exceed one thousand five hundred dollars per fiscal year, or at that rate for any part of a fiscal year; and in addition shall be allowed his actual necessary expenses, not exceeding two dollars a day, while endeavoring to arrest, under process, a person charged with or convicted of crime: Provided, That a field deputy may elect to receive actual expenses on any trip in lieu of mileage: Provided further. That in special cases, where in his judgment justice requires, the Attorney-General may make an additional allowance, not, however, in any case to make the aggregate annual compensation of any field deputy in excess of two thousand five hundred dollars nor more than the gross fees earned by such field deputy. immediately after making any appointment or appointments under this section, shall report the same to the Attorney-General, stating the facts as distinguished from conclusions constituting the reason for such appointment, and the Attorney-General may at any time cancel any such appointment as the public interest

SEC. 1. [District courts established; appointment and residence of judges.] In each of the districts described in chapter five, there shall be a court called a district court, for which there shall be appointed one judge, to be called a district judge; except that in the northern district of California, the northern district of Illinois, the district of Maryland, the district of Minnesota, the district of Nebraska, the district of New Jersey, the eastern district of New York, the northern and southern districts of Ohio, the district of Oregon, the eastern and western districts of Pennsylvania, and the western district of Washington, there shall be an additional district judge in each, and in the southern district of New York, three additional district judges: Provided. That whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of the district judge for the district of Maryland, senior in commission, such vacancy shall not be filled, and thereafter there shall be but one district judge in said district: Provided further, That there shall be one judge for the eastern and western districts of Scuth Carolina, one judge for the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee, and one judge for the northern and southern districts of Mississippi: Provided further, That the district judge for the middle district of Alabama shall continue as heretofore to be a district judge for the northern district thereof.

Every district judge shall reside in the district or one of the districts for which he is appointed, and for offending against this provision shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor. [36 Stat. L. 1087.]

This section states in concise language the number of judges in the respective judicial districts and was existing law.

"All Acts and parts of Acts authorizing the appointment of United States circuit or district judges . . . enacted prior to February first, nineteen hundred and eleven," are repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, and the Circuit Courts are abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 2. [Salaries of district judges.] Each of the district judges shall receive a salary of six thousand dollars a year, to be paid in monthly installments. [36 Stat. L. 1087.]

This section is a re-enactment of a provision in the Act of Feb. 12, 1903, ch. 547, 32 Stat. L. 825, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 198. R. S. sec 554, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 217, providing for the salaries of district judges, is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Traveling expenses, etc., of circuit justices and circuit and district judges, see Judicial Code, sec. 259, infra, p. 240.

SEC. 3. [Clerks.] A clerk shall be appointed for each district court by the judge thereof, except in cases otherwise provided for by law. [36 Stat. L. 1087.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 555, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 74, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

See the reference to this section in the first note to chapter 5, infra, p. 160.

SEC. 4. [Deputy clerks.] Except as otherwise specially provided by law, the clerk of the district court for each district may, with the approval of the district judge thereof, appoint such number of deputy clerks as may be deemed necessary by such judge, who may be designated to reside and maintain offices at such places of holding court as the judge may determine. Such deputies may be removed at the pleasure of the clerk appointing them, with the concurrence of the district judge. In case of the death of the clerk, his deputy or deputies shall, unless removed, continue in office and perform the duties of the clerk, in his name, until a clerk is appointed and qualified; and for the default or misfeasances in office of any such deputy, whether in the lifetime of the clerk or after his death, the clerk and his estate and the sureties on his official bond shall be liable; and his executor or administrator shall have such remedy for any such default or misfeasances committed after his death as the clerk would be entitled to if the same had occurred in his lifetime. [36 Stat. L. *108*7.]

R. S. sec. 558, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 74, expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, authorized the judge to appoint deputy clerks upon the application of the clerk. In view of the fact that in many special cases Congress had provided that the clerk shall appoint the deputies, this section was so revised as to permit the clerk to appoint all deputies, with the approval of the district judge; and has conferred upon the clerk the power to remove any deputy with the concurrence of the judge. It was believed that since the clerk is held responsible for the acts of his deputies he should be given the power of appointment.

A provision was also added that the court may designate the place at which any deputy is to reside and maintain an office.

The words "except as otherwise specially provided" at the beginning of the section are added for the reason that in a number of the sections in chapter 5, infra, there are provisions specially requiring deputy clerks to be appointed at certain places of holding court.

See the reference to this section in the first note to chapter 5, infra, p. 161.

SEC. 5. [Criers and bailiffs.] The district court for each district may appoint a crier for the court; and the marshal may appoint such number of persons, not exceeding five, as the judge may determine, to wait upon the grand and other juries, and for other necessary purposes. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section was drawn from R. S. sec. 715, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 81. Since Circuit Courts are abolished by Judicial Code, sec.

289, infra, p. 249, reference to the authority of such courts to appoint criers is omitted from the section.

SEC. 6. [Records; where kept.] The records of a district court shall be kept at the place where the court is held. When it is held at more than one place in any district and the place of keeping the records is not specially provided by law, they shall be kept at either of the places of holding the court which may be designated by the district judge. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 562, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 218, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 7. [Effect of altering terms.] No action, suit, proceeding, or process in any district court shall abate or be rendered invalid by reason of any act changing the time of holding such court, but the same shall be deemed to be returnable to, pending, and triable in the terms established next after the return day thereof. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 573, 4 Fed. Annot. 671, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 8. [Trials not discontinued by new term.] When the trial or hearing of any cause, civil or criminal, in a district court has been commenced and is in progress before a jury or the court, it shall not be stayed or discontinued by the arrival of the time fixed by law for another session of said court; but the court may proceed therein and bring it to a conclusion in the same manner and with the same effect as if another stated term of the court had not intervened. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 746, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 556, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The only material change is the omission of the words "circuit or" before the words "district court," the Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 9. [Court always open as courts of admiralty and equity.] The district courts, as courts of admiralty and as courts of equity, shall be deemed always open for the purpose of filing any pleading, of issuing and returning mesne and final process, and of making and directing all interlocutory motions, orders, rules, and other proceedings preparatory to the hearing, upon their merits, of all causes pending therein. Any district judge may, upon reasonable notice to the parties, make, direct, and award, at chambers or in the clerk's office, and in vacation as well as in term, all such process, commissions, orders, rules, and other proceedings, whenever the same are not grantable of course, according to the rules and practice of the court. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 574, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 671, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The words "so far as equity jurisdiction has been conferred upon them" were omitted here in view of the fact that the jurisdiction of the Circuit Courts is transferred to the District Courts by this Judicial Code, ch. 2, infra, p. 138, and secs. 289, 291, infra, p. 249. No other material change is made.

SEC. 10. [Monthly adjournments for trial of criminal causes.] District courts shall hold monthly adjournments of their regular terms, for the trial of criminal causes, when their business requires it to be done, in order to prevent undue expenses and delays in such cases. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 578, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 672, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 11. [Special terms.] A special term of any district court may be held at the same place where any regular term is held, or at such other place in the district as the nature of the business may require, and at such time and upon such notice as may be ordered by the district judge. Any business may be transacted at such special term which might be transacted at a regular term. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 581, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 672, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 12. [Adjournment in case of nonattendance of judge.] If the judge of any district court is unable to attend at the commencement of any regular, adjourned, or special term, or any time during such term, the court may be adjourned by the marshal, or clerk, by virtue of a written order directed to him by the judge, to the next regular term, or to any earlier day, as the order may direct. [36 Stat. L. 1088.]

In the District Court the judge could authorize the marshal to adjourn any term of court when the judge was unable to be present. In the Circuit Court the clerk could adjourn court, in the absence of the marshal, upon the order of the judge. The applicable provisions of R. S. sec. 583, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 673; R. S. secs. 671, 672, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 688, all of which are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, are merged in this section; and it has been so modified as to permit either the clerk or the marshal to adjourn the court, upon the order of the judge, and also to adjourn the court, during a term, upon a proper order of the court.

The Judicial Code.

SEC. 13. [Designation of another judge in case of disability of judge.] When any district judge is prevented, by any disability, from holding any stated or appointed term of his district court, and that fact is made to appear by the certificate of the clerk, under the seal of the court, to any circuit judge of the circuit in which the district lies, or, in the absence of all the circuit judges, to the circuit justice of the circuit in which the district lies, any such circuit judge or justice may, if in his judgment the public interests so require, designate and appoint the judge of any other district in the same circuit to hold said court, and to discharge all the judicial duties of the judge so disabled, during such disability. Whenever it shall be certified by any such circuit judge or, in his absence, by the circuit justice of the circuit in which the district lies, that for any sufficient reason it is impracticable to designate and appoint a judge of another district within the circuit to perform the duties of such disabled judge, the chief justice may, if in his judgment the public interests so require, designate and appoint the judge of any district in another circuit to hold said court and to discharge all the judicial duties of the judge so disabled, during such disability. Such appointment shall be filed in the clerk's office, and entered on the minutes of the said district court, and a certified copy thereof, under the seal of the court, shall be transmitted by the clerk to the judge so designated and appointed. [36 Stat. L. 1089.]

This section combines the provisions of R. S. sec. 591, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 675 (expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250), and the amendment thereto made by the Act of March 4, 1907, ch. 2940, 34 Stat. L. 1417, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 293. Reference to holding terms of the Circuit Court is omitted for obvious reserved. the Circuit Court is omitted, for obvious rea-

The section stated the existing law, sons. changed only as necessary for purposes of revision. The word "any" is substituted for the word "the" before the words "cir-cuit judge" for the reason that at present every circuit has two or more circuit judges, there being but one at the time of the enactment of the Revised Statutes.

Sec. 14. [Designation of another judge in case of accumulation of business.] When, from the accumulation or urgency of business in any district court, the public interests require the designation and appointment hereinafter provided, and the fact is made to appear, by the certificate of the clerk, under the seal of the court, to any circuit judge of the circuit in which the district lies, or, in the absence of all the circuit judges, to the circuit justice of the circuit in which the district lies, such circuit judge or justice may designate and appoint the judge of any other district in the same circuit to have and exercise within the district first named the same powers that are vested in the judge thereof. Each of the said district judges may, in case of such appointment, hold separately at the same time a district court in such district, and discharge all the judicial duties of the district judge therein. [36 Stat. L. 1089.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 592, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 676, expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. Reference to the Circuit Court is omitted for obvious reasons; also the provision at the end of R. S. sec. 592, above cited, for the reason that no appeals now lie to the former Circuit Courts. The word "any" is substituted for the word "the" before the words "circuit judge" for the reason given in the note to sec. 13, supra.

SEC. 15. [When designation to be made by chief justice.] If all the circuit judges and the circuit justice are absent from the circuit, or are unable to execute the provisions of either of the two preceding sections, or if the district judge so designated is disabled or neglects to hold the court and transact the business for which he is designated, the clerk of the district court shall certify the fact to the Chief Justice of the United States, who may thereupon designate and appoint in the manner aforesaid the judge of any district within such circuit or within any other circuit; and said appointment shall be transmitted to the clerk and be acted upon by him as directed in the preceding section. [36 Stat. L. 1089.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 593, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 676, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. In the first line of the section the word "all" has been substituted for the words "clerk of the district court" have been substituted for the words "district clerk," the word "other" has been added, and the words "next contiguous," before the semicolon, have been omitted. The effect of this omission is to authorize the Chief Justice to designate any district judge to hold court as therein provided, instead of limiting the selection to a judge of a contiguous circuit.

SEC. 16. [New appointment and revocation.] Any such circuit judge, or circuit justice, or the Chief Justice, as the case may be, may, from time to time, if in his judgment the public interests so require, make a new designation and appointment of any other district judge, in the manner, for the duties, and with the powers mentioned in the three preceding sections, and revoke any previous designation and appointment. [36 Stat. L. 1089.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 594, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 676, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. In the first line the words "any such" have been substituted for "the," and farther in the section the words "in the manner" have been added for the purpose of supplying a plain omission in the text.

SEC. 17. [Designation of district judge in aid of another judge.] It shall be the duty of the senior circuit judge then present in the circuit, whenever in his judgment the public interest so requires, to designate and appoint, in the manner and with the powers provided in section fourteen, the district judge of any judicial district within his circuit to hold a district court in the place or in aid of any other district judge within the same circuit. [36 Stat. L. 1089.]

By transposing R. S. sec. 596, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 677, so as to precede R. S. sec. 595, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 676, the words "and it shall be the duty of the district judge, so designated and appointed, to hold the district or circuit [court] as aforesaid," become redundant, since the same provision is repeated in Judicial Code, sec. 19, infra, p. 137. The section is so changed as to definitely impose the required duty upon the senior circuit judge then present in the circuit, rather than upon any circuit judge. This is for the purpose of avoiding confusion in making such designations.

Part of R. S. sec. 596, above cited, was repealed in the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1881, ch. 133, 21 Stat. L. 454, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 677, and that section and R. S. sec. 595, above cited, are expressly repealed by Judicial Code. sec. 297, infra. p. 250.

SEC. 18. [When circuit judge may be designated to hold District Court.] Whenever, in the judgment of the senior circuit judge of the circuit in which the district lies, or of the circuit justice assigned to such circuit, or of the Chief Justice, the public interest shall require, the said judge, or associate justice, or Chief Justice, shall designate and appoint any circuit judge of the circuit to hold said district court. [36 Stat. L. 1089.]

This section, in a strict sense, is new legislation. Its purpose, as explained in the general report of the committee on revision which was submitted March 15, 1910, is to permit circuit judges to try cases in the District Courts, in order to prevent congestion of business in those courts, and to afford business for the circuit judges in circuits in which there is not sufficient business in the Circuit Courts of Appeals to occupy the time of the judges.

SEC. 19. [Duty of district and circuit judge in such cases.] It shall be the duty of the district or circuit judge who is designated and appointed under either of the six preceding sections, to discharge all the judicial duties for which he is so appointed, during the time for which he is so appointed; and all the acts and proceedings in the courts held by him, or by or before him, in pursuance of said provisions, shall have the same effect and validity as if done by or before the district judge of the said district. [36 Stat. L. 1090.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 595, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 676, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The words "or circuit" are inserted in the first line of the section before the word "judge"; and the words "during the continuance of such disability, or, in the case of an accumulation of business," are omitted as being redundant; and by reason of the transposition of R. S. sec. 596, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 677, to precede this section, and the insertion of the new section 18, supra, the word "four" in the second line of the section is changed to "six." The purpose of changing the order of the section was to avoid needless repetition of provisions.

SEC. 20. [When district judge is interested or related to parties.] Whenever it appears that the judge of any district court is in any way concerned in interest in any suit pending therein, or has been of counsel or is a material witness for either party, or is so related to or connected with either party as to render it improper, in his opinion, for him to sit on the trial, it shall be his duty, on application by either party, to cause the fact to be entered on the records of the court; and also an order that an authenticated copy thereof shall be forthwith certified to the senior circuit judge for said circuit then present in the circuit; and thereupon such proceedings shall be had as are provided in section fourteen. [36 Stat. L. 1090.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 601, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 678, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, the latter part thereof being omitted a sobsolete by reason of the abolition of the Circuit Courts by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. Instead of certifying the case to the Circuit Court, the section as revised makes it the duty of the circuit judge, senior in commission, then present in the circuit, to designate some other judge to sit in the trial of the case in which the resident judge is disqualified.

SEC. 21. [When affidavit of personal bias or prejudice of judge is filed.] Whenever a party to any action or proceeding, civil or criminal, shall make and file an affidavit that the judge before whom the action or proceeding is to be tried or heard has a personal bias or prejudice either against him or in favor of any opposite party to the suit, such judge shall proceed no further therein, but another judge shall be designated in the manner prescribed in the section last preceding, or chosen in the manner prescribed in section twenty-three, to hear such matter. Every such affidavit shall state the facts and the reasons for the belief that such bias or prejudice exists, and shall be filed not less than ten days before the beginning of the term of the court, or good cause shall be shown for the failure to file it within such time. No party shall be entitled in any case to file more than one such affidavit; and no such affidavit shall be filed unless accompanied by a certificate of counsel of record that such affidavit and application are made in good faith. The same proceedings shall be had when the presiding judge shall file with the clerk of the court a certificate that he deems himself unable for any reason to preside with absolute impartiality in the pending suit or action. [36 Stat. L. 1090.]

This section is entirely new legislation.

SEC. 22. [Continuance in case of vacancy in office.] When the office of judge of any district court becomes vacant, all process, pleadings, and proceedings pending before such court shall, if necessary, be continued by the clerk thereof until such times as a judge shall be appointed, or designated to hold such court; and the judge so designated, while holding such court, shall possess the powers conferred by, and be subject to the provisions contained in, section nineteen. [36 Stat. L. 1090.]

This section is a re-enactment, with some changes, of R. S. sec. 602, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 679, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 23. [Districts having more than one judge; division of business.] In districts having more than one district judge, the judges may agree upon the division of business and assignment of cases for trial in said district; but in case they do not so agree, the senior circuit judge of the circuit in which the district lies, shall make all necessary orders for the division of business and the assignment of cases for trial in said district. [36 Stat. L. 1090.]

The substance of this section is to be found in the Act of Feb. 27, 1907, ch. 2073, sec. 2, 34 Stat. L. 998, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 307, for Nebraska; the Act of March 2, 1907, ch. 2575, sec. 2, 34 Stat. L. 1253, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 302, for California; the Act of March 2, 1909, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 315, 324, for Oregon and the Western District of Washington; and the Act of Feb. 24, 1910, ch. 56, sec. 3, 36 Stat. L. 202, for Maryland. No district court shall have cognizance of any suit (except upon foreign bills of exchange) to recover upon any promissory note or other chose in action in favor of any assignee, or of any subsequent holder if such instrument be payable to bearer and be not made by any corporation, unless such suit might have been prosecuted in such court to recover upon said note or other chose in action if no assignment had been made: Provided, however, That the foregoing provision as to the sum or value of the matter in controversy shall not be construed to apply to any of the cases mentioned in the succeeding paragraphs of this section.

Second. [Of crimes and offenses.] Of all crimes and offenses cognizable

Seventh. [Of suits under the patent, the copyright, and the trade-mark laws.] Of all suits at law or in equity arising under the patent, the copyright, and the trade-mark laws.

United States.] Of all suits brought by any person to recover damages for any injury to his person or property on account of any act done by him, under any law of the United States, for the protection or collection of any of the revenues thereof, or to enforce the right of citizens of the United States to vote in the several States.

Fifteenth. [Of suits to recover certain offices.] Of all suits to recover possession of any office, except that of elector of President or Vice President, Representative in or Delegate to Congress, or member of a State legislature, authorized by law to be brought, wherein it appears that the sole question touching the title to such office arises out of the denial of the right to vote to any citizen offering to vote, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude: Provided, That such jurisdiction shall extend only so far as to determine the rights of the parties to such office by reason of the denial of the right guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, and secured by any law, to enforce the right of citizens of the United States to vote in all the States.

Sixteenth. [Of suits against national banking associations.] Of all cases commenced by the United States, or by direction of any officer thereof, against any national banking association, and cases for winding up the affairs of any such bank; and of all suits brought by any banking association established in the district for which the court is held, under the provisions of title "National Banks," Revised Statutes, to enjoin the Comptroller of the Currency, or any receiver acting under his direction, as provided by said title. Twenty-fourth. [Of suits concerning allotments of land to Indians.] Of all actions, suits, or proceedings involving the right of any person, in whole or in part of Indian blood or descent, to any allotment of land under any law or treaty. And the judgment or decree of any such court in favor of any claimant to an allotment of land shall have the same effect, when properly certified to the Secretary of the Interior, as if such allotment had been allowed and approved by him; but this provision shall not apply to any lands now or heretofore held by either of the Five Civilized Tribes, the Osage Nation of Indians, nor to any of the lands within the Quapaw Indian Agency: Provided, That the right of appeal shall be allowed to either party as in other cases.

R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 218, and R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 245, parts of which are repeatedly referred to in this note, are expressly repealed in toto by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

First. — The jurisdiction of the Circuit

Courts as to suits at common law, or in equity, or on the ground of diverse citizenship, etc., was last conferred by sec. 1 of the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 433, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 386, which section is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The Act above cited was passed for the purpose of correcting mistakes contained in the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 373, 24 Stat. L. 552. In U. S. v. Sayward (1895), 160 U. S. 493, 498, 16 S. Ct. 371, 40 U. S. (L. ed.) 508, the Supreme Court construed the language of the first section above cited and proceeded to restate it in its own language. Judicial Code, sec. 24, purposely follows the language of the Supreme Court in that case.

With the foregoing jurisdiction of the Circuit Courts the Judicial Code paragraph merges the jurisdiction of the District Courts conferred by the fourth paragraph of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 220. Paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 245, 246, were superseded by the Act of 1888, above cited, and sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, and 7 of the latter Act are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297,

Second. - Under this paragraph has been merged the jurisdiction conferred upon the Circuit and District Courts by paragraphs 1 and 2 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 218, 219, and paragraphs 19 and 20 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 250, 251, and also that conferred by the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 433, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 265, and the Act of Sept. 4, 1890, ch. 874, 26 Stat. L. 424, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 351, 352.

As to the exclusive jurisdiction in this class of cases, see paragraph "First" of Judicial Code, sec. 256, infra, p. 239.

Third. — Under this paragraph has been merged the jurisdiction conferred by paragraphs 8 and 9 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 220, 234, and paragraph 6 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 247.

As to the exclusive jurisdiction in these classes of cases, see paragraphs "Third" and "Fourth" of Judicial Code, sec. 256, infra, Fourth. - This paragraph vests in the District Courts the jurisdiction vested in the Circuit Courts the jurisdiction vested in the Circuit Courts by paragraph 7 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 248.

Fifth. — This paragraph merges in the District Courts the jurisdiction vested in both the Circuit and District Courts under paragraph 5 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 220, and paragraph 4 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 246.

Sixth. — This paragraph merges the con-current jurisdiction of cases arising under the postal laws, which was vested by paragraph 1 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 218, and paragraph 4 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 246.

Seventh. — This paragraph confers upon the District Courts the jurisdiction which the Circuit Court had over cases arising under the patent, the copyright, and the trademark laws in paragraph 9 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 248, and section 17 of the Act of Feb. 20, 1905, 33 Stat. L. 728, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 414.

As to the exclusive jurisdiction in patent-right and copyright cases, see paragraph "Fifth" of Judicial Code, sec. 256, infra,

Eighth. - This paragraph declares the jurisdiction of cases arising under the inter-state commerce acts which had been vested in the Circuit and District Courts by the Act of Feb. 4, 1887, ch. 104, 21 Stat. L. 379, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 809, excepting therefrom the jurisdiction conferred upon the Commerce Court by Judicial Code, sec. 207, infra, p. 218.

Ninth. — This paragraph confers upon the District Courts the jurisdiction which had been vested in the Circuit Courts by paragraph 5 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 247, and upon the District Courts by paragraphs 3 and 6 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat.

Annot. 219, 220.

As to the exclusive jurisdiction in this class of cases, see paragraph "Second" of Judicial Code, sec. 256, infra, p. 239.

Tenth. -- This paragraph vests in the District Courts the same jurisdiction that the Circuit and District Courts had exercised concurrently under paragraph 10 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 234, and paragraph 8 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 248.

Eleventh. - This paragraph confers upon the District Courts the jurisdiction vested in the Circuit Courts by paragraph 12 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 248.

Twelfth. — The reference to R. S. sec. 1985, in paragraph 11 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 234, evidently was a mistake, and should have been to R. S. sec. 1980, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 796—the same jurisdiction conferred upon the Circuit Courts under paragraph 17 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 250, and concurrently upon the Circuit and District Courts by the Act of March 1, 1875, ch. 114, sec. 3, 18 Stat. L. 335, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 806. The Judicial Code paragraph confers it upon the District Courts.

Thirteenth. — This paragraph is taken from paragraph 18 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 250, which conferred upon the Circuit Courts the jurisdiction herein conferred upon the District Courts.

Fourteenth. - This paragraph merges the jurisdiction which had been vested in the District Courts by paragraph 12 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 234, and in the Circuit Courts by paragraph 16 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 249.

Fifteenth. — The Circuit and District

Courts had concurrent jurisdiction of suits arising under the law revised in this paragraph, the former court under paragraph 17 of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 250, the latter under paragraph 11 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 234.

Sixteenth. - The jurisdiction conferred by this paragraph is that which was vested in the District Courts by paragraph 15 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 235, and in the Circuit Courts by paragraphs 10 and 11 of R. S. sec. 629, as modified by the Act of July 12, 1882, ch. 290, sec. 4, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 194, note, and section 4 of the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 436, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 193, which latter is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Seventeenth. — This paragraph states the jurisdiction that was vested in the District Courts by paragraph 16 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 235.

Eighteenth. — This paragraph states the jurisdiction that was vested in the District Courts by paragraph 17 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 235. The words "except for offenses above the description aforesaid" are omitted as meaningless, and should not have been carried into the Revised Statutes. They refer to offenses the punishment for which exceeded a fine of $100, or imprisonment exceeding six months, or whipping exceeding thirty stripes, as found in section 9 of the Judiciary Act of 1789, ch. 20, 1 Stat. L. 76, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 235, note, the punishment for offenses above that grade being vested in the Circuit Courts. See U. S. v. Ravara (1793), 2 Dall. (U. S.) 297, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16,122, cited 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 235, note.

As to the exclusive jurisdiction in this class of cases, see paragraph "Eighth" of Judicial Code, sec. 256, infra, p. 000.

Ninoteenth. — This paragraph is merely declaratory of jurisdiction in the District Courts of all matters and proceedings in hankruntary conferred by sections 2 and 22 bankruptcy, conferred by sections 2 and 23 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898, post, title Bankruptcy in this Supplement, and 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 531, 590, and is stated substantially in the language of paragraph 18 of R. S. sec. 563, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 236.

As to the exclusive jurisdiction in this

Twontieth.—This paragraph recites the jurisdiction that was vested in the District Courts by the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, 24 Stat. L. 505, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 80, and the amendments thereto in the Act of June 27, 1898, 30 Stat. L. 494, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 82, and the Act of Feb. 26, 1900, ch. 25, 31 Stat. L. 33, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 83.

In U. S. v. Greathouse (1897), 166 U. S. 601, 17 S. Ct. 701, 41 U. S. (L. ed.) 1130, the Supreme Court held that the provision in R. S. sec. 1069, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 65, giving to persons under disability the right to maintain suit within three years after disability ceased, was not repealed by the six-year limitation in the Tucker Act, above cited, and that it applied to cases in the District Courts as well as to cases in the Court of Claims. That saving clause has therefore been carried into this paragraph; and R. S. sec. 1069 is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.
The other changes in language in the paragraph are merely for purposes of revision.

See also as to jurisdiction of the Court of Claims, Judicial Code, secs. 145, 158, infra, pp. 200, 201.

Twenty-first. — This paragraph merely states the jurisdiction conferred concurrently upon the Circuit and District Courts by the Act of Feb. 25, 1885, ch. 149, 23 Stat. L.

321, 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 533, to prevent the unlawful enclosure of public lands.

Twenty-second. — This paragraph states the jurisdiction that was vested in the Circuit and District Courts under the various acts relating to immigration, including the contract-labor and the Chinese-exclusion laws namely, section 13 of the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 551, 26 Stat. L. 1086, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 311; section 6 of the Act of May 5, 1892, ch. 60, 27 Stat. L. 25, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 765, note, as amended in Act of Nov. 3, 1893, ch. 14, 28 Stat. L. 7, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 764; and section 29 of the Act of Feb. 20, 1907, ch. 1134, 34 Stat. L. 907, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 174.

Twenty-third. — This paragraph confers upon the District Courts the jurisdiction which was vested in the Circuit Courts under section 77 of the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, ch. 349, 28 Stat. L. 570, 7 Fed. Stat. Annot. 347, and sections 4 and 7 of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of July 2, 1890, ch. 647, 26 Stat. L. 209, 210, 7 Fed. Stat. Annot. 344, 345.

Twenty-fourth. - This paragraph vests in the District Courts the jurisdiction that was exercised by Circuits Courts under a provision in the Indian Appropriation Act of Aug. 15, 1894, ch. 290, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 504, note, as amended in section 1 of the Act of Feb. 6, 1901, ch. 217, 31 Stat. L. 760, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 503. Tnewty-fifth. — The effect of this paragraph is to transfer to the District Courts the jurisdiction vested in the Circuit Courts by the Act of May 17, 1898, ch. 339, 30 Stat.

L. 416, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 405.

SEC. 25. [Appellate jurisdiction under Chinese exclusion laws.] The district courts shall have appellate jurisdiction of the judgments and orders of United States commissioners in cases arising under the Chinese exclusion laws. [36 Stat. L. 1094.]

This section merely states, in concise terms, the jurisdiction that was vested in the District and Circuit Courts by section 13 of the Act of Sept. 13, 1888, ch. 1015, 25 Stat. L. 479, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 772,

Sec. 26. [Appellate jurisdiction over Yellowstone National Park.] The district court for the district of Wyoming shall have jurisdiction of all felonies committed within the Yellowstone National Park and appellate jurisdiction of judgments in cases of conviction before the commissioner authorized to be appointed under section five of an Act entitled "An Act to protect the birds and animals in Yellowstone National Park, and to punish crimes in said Park, and for other purposes," approved May seventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-four. [36 Stat. L. 1094.]

[36 Stat. L. 1094.]

by the Act of Feb. 2, 1903, ch. 351, 32 Stat. L. 793, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 121.

And when in any suit mentioned in this section there shall be a controversy which is wholly between citizens of different States, and which can be fully determined as between them, then either one or more of the defendants actually interested in such controversy may remove said suit into the district court of the United States for the proper district. And where a suit is now pending, or may hereafter be brought, in any State court, in which there is a controversy between a citizen of the State in which the suit is brought and a citizen of another State, any defendant, being such citizen of another State, may remove such suit into the district court of the United States for the proper district, at any time before the trial thereof, when it shall be made to appear to said district court that from prejudice or local influence he will not be able to obtain justice in such State court, or in any other State court to which the said defendant may, under the laws of the State, have the right, on account of such prejudice or local influence, to remove said cause: Provided, That if it further appear that said suit can be fully and justly determined as to the other defendants in the State court, without being affected by such prejudice or local influence, and that no party to the suit will be prejudiced by a separation of the parties, said district court may direct the suit to be remanded, so far as relates to such other defendants, to the State court, to be proceeded with therein. At any time before the trial of any suit which is now pending in any district court, or may hereafter be entered therein, and which has been removed to said court from a State court on the affidavit of any party plaintiff that he had reason to believe and did believe that, from prejudice or local influence, he was unable to obtain justice in said State court, the district court shall, on application of the other party, examine into the truth of said affidavit and the grounds thereof, and, unless it shall appear to the satisfaction of said court that said party will not be able to obtain justice in said State court, it shall cause the same to be remanded thereto. Whenever any cause shall be removed from any State court into any district court of the United States, and the district court shall decide that the cause was improperly removed, and order the same to be remanded to the State court from whence it came, such remand shall be immediately carried into execution, and no appeal or writ of error from the decision of the district court so remanding such cause shall be allowed: Provided, That no case arising under an Act entitled "An Act relating to the liability of common carriers by railroad to their employees in certain cases," approved April twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eight, or any amendment thereto, and brought in any State court of competent jurisdiction shall be removed to any court of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1094.]

Prior to the enactment of this section, when a suit brought in a state court was removed to a federal court, it was to the Circuit Court. The only change in the section consists in the substitution of the words "district court" for the words "circuit court," since Circuit Courts are abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. Aside from this change the section was existing law, as prescribed in section 2 of the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 373, 24 Stat. L. 552, as amended by the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 434, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 386, 312, which is expressly repealed by Judicial

Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250; and the last proviso, forbidding removal of certain actions against common carriers, is a re-enactment of a provision in section 6 of the Act of April 22, 1908, 35 Stat. L. 66, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 585, as amended by the Act of April 5, 1910, ch. 143, 36 Stat. L. 291, this Supplement.

The words "this title" occurring twice in this section mean this Act, i. e., this Judicial Code, as provided in Judicial Code, sec. 293, infra, p. 250; and the words "jurisdiction by this title" refer especially to Chapter Two.

Sec. 29. [Procedure for removal.] Whenever any party entitled to remove any suit mentioned in the last preceding section, except suits removable on the ground of prejudice or local influence, may desire to remove such suit from a State court to the district court of the United States, he may make and file a petition, duly verified, in such suit in such State court at the time, or any time before the defendant is required by the laws of the State or the rule of the State court in which such suit is brought to answer or plead to the declaration or complaint of the plaintiff, for the removal of such suit into the district court to be held in the district where such suit is pending, and shall make and file therewith a bond, with good and sufficient surety, for his or their entering in such district court, within thirty days from the date of filing said petition, a certified copy of the record in such suit, and for paying all costs that may be awarded by the said district court if said district court shall hold that such suit was wrongfully or improperly removed thereto, and also for their appearing and entering special bail in such suit if special bail was originally requisite therein. It shall then be the duty of the State court to accept said petition and bond and proceed no further in such suit. Written notice of said petition and bond for removal shall be given the adverse party or parties prior to filing the same. The said copy being entered within said thirty days as aforesaid in said district court of the United States, the parties so removing the said cause shall, within thirty days thereafter, plead, answer, or demur to the declaration or complaint in said cause, and the cause shall then proceed in the same manner as if it had been originally commenced in the said district court. [36 Stat. L. 1095.]

The provisions in this section that the petition for removal shall be "duly verified," that the bond shall require the filing of a certified copy of the record "within thirty days from the date of filing said petition," that "written notice of said petition and bond for removal shall be given to the adverse party or parties prior to filing the same," that the copy is to be entered "within said thirty days," and that "the parties so removing the said cause shall, within thirty days thereafter, plead, answer, or demur to the declaration or complaint in said cause"—are new legislation. Otherwise the section is a re-enactment, without material change, of provisions in section 3 of the Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 373, as amended by the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 435, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 349; except that the words "district court" are substituted for the words "circuit court," the latter being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 30. [Suits under grants of land from different states.] If in any action commenced in a State court the title of land be concerned, and the parties are citizens of the same State and the matter in dispute exceeds the sum or value of three thousand dollars, exclusive of interest and costs, the sum or value being made to appear, one or more of the plaintiffs or defendants, before the trial, may state to the court, and make affidavit if the court require it, that he or they claim, and shall rely upon, a right or title to the land under a grant from a State, and produce the original grant, or an exemplification of it, except where the loss of public records shall put it out of his or their power, and shall move that any one or more of the adverse party inform the court whether he or they claim a right or title to the land under a grant from some other State, the party or parties so required shall give such information, or otherwise not be allowed to plead such grant or give it in evidence upon the trial. If he or they inform the court that he or they do claim under such grant, any one or more of the party moving for such information may then, on petition and bond, as hereinbefore mentioned in this chapter, remove the cause for trial to the district court of the United States next to be holden in such district; and any one of either party removing the cause shall not be allowed to plead or give evidence of any other title than that by him or them stated as aforesaid as the ground of his or their claim. [36 Stat. L. 1096.]

This section is taken from the latter portion of section 3 of the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 435, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 386, 349, amending that section of the Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 137, 18 Stat. L. 471, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 350, note, which became a part of R. S. sec. 647, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 265, the latter being now expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The change from existing law is in the substitution of $3,000 for $2,000 as the jurisdictional amount, the substitution of the words "district court" for "circuit court," the adding of the words "the court" after the words "if he or they inform," and the substituting of the word "chapter" for "act."

SEC. 31. [Removal of causes against persons denied any civil rights, etc.] When any civil suit or criminal prosecution is commenced in any State court, for any cause whatsoever, against any person who is denied or can not enforce in the judicial tribunals of the State, or in the part of the State where such suit or prosecution is pending, any right secured to him by any law providing for the equal civil rights of citizens of the United States, or of all persons within the jurisdiction of the United States, or against any officer, civil or military, or other person, for any arrest or imprisonment or other trespasses or wrongs made or committed by virtue of or under color of authority derived from any law providing for equal rights as aforesaid, or for refusing to do any act on the ground that it would be inconsistent with such law, such suit or prosecution may, upon the petition of such defendant, filed in said State court at any time before the trial or final hearing of the cause, stating the facts and verified by oath, be removed for trial into the next district court to be held in the district where it is pending. Upon the filing of such petition all further proceedings in the State courts shall cease, and shall not be resumed except as hereinafter provided. But all bail and other security given in such suit or prosecution shall continue in like force and effect as if the same had proceeded to final judgment and execution in the State court. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the State court to furnish such defendant, petitioning for a removal, copies of said process against him, and of all pleadings, depositions, testimony, and other proceedings in the case. If such copies are filed by said petitioner in the district court on the first day of its session, the cause shall proceed therein in the same manner as if it had been brought there by original process; and if the said clerk refuses or neglects to furnish such copies, the petitioner may thereupon docket the case in the district court, and the said court shall then have jurisdiction therein, and may, upon proof of such refusal or neglect of said clerk, and upon reasonable notice to the plaintiff, require the plaintiff to file a declaration, petition, or complaint in the cause; and, in case of his default, may order a nonsuit and dismiss the case at the costs of the plaintiff, and such dismissal shall be a bar to any further suit touching the matter in controversy. But if, without such refusal or neglect of said clerk to furnish such copies and proof thereof, the petitioner for removal fails to file copies in the district court, as herein provided, a certificate, under the seal of the district court, stating such failure, shall be given, and upon the production thereof in said State court the cause shall proceed therein as if no petition for removal had been filed. [36 Stat. L. 1096.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 641, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 258, without change except by substitution of the words "district court" for the words "circuit court," the latter being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. R. S. sec. 641 is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 32. [When petitioner is in actual custody of state court.] When all the acts necessary for the removal of any suit or prosecution, as provided in the preceding section, have been performed, and the defendant petitioning for such removal is in actual custody on process issued by said State court, it shall be the duty of the clerk of said district court to issue a writ of habeas corpus cum causa, and of the marshal, by virtue of said writ, to take the body of the defendant into his custody, to be dealt with in said district court according to law and the orders of said court, or, in vacation, of any judge thereof; and the marshal shall file with or deliver to the clerk of said State court a duplicate copy of said writ. [36 Stat. L. 1097.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 642, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 260, with only the same change as was made in Judicial Code, sec. 31, supra. R. S. sec. 642 is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Sec. 33. [Suits and prosecutions against revenue officers, etc.] When any civil suit or criminal prosecution is commenced in any court of a State against any officer appointed under or acting by authority of any revenue law of the United States now or hereafter enacted, or against any person acting under or by authority of any such officer, on account of any act done under color of his office or of any such law, or on account of any right, title, or authority claimed by such officer or other person under any such law; or is commenced against any person holding property or estate by title derived from any such officer, and affects the validity of any such revenue law; or when any suit is commenced against any person for [sic] on account of anything done by him while an officer of either House of Congress in the discharge of his official duty, in executing any order of such House, the said suit or prosecution may, at any time before the trial or final hearing thereof, be removed for trial into the district court next to be holden in the district where the same is pending, upon the petition of such defendant to said district court, and in the following manner: Said petition shall set forth the nature of the suit or prosecution and be verified by affidavit, and, together with a certificate signed by an attorney or counselor at law of some court of record of the State where such suit or prosecution is commenced, or of the United States, stating that, as counsel for the petitioner, he has examined the proceedings against him and carefully inquired into all the matters set forth in the petition, and that he believes them to be true, shall be presented to the said district court, if in session, or if it be not, to the clerk thereof at his office, and shall be filed in said office. The cause shall thereupon be entered on the docket of the district court, and shall proceed as a cause originally commenced in that court; but all bail and other security given upon such suit or prosecution shall continue in like force and effect as if the same had proceeded to final judgment and execution in the State court. When the suit is commenced in the State court by summons, subpæna, petition, or other process except capias, the clerk of the district court shall issue a writ of certiorari to the State court, requiring it to send to the district court the record and proceedings in the cause. When it is commenced by capias or by any other similar form or proceeding by which a personal arrest is ordered, he shall issue a writ of habeas corpus cum causa, a duplicate of which shall be delivered to the clerk of the State court, or left at his office, by the marshal of the district or his deputy, or by some person duly authorized thereto; and thereupon it shall be the duty of the State court to stay all further proceedings in the cause, and the suit or prosecution, upon delivery of such process, or leaving the same as aforesaid, shall be held to be removed to the district court, and any further proceedings, trial, or judgment therein in the State court shall be void. If the defendant in the suit or prosecution be in actual custody on mesne process therein, it shall be the duty of the marshal, by virtue of the writ of habeas corpus cum causa, to take the body of the defendant into his custody, to be dealt with in the cause according to law and the order of the district court, or, in vacation, of any judge thereof; and if, upon the removal of such suit or prosecution, it is made to appear to the district court that no copy of the record and proceedings therein in the State court can be obtained, the district court may allow and require the plaintiff to proceed de novo and to file a declaration of his cause of action, and the parties may thereupon proceed as in actions originally brought in said district court. On failure of the plaintiff so to proceed, judgment of non prosequitur may be rendered against him, with costs for the defendant. [36 Stat. L. 1097.]

This section combines the provisions of R. S. sec. 643, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 260, and the first part of section 8 of the Sundry Civil omitting that portion repealed by the Act of Feb. 8, 1894, ch. 25, 28 Stat. L. 36, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 866. The words "or when any suit is commenced" are introduced solely for the purpose of properly combining the two Acts. The only change made from existing law is in the substitution of the words

"district court" for the words "circuit court," the latter being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. R. S. sec. 643, above cited, is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 34. [Removal of suits by aliens.] Whenever a personal action has been or shall be brought in any State court by an alien against any citizen of a State who is, or at the time the alleged action accrued was, a civil officer of the United States, being a non-resident of that State wherein jurisdiction is obtained by the State court, by personal service of process, such action may be removed into the district court of the United States in and for the district in which the defendant shall have been served with the process, in the same manner as now provided for the removal of an action brought in a State court by the provisions of the preceding section. [36 Stat. L. 1098.]

of the words "district court" in place of the words "circuit court," the latter being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 35. [When copies of records are refused by clerk of state court.] In any case where a party is entitled to copies of the records and proceedings in any suit or prosecution in a State court, to be used in any court of the United States, if the clerk of said State court, upon demand, and the payment or tender of the legal fees, refuses or neglects to deliver to him certified copies of such records and proceedings, the court of the United States in which such records and proceedings are needed may, on proof by affidavit that the clerk of said State court has refused or neglected to deliver copies thereof, on demand as aforesaid, direct such record to be supplied by affidavit or otherwise, as the circumstances of the case may require and allow; and thereupon such proceeding, trial, and judgment may be had in the said court of the United States, and all such processes awarded, as if certified copies of such records and proceedings had been regularly before the said court. [36 Stat. L. 1098.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 645, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 264, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 36. [Previous attachment bonds, orders, etc., remain valid.] When any suit shall be removed from a State court to a district court of the United States, any attachment or sequestration of the goods or estate of the defendant had in such suit in the State court shall hold the goods or estate so attached or sequestered to answer the final judgment or decree in the same manner as by law they would have been held to answer final judgment or decree had it been rendered by the court in which said suit was commenced. All bonds, undertakings, or security given by either party in such suit prior to its removal shall remain valid and effectual notwithstanding said removal; and all injunctions, orders, and other proceedings had in such suit prior to its removal shall remain in full force and effect until dissolved or modified by the court to which such suit shall be removed. [36 Stat. L. 1098.]

This section is drawn from section 4 of the Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 137. 18 Stat. L. 471, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 370, which superseded R. S. sec. 646, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 264, both the Act of 1875 and the Revised Statutes section being also repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. Aside from the omission of the word "and" at the beginning of the last sentence, the only change is in the substitution of the words "district court" for "circuit court," the latter being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 37. [Suits improperly in district court may be dismissed or remanded.] If in any suit commenced in a district court, or removed from a State court to a district court of the United States, it shall appear to the satisfaction of the said district court, at any time after such suit has been brought or removed thereto, that such suit does not really and substantially involve a dispute or controversy properly within the jurisdiction of said district court, or that the parties to said suit have been improperly or collusively made or joined, either as plaintiffs or defendants, for the purpose of creating a case cognizable or removable under this chapter, the said district court shall proceed no further therein, but shall dismiss the suit or remand it to the court from which it was removed, as justice may require, and shall make such order as to costs as shall be just. [36 Stat. L. 1098.]

This section is a re-enactment of section 5 of the Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 137, 18 Stat. L. 472, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 371, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, and the only change made is by substitution of the word "district" for the word "circuit," the Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 38. [Proceedings in suits removed.] The district court of the United States shall, in all suits removed under the provisions of this chapter, proceed therein as if the suit had been originally commenced in said district court, and the same proceedings had been taken in such suit in said district court as shall have been had therein in said State court prior to its removal. [36 Stat. L. 1098.]

infra, p. 250, and the only change made is by substitution of the word "district" for the word "circuit," and "chapter" for "act."

Sec. 39. [Time for filing record; return of record, how enforced.] In all causes removable under this chapter, if the clerk of the State court in which any such cause shall be pending shall refuse to any one or more of the parties or persons applying to remove the same, a copy of the record therein, after tender of legal fees for such copy, said clerk so offending shall, on conviction thereof in the district court of the United States to which said action or proceeding was removed, be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. The district court to which any cause shall be removable under this chapter shall have power to issue a writ of certiorari to said State court commanding said State court to make return of the record in any such cause removed as aforesaid, or in which any one or more of the plaintiffs or defendants have complied with the provisions of this chapter for the removal of the same, and enforce said writ according to law. If it shall be impossible for the parties or persons removing any cause under this chapter, or complying with the provisions for the removal thereof, to obtain such copy, for the reason that the clerk of said State court refuses to furnish a copy, on payment of legal fees, or for any other reason, the district court shall make an order requiring the prosecutor in any such action or proceeding to enforce forfeiture or recover penalty, as aforesaid, to file a copy of the paper or proceeding by which the same was commenced, within such time as the court may determine; and in default thereof the court shall dismiss the said action or proceeding; but if said order shall be complied with, then said district court shall require the other party to plead, and said action or proceeding shall proceed to final judgment. The said district court may make an order requiring the parties thereto to plead de novo; and the bond given, conditioned as aforesaid, shall be discharged so far as it requires copy of the record to be filed as aforesaid. [36 Stat. L. 1099.]

This section is a re-enactment of section 7 of the Act of March 3, 1875, ch. 137, 18 Stat. L. 472, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 378, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The first paragraph of the section in the Act of 1875, above cited, is omitted; Judicial Code, sec. 29, supra, p. 145, making provision for the filing of a copy of the record. In addition to using the word "chapter" for "act," and "district" for "circuit," and breaking the section into more sentences, the only other change consists in the omission of redundant language from the penal clause.

Sec. 42. [Offenses begun in one district and completed in another.] When any offense against the United States is begun in one judicial district and completed in another, it shall be deemed to have been committed in either, and may be dealt with, inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either district, in the same manner as if it had been actually and wholly committed therein. [36 Stat. L. 1100.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 734, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 95, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The words "made on the high

[Certain seizures cognizable in any district into which the property is taken.] Proceedings on seizures for forfeiture of any vessel or cargo entering any port of entry which has been closed by the President in pursuance of law, or of goods and chattels coming from a State or section declared by proclamation of the President to be in insurrection into other parts of the United States, or of any vessel or vehicle conveying such property, or conveying persons to or from such State or section, or of any vessel belonging, in whole or in part, to any inhabitant of such State or section, may be prosecuted in any district into which the property so seized may be taken and proceedings instituted; and the district court thereof shall have as full jurisdiction over such proceedings as if the seizure was made in that district. [36 Stat. L. 1100.]

infra, p. 250. In one place the word "court" is omitted, as being redundant. No other change has been made.

SEC. 48. [Jurisdiction in patent cases.] In suits brought for the infringement of letters patent the district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction, in law or in equity, in the district of which the defendant is an inhabitant, or in any district in which the defendant, whether a person, partnership, or corporation, shall have committed acts of infringement and have a regular and established place of business. If such suit is brought in a district of which the defendant is not an inhabitant, but in which such defendant has a regular and established place of business, service of process, summons, or subpens upon the defendant may be made by service upon the agent or agents engaged in conducting such business in the district in which suit is brought. [36 Stat. L. 1100.]

This section is a re-enactment of the Act of March 3, 1897, ch. 395, 29 Stat. L. 695, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 566. The only change made is by substituting the word "district" for "circuit," the Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SLC. 49. [Proceedings to enjoin Comptroller of the Currency.] All proceedings by any national banking association to enjoin the Comptroller of the Currency, under the provisions of any law relating to national banking associations, shall be had in the district where such association is located. [36 Stat. L. 1100.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 736, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 197, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 50. [When a part of several defendants cannot be served.] When there are several defendants in any suit at law or in equity, and one or more of them are neither inhabitants of nor found within the district in which the suit is brought, and do not voluntarily appear, the court may entertain jurisdiction, and proceed to the trial and adjudication of the suit between the parties who are properly before it; but the judgment or decree rendered therein shall not conclude or prejudice other parties not regularly served with process nor voluntarily appearing to answer; and non-joinder of parties who are not inhabitants of nor found within the district, as aforesaid, shall not constitute matter of abatement or objection to the suit. [36 Stat. L. 1101.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 737, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 552, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 51. [Civil suits; where to be brought.] Except as provided in the five succeeding sections, no person shall be arrested in one district for trial in another, in any civil action before a district court; and, except as provided in the six succeeding sections, no civil suit shall be brought in any district court against any person by any original process or proceeding in any other district than that whereof he is an inhabitant; but where the jurisdiction is founded only on the fact that the action is between citizens of different States, suit shall be brought only in the district of the residence of either the plaintiff or the defendant. [36 Stat. L. 1101.]

This section embraces the provisions of R. S. sec. 739, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 554, note, as modified in the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, sec. 1, 25 Stat. L. 434, 4 Fed. Stat.

Annot. 265, 386, both of which are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The changes in phraseology were made for purposes of proper revision.

SEC. 52. [Suits in States containing more than one district.] When a State contains more than one district, every suit not of a local nature, in the district court thereof, against a single defendant, inhabitant of such State, must be brought in the district where he resides; but if there are two or more defendants, residing in different districts of the State, it may be brought in either district, and a duplicate writ may be issued against the defendants, directed to the marshal of any other district in which any defendant resides. The clerk issuing the duplicate writ shall indorse thereon that it is a true copy of a writ sued out of the court of the proper district; and such original and duplicate writs, when executed and returned into the office from which they issue, shall constitute and be proceeded on as one suit; and upon any judgment or decree rendered therein, execution may be issued, directed to the marshal of any district in the same State. [36 Stat. L. 1101.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 740, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 554, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The words "circuit or" before the words "district courts" are omitted, the Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. Otherwise no change is made.

SEC. 53. [Districts containing more than one division; where suit to be brought; transfer of criminal cases. When a district contains more than one division, every suit not of a local nature against a single defendant must be brought in the division where he resides; but if there are two or more defendants residing in different divisions of the district it may be brought in either division. All mesne and final process subject to the provisions of this section may be served and executed in any or all of the divisions of the district, or if the State contains more than one district, then in any of such districts, as provided in the preceding section. All prosecutions for crimes or offenses shall be had within the division of such districts where the same were committed, unless the court, or the judge thereof, upon the application of the defendant, shall order the cause to be transferred for prosecution to another division of the district. When a transfer is ordered by the court or judge, all the papers in the case, or certified copies thereof, shall be transmitted by the clerk, under the seal of the court, to the division to which the cause is so ordered transferred; and thereupon the cause shall be proceeded with in said division in the same manner as if the offense had been committed therein. In all cases of the removal of suits from the courts of a State to the district court of the United States such removal shall be to the United States district court in the division in which the county is situated from which the removal is made; and the time within which the removal shall be perfected, in so far as it refers to or is regulated by the terms of United States courts, shall be deemed to refer to the terms of the United States district court in such division. [36 Stat. L. 1101.]

See a reference to this section in a paragraph in the first note to Judicial Code, Chapter Five, infra, p. 160.

In a great many Acts creating divisions of districts there are to be found provisions requiring that suits not of a local nature shall be brought in the division in which one of the defendants resides, etc., and provisions, similar in character, with respect to the removal of cases from state to federal courts. These provisions differ in some instances in the language used, but are substantially to the same effect. To avoid the necessity for repeating them in the various sections in which they otherwise should appear, and to avoid the necessity for repeating similar provisions in future Acts creating or changing divisions or districts, this section was inserted and made general in its application.

The section also contains the restriction with respect to the place of prosecution of crimes and offenses found in many Acts; and the provision of the Act of June 2, 1906, ch. 2569, sec. 2, 34 Stat. L. 207, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 301, authorizing the transfer of certain criminal cases from one division of the western district of Arkansas to another division for trial, etc., is also carried into the section and made general in its applica-tion. The purpose of this latter provision is to facilitate the early disposition of criminal cases, especially in minor cases, where the defendant is unable to give bail, and may, in view of the fact that in many divisions but one term of court is held in each year, possibly be compelled to remain in jail nearly a year before a trial may be had or before an opportunity will present itself for him to plead guilty.

SEC. 54. [Suits of a local nature, where to be brought.] In suits of a local nature, where the defendant resides in a different district, in the same State, from that in which the suit is brought, the plaintiff may have original and final process against him, directed to the marshal of the district in which he resides. [36 Stat. L. 1102.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 741, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 555, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 55. [When property lies in different districts in same State.] Any suit of a local nature, at law or in equity, where the land or other subject-matter of a fixed character lies partly in one district and partly in another, within the same State, may be brought in the district court of either district; and the court in which it is brought shall have jurisdiction to hear and decide it, and to cause mesne or final process to be issued and executed, as fully as if the said subject-matter were wholly within the district for which such court is constituted. [36 Stat. L. 1102.]

sicn of the words "circuit or" before the words "district court," the Circuit Courts having been abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

Sec. 56. [When property lies in different States in same circuit; jurisdiction of receiver.] Where in any suit in which a receiver shall be appointed the land or other property of a fixed character, the subject of the suit, lies within different States in the same judicial circuit, the receiver so appointed shall, upon giving bond as required by the court, immediately be vested with full jurisdiction and control over all the property, the subject of the suit, lying or being within such circuit; subject, however, to the disapproval of such order, within thirty days thereafter, by the circuit court of appeals for such circuit, or by a circuit judge thereof, after reasonable notice to adverse parties and an opportunity to be heard upon the motion for such disapproval; and subject, also, to the filing and entering in the district court for each district of the circuit in which any portion of the property may lie or be, within ten days thereafter, of a duly certified copy of the bill and of the order of appointment. The disapproval of such appointment within such thirty days, or the failure to file such certified copy of the bill and order of appointment within ten days, as herein required, shall divest such receiver of jurisdiction over all such property except that portion thereof lying or being within the State in which the suit is brought. In any case coming within the provisions of this section, in which a receiver shall be appointed, process may issue and be executed within any district of the circuit in the same manner and to the same extent as if the property were wholly within the same district; but orders affecting such property shall be entered of record in each district in which the property affected may lie or be. [36 Stat. L. 1102.]

This section is new legislation.

SEC. 57. [Absent defendants in suits to enforce liens, remove clouds on titles, etc.] When in any suit commenced in any district court of the United States to enforce any legal or equitable lien upon or claim to, or to remove any incumbrance or lien or cloud upon the title to real or personal property within the district where such suit is brought, one or more of the defendants therein shall not be an inhabitant of or found within the said district, or shall not voluntarily appear thereto, it shall be lawful for the court to make an order directing such absent defendant or defendants to appear, plead, answer, or tain to be designated, which order shall be served on such defendants, if practicable, wherever found, and also upon is in possession or charge of said property, if any there be; nal service upon such absent defendant or defendants is not der shall be published in such manner as the court may once a week for six consecutive weeks. In case such absent appear, plead, answer, or demur within the time so limited, her time, to be allowed by the court, in its discretion, and ervice or publication of said order and of the performance tained in the same, it shall be lawful for the court to enterid proceed to the hearing and adjudication of such suit in s if such absent defendant had been served with process rict; but said adjudication shall, as regards said absent dets without appearance, affect only the property which shall t of the suit and under the jurisdiction of the court therein, ; and when a part of the said real or personal property proceedings shall be taken shall be within another dise same State, such suit may be brought in either district ided, however, That any defendant or defendants not actufied as above provided may, at any time within one year in any suit mentioned in this section, enter his appearance district court, and thereupon the said court shall make an the judgment therein and permitting said defendant or therein on payment by him or them of such costs as the st; and thereupon said suit shall be proceeded with to final to law. [36 Stat. L. 1109.]

nactment of section 8 1875, ch. 137, 18 Stat. not. 380, which is exdicial Code, sec. 297, y change in language consists in the substitution of the words "district court" for "circuit court," the Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

This section is based upon the provisions in section 4 of the Act of Feb. 28, 1887, ch. 271, 24 Stat. L. 425, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 647, dividing Missouri into two districts, and in the Act of June 2, 1906, ch. 2569, sec. 1, 34 Stat. L. 206, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 301, to regulate the practice in civil and criminal cases in the western district of Arkansas.

In recent years, in a number of instances, Congress has passed Acts dividing districts into from two to five divisions, and providing for holding but one term of court a year in each division, and also providing that suits shall be brought in the division in which they arise. The result is, with but one term of court a year, there is great delay in litigation. Since the purpose of such a provision is solely to facilitate the disposition of cases, the section was so drawn as to be general in its application. See also a reference to this section in the first note to Judicial Code, Chapter Five, infra, p. 160.

SEC. 59. [Upon creation of new district or division, where prosecution to be instituted or action brought.] Whenever any new district or division has been or shall be established, or any county or territory has been or shall be transferred from one district or division to another district or division, prosecutions for crimes and offenses committed within such district, division, county, or territory prior to such transfer, shall be commenced and proceeded with the same as if such new district or division had not been created, or such county or territory had not been transferred, unless the court, upon the application of the defendant, shall order the cause to be removed to the new district or division for trial. Civil actions pending at the time of the creation of any such district or division, or the transfer of any such county or territory, and arising within the district or division so created or the county or territory so transferred, shall be tried in the district or division as it existed at the time of the institution of the action, or in the district or division so created, or to which the county or territory is or shall be so transferred, as may be agreed upon by the parties, or as the court shall direct. The transfer of such prosecutions and actions shall be made in the manner provided in the section last preceding. [36 Stat. L. 1103.]

This section is based upon provisions contained in a large number of Acts creating new districts or divisions, or transferring counties from one district or division to another. The purpose of the section is to obviate the necessity for repeating, in similar Acts in the future, provisions of this character. See also a reference to this section in the first note to Judicial Code, Chapter Five, infra, p. 160.

SEC. 60. [Creation of new district, or transfer of territory not to divest lien; how lien to be enforced.] The creation of a new district or division, or the transfer of any county or territory from one district or division to another district or division, shall not affect or divest any lien theretofore acquired in the circuit or district court by virtue of a decree, judgment, execution, attachment, seizure, or otherwise, upon property situated or being within the district or division so created, or the county or territory so transferred. any such lien, the clerk of the court in which the same is acquired, upon the request and at the cost of the party desiring the same, shall make a true and certified copy of the record thereof, which, when so made and certified, and filed in the proper court of the district or division in which such property is situated or shall be, after such transfer, shall constitute the record of such lien in such court, and shall be evidence in all courts and places equally with the original thereof; and thereafter like proceedings shall be had thereon, and with the same effect, as though the cause or proceeding had been originally instituted in such court. The provisions of this section shall apply not only in all cases where a district or division is created, or a county or any territory is transferred by this or any future Act, but also in all cases where a district or division has been created, or a county or any territory has been transferred by any law heretofore enacted. [36 Stat. L. 1103.]

This section embraces the provisions found in section 6 of the Act of Aug. 5, 1886, ch. 928, 24 Stat. L. 309, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 20, dividing California into two districts, and section 7 of the Act of March 2, 1901, ch. 801, 31 Stat. L. 881, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 654, creating the middle district of Pennsylvania, and is intended to preserve liens acquired prior to the creation of a new district or the transfer of any territory, and to provide a method of enforcing such lien where the property to which it has attached is within territory transferred to another district. It is also intended to avoid the necessity of carrying provisions of the character referred to into future Acts. See also a reference to this section in the first note to Judicial Code, Chapter Five, infra, p. 160.

Act of March 3, 1911.

Sec. 61. [Commissioners to administer oaths to appraisers.] Any district judge may appoint commissioners, before whom appraisers of vessels or goods and merchandise seized for breaches of any law of the United States, may be sworn; and such oaths, so taken, shall be as effectual as if taken before the judge in open court. [36 Stat. L. 1104.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 570, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 79, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 62. [Transfer of records to district court when a territory becomes a state.] When any Territory is admitted as a State, and a district court is established therein, all the records of the proceedings in the several cases pending in the highest court of said Territory at the time of such admission, and all records of the proceedings in the several cases in which judgments or decrees had been rendered in said territorial court before that time, and from which writs of error could have been sued out or appeals could have been taken, or from which writs of error had been sued out or appeals had been taken and prosecuted to the Supreme Court or to the circuit court of appeals, shall be transferred to and deposited in the district court for the said State. [36 Stat. L. 1104.]

This section is substantially a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 567, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 237, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The changes consist in the use of the words "highest court" instead of the words "court of appeals," for the reason that the appellate court of some of the territories is the "Supreme Court," and the term "highest" more accurately expresses the court from which the cases will be transferred. The words "or to the circuit court of appeals" are inserted after the words "the Supreme Court," as Circuit Courts of Appeals now have jurisdiction over certain cases coming from the highest court of the territories. See Judicial Code, sec. 133, infra, p. 196.

SEC. 63. [District judge shall demand and compel delivery of records of territorial court.] It shall be the duty of the district judge, in the case provided in the preceding section, to demand of the clerk, or other person having possession or custody of the records therein mentioned, the delivery thereof, to be deposited in said district court; and in case of the refusal of such clerk or person to comply with such demand, the said district judge shall compel the delivery of such records by attachment or otherwise, according to law. [36 Stat. L. 1104.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 568, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 238, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 64. [Jurisdiction of district courts in cases transferred from territorial courts.] When any Territory is admitted as a State, and a district court is established therein, the said district court shall take cognizance of all cases which were pending and undetermined in the trial courts of such Territory, from the judgments or decrees to be rendered in which writs of error could have been sued out or appeals taken to the Supreme Court or to the circuit court of appeals, and shall proceed to hear and determine the same. [36 Stat. L. 1104.]

made are similar to those found in Judicial Code, sec. 62, supra, and were made for the same or similar reasons.

SEC. 65. [Receivers to manage property according to state laws.] Whenever in any cause pending in any court of the United States there shall be a receiver or manager in possession of any property, such receiver or manager shall manage and operate such property according to the requirements of the valid laws of the State in which such property shall be situated, in the same manner that the owner or possessor thereof would be bound to do if in possession thereof. Any receiver or manager who shall willfully violate any provision of this section shall be fined not more than three thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. [36 Stat. L. 1104.]

This section is a re-enactment, without material change, of section 2 of the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 35 Stat. L. 436, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 386, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

The only changes made are the omission of the redundant matter in the penal clause, and the omission of the useless word "that" at the beginning of the section. These changes do not change the law.

Sec. 66. [Suits against receiver.] Every receiver or manager of any property appointed by any court of the United States may be sued in respect of any act or transaction of his in carrying on the business connected with such property, without the previous leave of the court in which such receiver or manager was appointed; but such suit shall be subject to the general equity jurisdiction of the court in which such manager or receiver was appointed so far as the same may be necessary to the ends of justice. [36 Stat. L. 1104.]

Annot. 387, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Sec. 67. [Certain persons not to be appointed or employed as officers of courts.] No person shall be appointed to or employed in any office or duty in any court who is related by affinity or consanguinity within the degree of first cousin to the judge of such court. Provided, That no such person at present holding a position or employment in a circuit court shall be debarred from similar appointment or employment in the district court succeeding to such circuit court jurisdiction. [36 Stat. L. 1105; 37 Stat. L. ——.]

The above section 67 was amended to read as here given by the Act of Dec. 21, 1911. The amendment consisted of the addition of the proviso.

This section as originally adopted is a reenactment, without material change, of section 7 of the Act of Aug. 13, 1888, ch. 866, 25 Stat. L. 437, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 69, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 68. [Certain persons not to be masters or receivers.] No clerk of a district court of the United States or his deputy shall be appointed a receiver or master in any case, except where the judge of said court shall determine that special reasons exist therefor, to be assigned in the order of appointment. [36 Stat. L. 1105.]

This section is substantially a re-enactment of a provision in the Deficiency Appropriation Act of March 3, 1879, ch. 183, 20 Stat. L. 415, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 81, the only change being the substitution of the words "of a district court" for "of the district or circuit courts," Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 69. [Judicial districts.] The United States are divided into judicial districts as follows: [36 Stat. L. 1105.]

Notes on chapter 5.— The following paragraphs are taken from the notes to this chapter in the report of the Congressional Committee on Revision:

In a number of Acts creating judicial districts or divisions are to be found provisions already fully covered by general laws applicable to all districts. These provisions have been omitted as redundant.

So, also, are to be found provisions declaring the division in which suits not of a local nature shall be brought, where process may be served, where prosecutions for crimes shall be instituted, and how they may be transferred to other divisions for prosecution, the division to which suits removed from state courts shall be removed, and fixing the time within which such removal may be had. All such provisions have been omitted from the several sections revised in this chapter and have been embraced in Judicial Code, sec. 53, supra, p. 154, which is made general in its application.

So, also, in several Acts are to be found provisions providing for the removal of civil cases from one division to another and prescribing the time and manner of removal. These provisions bave likewise been omitted and Judicial Code, sec. 58, supra, p. 156, substituted in place thereof.

So, also, in a number of Acts are to be found provisions providing for the disposition of pending civil and criminal cases. These are also omitted and Judicial Code, sec. 59, supra, p. 157, substituted in place thereof.

In two Acts, one relating to California and one to Pennsylvania, are to be found provisions preserving liens upon property acquired prior to the passage of those Acts. They have been omitted from the sections relating to those states, and Judicial Code, sec. 60, supra, p. 157, substituted in lieu thereof.

So, also, in a number of Acts are to be found provisions requiring juries to be drawn from the division in which the suits to be tried are pending. The result is, in a number of cases, this limitation applies to one division in a district and not to any other division thereof. All such provisions have been omitted, leaving the general law, revised in chapter 12, Juries, to control in the manner of the drawing of juries.

The general law (see Judicial Code, sec.

3, supra, p. 133) provides for one clerk of the court in each judicial district. In eight of the seventy-eight judicial districts embraced within the states special provision is made for more than one clerk, viz., Arkansas, eastern district, three clerks; Kentucky, eastern district, six clerks; Kentucky, west-ern district, four clerks; Missouri, western district, four clerks; North Carolina, eastern district, five clerks; North Carolina, western district, four clerks; Virginia, western district, four clerks; Wisconsin, western district, three clerks. Each of these clerks is an independent clerk, entitled to the maximum compensation allowed the single clerk of each of the seventy judicial districts. So, in the eastern district of Kentucky, for example, each of the six clerks is entitled to retain out of the fees received, if enough for that purpose, a compensation of $3,500, or six times the amount that could be retained by one clerk. As a matter of fact, in the eastern district of Kentucky the same man is clerk of the Circuit and the District Court at five places, thus entitling him to a maximum compensation of $35,000 per annum, should the fees be sufficient. No good reason exists why there should be but one clerk in each of the seventy districts, and from three to six clerks in the remaining eight districts. For this reason the provisions authorizing the appointment of more than one clerk in a district are omitted, thus providing for but In lieu of clerks, one clerk in each district. deputy clerks are provided for at each place of holding court in the eight districts at which clerks are now provided for.

The general law (revised in Judicial Code, sec. 4, supra, p. 133) leaves to the discretion of the judge the number of deputy clerks to be appointed. In a number of Acts Congress has provided that deputy clerks and deputy marshals shall be appointed for certain places. Provisions of this character have been retained in the sections in this chapter.

In other Acts are to be found provisions for deputy clerks at certain places, if the judge deems it necessary. This is merely a restatement of the general authority existing under Judicial Code, sec. 4, supra, p. 133; and all such provisions are omitted as redundant.

In other Acts are to be found provisions enlarging the general power because of some peculiar condition in the district not existing in other districts. For this reason a number of provisions of that character have been retained in the sections.

In the Revised Statutes one chapter is devoted to defining the judicial districts; another chapter to fixing the times and places of holding court; and still another chapter to special provisions respecting clerks, residence of judges, and appointment, residence, and compensation of deputy clerks in certain districts, etc.

Further, in the Revised Statutes, in those districts in which the counties were named, the sections provided that they should be composed of the counties as they existed on a certain date. For instance, in Illinois (sec. 536), the date is 1852, in Iowa (sec. 537), 1859; in Michigan (sec. 538), 1863; in Mississippi (sec. 539), 1838; in Mississippi (sec. 540), 1857; in Ohio (sec. 544), 1855; in Pennsylvania (sec. 545), 1818; in South Carolina (sec. 546), 1823; in Tennessee (sec.

547), 1838 and 1856; and in Texas (sec. 548), 1852.

From this it is apparent that the only proper way to describe the districts and divisions, where there are more than one district or division in a state, is to describe them as they existed on a certain date, the latest date that can be had; hence July 1, [1910], has been chosen. In order to secure absolute accuracy drafts of the sections relating to the various judicial districts were sent to the district attorneys in the districts for correction, and as this method has been pursued for three successive years, the list is believed to be correct.

Further, in view of the number of districts and divisions existing in a number of the states, and of the large number of places of holding courts, all the provisions respecting the organization of the district, the fixing of the times and places of holding court, and the special provisions applicable thereto, in so far as they apply to each state, are brought together in one section. This is believed to be in the interest of simplicity and ready reference.

In the notes in detail on the sections of this chapter no further reference will be made respecting provisions of the character above referred to, the notes being limited to other provisions and changes, and to be considered in connection with the foregoing general statements.

Section 69.— This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 530, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 16, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, the only change consisting in the use of the word "are" for the words "shall be."

Annot. 175, that the clerk and marshal shall each appoint a deputy who shall reside at Balina. upon the recommendation of the district attorney is omitted as obsolete, as court is very rarely held at Salina, and such deputies are not now maintained there. The provision in the Act of Feb. 19, 1903, ch. 709, 32 Stat.

L. 849, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 213, that "but a jury shall not attend said October term excepting upon the order of the court," is also omitted, the district attorney saying that the court always orders grand and petit juries for every term of court held at Kansas City, Kansas. Retention of the provision was therefore deemed useless.

Unless some specific name be given them it is difficult to describe them. Since it is the general policy of Congress, as a matter of necessity for simple reference, to give some definite name to each division created, the name of the city at which the court for each division is held has been given the division.

For more than twenty years (so the district attorney states) the court.

by order, has held the terms of the District Court on the dates fixed for holding the Circuit Court, so that both courts might be held at the same time. The above section 91 was amended to read so here given by the Act of Dec. 22, 1911.

The changes made by this amendment relate of a clerk's office at St. Louis and Hannibal,

Section 3 of the Act of Feb. 28, 1887, ch. 271, 24 Stat. L. 425, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 649, note, provided that terms of the District Court should be held at Hannibal on the first Monday in May and November.

The Act of April 19, 1888, ch. 129, 25 Stat. L. 88, provided that terms of the District Court should be held at Hannibal on the fourth Monday in May and first Monday in December, and repealed all laws inconsistent therewith. No reference was made in this Act to the Act of 1887.

Then the Act of May 14, 1890, ch. 202, 26 Stat. L. 106, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 649, 713, specifically amended section 3 of the Act of 1887, above cited, without any reference to or repeal of the Act of 1888, and provided that terms of the District Court should be held at Hannibal on the first Monday in May and November, those being the dates previously fixed for holding terms of court at St. Louis.

As a matter of fact, the court for that district has treated the Act of April 19, 1888, above cited, as being in force, irrespective of the Act of 1890, and regular terms of the court have been held at Hannibal at the times fixed in the Act of 1888 ever since that date, thus avoiding a conflict with the times fixed for holding court at St. Louis.

In view of the construction placed upon the Act of 1888 by the court, the times fixed by it for holding court at Hannibal have been carried into the Judicial Code section.

SEC. 92. [Montana.] The State of Montana shall constitute one judicial district, to be known as the district of Montana. Causes, civil and criminal, may be transferred by the court or judge thereof from Helena to Butte or from Butte to Helena, or from Helena or Butte to Great Falls, or from Great Falls to Helena or Butte, in said district, when the convenience of the parties or the ends of justice would be promoted by the transfer; and any interlocutory order may be made by the court or judge thereof in either place. [36 Stat. L. 1118.]

Except for the addition of the provisions for holding court at Missoula and at Billings, this section states concisely what was the existing law.

R. S. secs. 597, 599, 4 Fed. Stat. [36 Stat. L. 1122.]

In dividing the state of Oklahoma into counties, the constitutional convention did not pay any attention to the line dividing Oklahoma and Indian territories, the result being that three counties, Grady, Stephens, and Jefferson, were formed from territory lying within both of those territories. Since, however, but a small portion of each county was taken from territory in the former territory of Oklahoma, following the suggestion of the district attorney, they are placed in the eastern, or Indian Territory division, in this section.

judges being found in Judicial Code, sec. 23, supra, p. 138, which is made general in its application.

This section states in concise terms what was the existing law. The special provision respecting the number of jurors to be summoned is omitted as unnecessary, the provision respecting liens being provided for in Judicial Code, sec. 60, supra, p. 157, which is general in its application.

SEC. 104. [Rhode Island.] The State of Rhode Island shall constitute one judicial district, to be known as the district of Rhode Island. Terms of the district court shall be held at Providence on the fourth Tuesday in May and the third Tuesday in November; and at Newport on the second Tuesday in May and the third Tuesday in October. [36 Stat. L. 1123.]

This section states in concise terms what was the existing law.

Sec. 105. [South Carolina.] The State of South Carolina is divided into two districts, to be known as the eastern and western districts of South Carolina. The western district shall include the territory embraced on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and ten, in the counties of Abbeville, Anderson, Cherokee, Chester, Edgefield, Fairfield, Greenville, Greenwood, Lancaster, Laurens, Newberry, Oconee, Pickens, Saluda, Spartanburg, Union, and York. R. S. sec. 456, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 48, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, provided that certain counties (naming them) as they existed on Feb. 21, 1823, should constitute the western district of South Carolina, the remaining counties in the state the eastern district.

By Act of March 10, 1871, 114 Stat. S. C.

By Act of March 10, 1871 (14 Stat. S. C. 695), Aiken county was created from territory taken from Edgefield, Barwell, Lexington, and Crangebury counties. Of these counties, the first lies in the western district, the other three in the eastern district; hence Aiken county now lies partly within each district, the larger portion being in the eastern district. In view of this fact, and also of the further fact that Columbia, the place of holding court in the eastern district, is much more accessible, Aiken county has been put in the eastern district in this section.

SEC. 106. [South Dakota.] The State of South Dakota shall constitute one judicial district, to be known as the district of South Dakota. [36 Stat. L. 1123.]

This section states in concise terms what was the existing law.

SEC. 107. [Tennessee.] The State of Tennessee is divided into three districts, to be known as the eastern, middle, and western districts of Tennessee. The eastern district shall include the territory embraced on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and ten, in the counties of Bledsoe, Bradley, Hamilton, James, McMinn, Marion, Meigs, Polk, Rhea, and Sequatchie, which shall constitute the southern division of said district; also the territory embraced on the

The clerk of the court for the western district shall appoint a deputy who shall reside at Jackson. The marshal for the western district shall appoint a deputy who shall reside at Jackson. The marshal for the eastern district shall appoint a deputy who shall reside at Chattanooga. The clerk of the court for the eastern district shall maintain an office in charge of himself or a deputy at Knoxville, at Chattanooga, and at Greeneville, which shall be kept open at all times for the transaction of the business of the court. [36 Stat. L. 1124.]

The provision that the terms of court fixed for Greeneville shall be held in a building furnished free of expense to the government is omitted as obsolete, as the court is now held in a federal building in that city.

The Tennessee river, for the greater portion of the distance it traverses the state of Tennessee, forms the dividing line between the western and middle judicial districts of that state. The legislature of that state, in defining the boundaries of some of the counties abutting on that river, fixed the line at low-water mark; consequently unless the river is specifically included in a district, certain portions above low-water mark would not be in any district. As considerable commerce is carried upon that river, it is quite important that the dividing line between the two judicial districts should be clearly defined. To make the middle of the stream the dividing line would make it almost impossible to prove in which district a crime committed upon its waters was committed. For this reason the western district is given jurisdiction over the waters of the river to low-water mark on the eastern shore thereof.

SEC. 108. [Texas.] The State of Texas is divided into four districts, to be known as the northern, eastern, western, and southern districts of Texas. L. 1125.]

The Acts creating the Victoria division of the southern district, the Del Rio division of the western district, and the Texarkana division of the eastern district, authorized the judges to fix the times of holding court in those divisions. The times as fixed by the court have been carried into this section. In several of the Acts creating new divisions, no name was given the divisions. For purposes of description or identification this is necessary. In view of this fact, names have been given to the divisions corresponding to the places at which the court is held therein.

Following the policy stated in the general note at the beginning of this chapter, the number of clerks in the western district has been reduced to one, and in lieu thereof deputy clerks are provided for. Otherwise the section states in concise terms what was the existing law.

SEC. 112. [Washington.] The State of Washington is divided into two districts, to be known as the eastern and western districts of Washington. [36 Stat. L. 1129.]

This section states in concise terms what was the existing law.

SEC. 114. [Wisconsin.] The State of Wisconsin is divided into two districts, to be known as the eastern and western districts of Wisconsin. Terms of the district court for said district shall be held at Madison on the first Tuesday in December; at Eau Claire on the first Tuesday in June; at La Crosse on the third Tuesday in September; and at Superior on the fourth Tuesday in January and the second Tuesday in July. The district court for each of said districts shall be open at all times for the purpose of hearing and deciding causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, so far as the same can be done without a jury. The clerk of the court for the western district shall maintain an office in charge of himself or a deputy at Madison, at La Crosse, and at Superior, which shall be kept open at all times for the transaction of the business of the The marshal for the western district shall appoint a deputy marshal who shall reside and keep his office at Superior. All writs and other process, except criminal warrants, issued at Superior, may be made returnable at Superior; and the clerk at that place shall keep in his office the original records of all actions, prosecutions, and special proceedings so commenced and pending Criminal warrants may be returned at any place within the district where court is held. Whenever warrants issued at Superior shall be returned at any other place, the clerk of the court wherein the warrant is returned, shall certify the same, under the seal of the court, together with the plea and other proceedings had thereon, and the determination of the court upon such plea or proceedings, with all papers and orders filed in reference thereto, to the clerk of the court at Superior; and the clerk at Superior shall enter upon his records a minute of the proceedings had upon the return of said warrant, certified as aforesaid. All causes and proceedings instituted in the court at Superior, shall be tried therein, unless by consent of the parties, or upon the order of the court, they are transferred to another place for trial. [36 Stat. L. 1129.]

Following the policy stated in the general note at the beginning of this chapter, the number of clerks in the western district has been reduced from three to one, and in lieu thereof deputy clerks provided for.

After the division of Wisconsin into judicial districts, certain new counties were created by the legislature of that state, and the lines were so drawn that three counties were partly in one judicial district and partly in another. This has been corrected by the assignment of the counties concerned in one district or the other, as their geographical location seemed to indicate.

SEC. 115. [Wyoming.] The State of Wyoming and the Yellowstone National Park shall constitute one judicial district, to be known as the district of Wyoming. Terms of the district court for said district shall be held at Chevenne on the second Mondays in May and November; at Evanston on the second Tuesday in July; and at Lander on the first Monday in October; and the said court shall hold one session annually at Sheridan, and in said national park, on such dates as the court may order. The marshal and clerk of the said court shall each, respectively, appoint at least one deputy to reside at Evanston, and one to reside at Lander, unless he himself shall reside there, and shall also maintain an office at each of those places: Provided. That until a public building is provided at Lander, suitable accommodations for holding court in said town shall be furnished the Government at an expense not to exceed three hundred dollars annually. The marshal of the United States for the said district may appoint one or more deputy marshals for the Yellowstone National Park, who shall reside in said park. [36 Stat. L. 1130.]

The existing law provided that terms of the United States court for the district of Wyoming might be held in the Vellowstone National Park for the trial of offenses committed therein. In view of this fact it was considered that the park should be made distinctly a part of the district of Wyoming.

This section constitutes part of R. S. sec. 604, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 59, and includes parts of various Acts as quoted in 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 60, and part of section 16 of the Act of June 16, 1906, ch. 3335, 34 Stat. L. 275, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 641, relating to the district of Oklahoma.

R. S. sec. 604, above cited, is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, which also repeals "all Acts and parts of Acts . . . creating or changing judicial enacted prior to February circuits first, nineteen hundred and eleven."

For Acts enacted on or after Feb. 1, 1911, see the analysis to this title, supra, p.

SEC. 117. [Circuit Courts of Appeals.] There shall be in each circuit a circuit court of appeals, which shall consist of three judges, of whom two shall constitute a quorum, and which shall be a court of record, with appellate jurisdiction, as hereinafter limited and established. [36 Stat. L. 1131.]

This section was part of sec. 2 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 826, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 396.

SEC. 118. [Circuit judges.] There shall be in the second, seventh, and eighth circuits, respectively, four circuit judges, in the fourth circuit, two circuit judges, and in each of the other circuits, three circuit judges, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall be entitled to receive a salary at the rate of seven thousand dollars a year, each, payable monthly. Each circuit judge shall reside within his circuit. [36 Stat. L. 1131.]

This section was existing law except as to the number of judges in the fourth circuit. "All Acts and parts of Acts authorizing the appointment of United States circuit or district judges . . . enacted prior to February first, nineteen hundred and eleven," are repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 119. [Allotment of justices to the circuits.] The Chief Justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court shall be allotted among the circuits by an order of the court, and a new allotment shall be made whenever it becomes necessary or convenient by reason of the alteration of any circuit, or of the new appointment of a Chief Justice or associate justice, or otherwise. If a new allotment becomes necessary at any other time than during a term, it shall be made by the Chief Justice, and shall be binding until the next term and until a new allotment by the court. Whenever, by reason of death or resignation, no justice is allotted to a circuit, the Chief Justice may, until a justice is regularly allotted thereto, temporarily assign a justice of another circuit to such circuit. [36 Stat. L. 1131.]

This section is a combination and modification of R. S. sec. 606, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 238, and R. S. sec. 618, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 245, both of which sections are expressly repealed in Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 120. [Chief justice and associate justices of Supreme Court, and district judges, may sit in Circuit Court of Appeals.] The Chief Justice and the associate justices of the Supreme Court assigned to each circuit, and the several district judges within each circuit, shall be competent to sit as judges of the circuit court of appeals within their respective circuits. case the Chief Justice or an associate justice of the Supreme Court shall attend at any session of the circuit court of appeals, he shall preside. In the absence of such Chief Justice, or associate justice, the circuit judges in attendance upon the court shall preside in the order of the seniority of their respective commissions. In case the full court at any time shall not be made up by the attendance of the Chief Justice or the associate justice, and the circuit judges, one or more district judges within the circuit shall sit in the court according to such order or provision among the district judges as either by general or particular assignment shall be designated by the court: Provided, That no judge before whom a cause or question may have been tried or heard in a district court, or existing circuit court, shall sit on the trial or hearing of such cause or question in the circuit court of appeals. [36 Stat. L. 1132.]

This section is but a re-enactment, with slight changes of language, of section 3 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3. 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 827, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 396, the changes consisting in the dropping of the word "that" at the beginning of the section, in the substitution of the words "shall" for "should," and in the omission of the words "justice or" in the proviso, since it is not contemplated that the justices of the Supreme Court shall sit in the District Courts.

SEC. 121. [Justices allotted to circuits, how designated.] The words "circuit justice" and "justice of a circuit," when used in this title, shall be understood to designate the justice of the Supreme Court who is allotted to any circuit; but the word "judge," when applied generally to any circuit, shall be understood to include such justice. [36 Stat. L. 1132.]

This section was R. S. sec. 605, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 238, which is expressly repealed in Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

The words "this title" mean this Act, i. c., this Judicial Code. See sec. 293, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 122. [Seals, forms of process, and rules.] Each of said circuit courts of appeals shall prescribe the form and style of its seal, and the form of writs and other process and procedure as may be conformable to the exercise of its jurisdiction; and shall have power to establish all rules and regulations for the conduct of the business of the court within its jurisdiction as conferred by law. [36 Stat. L. 1132.]

This section consists of parts of section 2 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 826, 4 Fed. Stat.

Annot. 396, with slight changes necessary for purposes of revision.

SEC. 123. [Marshals.] The United States marshals in and for the several districts of said courts shall be the marshals of said circuit courts of appeals, and shall exercise the same powers and perform the same duties, under the regulations of the court, as are exercised and performed by the marshal of the Supreme Court of the United States, so far as the same may be applicable. [36 Stat. L. 1132.]

The language of the two provisions revised in this section has been transposed, in order to state in concise language the existing law. The two provisions referred to are in the Act of July 16, 1892, ch. 196, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 74, and in section 2 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 826, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 396.

SEC. 124. [Clerks.] Each court shall appoint a clerk, who shall exercise the same powers and perform the same duties in regard to all matters within its jurisdiction, as are exercised and performed by the clerk of the Supreme Court, so far as the same may be applicable. [36 Stat. L. 1132.]

This section states what was the existing law, which was in sec. 2 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 826, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 390.

SEC. 125. [Deputy clerks; appointment and removal.] The clerk of the circuit court of appeals for each circuit may, with the approval of the court, appoint such number of deputy clerks as the court may deem necessary. Such deputies may be removed at the pleasure of the clerk appointing them, with the approval of the court. In case of the death of the clerk his deputy or deputies shall, unless removed by the court, continue in office and perform the duties of the clerk in his name until a clerk is appointed and has qualified; and for the defaults or misfeasances in office of any such deputy, whether in the lifetime of the clerk or after his death, the clerk and his estate and the sureties on his official bond shall be liable, and his executor or administrator shall have such remedy for such defaults or misfeasances committed after his death as the clerk would be entitled to if the same had occurred in his lifetime. [36 Stat. L. 1132.]

This section is new, there being no previous authority for the appointment of a deputy clerk. The provisions of the section are similar to those in the Judicial Code, sec. 4, supra, p. 133.

Sec. 126. [Terms.] A term shall be held annually by the circuit courts of appeals in the several judicial circuits at the following places, and at such times as may be fixed by said courts, respectively: In the first circuit, in Boston; in the second circuit, in New York; in the third circuit, in Philadelphia;

in the fourth circuit, in Richmond; in the fifth circuit, in New Orleans, Atlanta, Fort Worth, and Montgomery; in the sixth circuit, in Cincinnati; in the seventh circuit, in Chicago; in the eighth circuit, in Saint Louis, Denver or Chevenne, and Saint Paul; in the ninth circuit, in San Francisco, and each year in two other places in said circuit to be designated by the judges of said court; and in each of the above circuits, terms may be held at such other times and in such other places as said courts, respectively, may from time to time designate: Provided, That terms shall be held in Atlanta on the first Monday in October, in Fort Worth on the first Monday in November, in Montgomery on the third Monday in October, in Denver or in Cheyenne on the first Monday in September, and in Saint Paul on the first Monday in May. All appeals, writs of error, and other appellate proceedings which may be taken or prosecuted from the district courts of the United States in the State of Georgia, in the State of Texas, and in the State of Alabama, to the circuit court of appeals for the fifth judicial circuit shall be heard and disposed of, respectively, by said court at the terms held in Atlanta, in Fort Worth, and in Montgomery, except that appeals or writs of error in cases of injunctions and in all other cases which, under the statutes and rules, or in the opinion of the court, are entitled to be brought to a speedy hearing may be heard and disposed of wherever said court may be sitting. All appeals, writs of errors, and other appellate proceedings which may hereafter be taken or prosecuted from the district court of the United States at Beaumont, Texas, to the circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit, shall be heard and disposed of by the said circuit court of appeals at the terms of court held at New Orleans: Provided, That nothing herein shall prevent the court from hearing appeals or writs of error wherever the said courts shall sit, in cases of injunctions and in all other cases which, under the statutes and the rules, or in the opinion of the court, are entitled to be brought to a speedy hearing. All appeals, writs of error, and other appellate proceedings which may be taken or prosecuted from the district courts of the United States in the States of Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming, and the supreme court of the Territory of New Mexico to the circuit court of appeals for the eighth judicial circuit, shall be heard and disposed of by said court at the terms held either in Denver or in Cheyenne, except that any case arising in any of said States or Territory may, by consent of all the parties, be heard and disposed of at a term of said court other than the one held in Denver or Cheyenne. [36 Stat.

This section sets out in concise language the terms and places of holding terms of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the various circuits, and was existing law.

"All Acts and parts of Acts . . . fixing or changing the times or places of holding court, . . . enacted prior to February first, nineteen hundred and eleven," are repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p.

SEC. 127. [Rooms for court, how provided.] The marshals for the several districts in which said circuit courts of appeals may be held shall, under the direction of the Attorney General, and with his approval, provide such rooms in the public buildings of the United States as may be necessary for the business of said courts, and pay all incidental expenses of said court, including criers, bailiffs, and messengers: Provided, That in case proper rooms can not be provided in such buildings, then the marshals, with the approval of the Attorney General, may, from time to time, lease such rooms as may be necessary for such courts. [36 Stat. L. 1133.]

This section states what was existing law. The section is from sec. 9 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 427.

Sec. 128. [Jurisdiction; when judgment final.] The circuit courts of appeals shall exercise appellate jurisdiction to review by appeal or writ of error final decisions in the district courts, including the United States district court for Hawaii, in all cases other than those in which appeals and writs of error may be taken direct to the Supreme Court, as provided in section two hundred and thirty-eight, unless otherwise provided by law; and, except as provided in sections two hundred and thirty-nine and two hundred and forty, the judgments and decrees of the circuit courts of appeals shall be final in all cases in which the jurisdiction is dependent entirely upon the opposite parties to the suit or controversy being aliens and citizens of the United States, or citizens of different States; also in all cases arising under the patent laws, under the copyright laws, under the revenue laws, and under the criminal laws, and in admiralty cases. [36 Stat. L. 1133.]

This section is drawn from the appropriate provisions of section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 828, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 409, the remaining provisions being revised in sections 238, 239, 240, infra, pp. 231, 232. The section states what was existing law. Under section 86 of the Organic Act for Hawaii, as last amended, Act of March 3, 1909, ch. 269, 35 Stat. L. 838, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 152, appeals and writs of error could be taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the ninth circuit in the same classes of cases as from a District Court of the United States. For that reason Hawaii was included in this section.

As to appeals and writs of error direct to the United States Supreme Court from the United States District Court for Hawaii see Judicial Code, sec. 238, infra, p. 231.

As to appeals and writs of error direct to

As to appeals and writs of error direct to the United States Supreme Court from the Supreme Court of the territory of Hawaii see Judicial Code, sec. 246, infra, p. 233. The entire concluding clause, "in all cases

The entire concluding clause, "in all cases arising under," etc., appears in Judicial Code, sec. 250, infra, p. 235.

SEC. 129. [Appeals in proceedings for injunctions and receivers.] Where upon a hearing in equity in a district court, or by a judge thereof in vacation, an injunction shall be granted, continued, refused, or dissolved by an interlocutory order or decree, or an application to dissolve an injunction shall be refused, or an interlocutory order or decree shall be made appointing a receiver, an appeal may be taken from such interlocutory order or decree granting, continuing, refusing, dissolving, or refusing to dissolve, an injunction, or appointing a receiver, to the circuit court of appeals, notwithstanding an appeal in such case might, upon final decree under the statutes regulating the same, be taken directly to the Supreme Court: Provided, That the appeal must be taken within thirty days from the entry of such order or decree, and it shall take precedence in the appellate court; and the proceedings in other respects in the court below shall not be stayed unless otherwise ordered by that court, or the appellate court, or a judge thereof, during the pendency of such appeal: Provided, however. That the court below may, in its discretion, require as a condition of the appeal an additional bond. [36 Stat. L. 1134.]

"Section 7 of the Act of March 3, 1891 (4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 423, note), provided that appeals might be taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals from interlocutory orders 'granting or continuing an injunction.' This was found to be unsatisfactory, and by the Act of Feb. 18, 1895 (4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 423, note), the section was amended so as to cover orders by which an injunction 'is granted, continued, refused, or dissolved, or an application to dissolve an injunction is refused.' Later it was desired to extend the appeal to orders in receivership cases, and this was done by the Act of June 6, 1900 (4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 422). This law was so drawn, however, that it operated to repeal the Act of 1895, which, it is to be presumed, was not intended. (Columbia Wire Co. v. Boyce, (1900) 104 Fed. 172, 44 C. C. A. 588; Rowan v. Ide, (1901) 107 Fed. 161, 46 C. C. A. 214.) This resulted from the fact that the Act of 1900 amended the Act of 1891 and overlooked the Act of 1895. In view of this, the committee has restored the provisions of the Act of 1895 permitting an appeal from an interlocutory order 'refusing or dissolving,' or 'refusing to dissolve an injunction.' In this connection, it may be noted that by the Acts of 1891, 1895, and 1900 the cases in which appeals might be taken were those in which an appeal might be taken from a final decree to the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Act of 1906 (1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 291) removed this limitation by providing that the appeals might be taken in any case from any such order or decree, although the case might be one which upon final decree would go directly to the Supreme Court. To remove any doubt upon this point, the committee has added, immediately preceding the first proviso, the words 'notwithstanding an appeal in such case might upon final decree, under the statutes regulating the same, be taken directly to the Supreme Court.'" Report of Committee on Revision.

The Act of 1906 mentioned in the foregoing report is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 130. [Appellate and supervisory jurisdiction under the bankrupt act.] The circuit courts of appeals shall have the appellate and supervisory jurisdiction conferred upon them by the Act entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and all laws amendatory thereof, and shall exercise the same in the manner therein prescribed. [36 Stat. L. 1134.]

This section merely declares the appellate jurisdiction vested in the Circuit Court of Appeals by the Bankruptcy Act. of 1898 and the Acts amendatory thereof, and the manner of its exercise.

"The appellate and supervisory jurisdiction" to which this section refers is found in sections 24 and 25 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898, which appear, copiously annotated, in this Supplement, post, title BANKRUPTCY, and 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 593-604.

Sec. 131. [Appeals from the United States court for China.] The circuit court of appeals for the ninth circuit is empowered to hear and determine writs of error and appeals from the United States court for China, as provided in the Act entitled "An Act creating a United States court for China and prescribing the jurisdiction thereof," approved June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and six. [36 Stat. L. 1134.]

This section is merely declaratory of the appellate jurisdiction vested in the Circuit Court of Appeals for the ninth circuit by the Act creating a United States court for China. The reference in the text section is to section

3 of the Act of June 30, 1906, ch. 3934, 34 Stat. L. 815, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 294, also annotated post, title JUDICIARY, in this Supplement.

Sec. 132. [Allowance of appeals, etc.] Any judge of a circuit court of appeals, in respect of cases brought or to be brought before that court, shall have the same powers and duties as to allowances of appeals and writs of error, and the conditions of such allowances, as by law belong to the justices or judges in respect of other courts of the United States, respectively. [36 Stat. L. 1134.]

This section states what was the existing law, the changes made in the language being minor in character. The existing law was the last part of section 11 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 829, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 428.

SEC. 133. [Writs of error and appeals from the supreme courts of Arizona and New Mexico.] The circuit courts of appeals, in cases in which their judgments and decrees are made final by this title, shall have appellate jurisdiction, by writ of error or appeal, to review the judgments, orders, and decrees of the supreme courts of Arizona and New Mexico, as by this title they may have to review the judgments, orders, and decrees of the district courts; and for that purpose said Territories shall, by orders of the Supreme Court of the United States, to be made from time to time, be assigned to particular circuits. [36 Stat. L. 1134.]

This section is but a re-enactment of section 15 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of 1891, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 431, the changes made in the language used being necessary for the purposes of revision. The section states what was existing law.

The words "this title" in the text section mean "this Act," i. e., this Judicial Code.

Philippines. — See sec. 248, infra, p. 234. Porto Rico. — See sec. 244, infra, p. 233.

"Final by this title . . . of the district courts."—These words in the text section evidently indicate that the test of finality is to be found in section 128, supra, p. 195; for in section 15 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 431, the phrase was "final by this act," which could have referred only to section 6 of that act, and the appropriate provisions of the latter are now embodied in section 128, above cited.

SEC. 134. [Writs of error and appeals from district court for Alaska to circuit court of appeals for ninth circuit; court may certify questions to the Supreme Court. In all cases other than those in which a writ of error or appeal will lie direct to the Supreme Court of the United States as provided in section two hundred and forty-seven, in which the amount involved or the value of the subject-matter in controversy shall exceed five hundred dollars, and in all criminal cases, writs of error and appeals shall lie from the district court for Alaska or from any division thereof, to the circuit court of appeals for the ninth circuit, and the judgments, orders, and decrees of said court shall be final in all such cases. But whenever such circuit court of appeals may desire the instruction of the Supreme Court of the United States upon any question or proposition of law which shall have arisen in any such case, the court may certify such question or proposition to the Supreme Court, and thereupon the Supreme Court shall give its instruction upon the question or proposition certified to it, and its instructions shall be binding upon the circuit court of appeals. [36 Stat. L. 1134.]

This section is drawn from section 202 of the Criminal Code for Alaska, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 370, and from sections 504 and 505 of the Civil Code, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 147, 148. Judicial Code, sec. 247, referred to in the text is given infra, p. 234.

"The court may certify such question or proposition," etc.—The leading provision for certification to the Supreme Court is in Judicial Code, sec. 239, infra, p. 231, which was in section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of 1891, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 409. Similar provision is found in Judicial Code, sec. Judicial Code, sec. 252, infra, p. 237, which also appears in this Supplement, post, title BANKEUPTCT, as section 25d of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898, and is there annotated.

SEC. 135. [Appeals and writs of error from Alaska; where heard.] All appeals, and writs of error, and other cases, coming from the district court for the district of Alaska to the circuit court of appeals for the ninth circuit, shall be entered upon the docket and heard at San Francisco, California, or at Portland, Oregon, or at Seattle, Washington, as the trial court before whom the case was tried below shall fix and determine: Provided. That at any time before the hearing of any appeal, writ of error, or other case, the parties thereto, through their respective attorneys, may stipulate at which of the above-named places the same shall be heard, in which case the case shall be remitted to and entered upon the docket at the place so stipulated and shall be heard there. [36] Stat. L. 1135.

This is a re-enactment of the Act of Jan. 11, 1909, ch. 15, 35 St. L. 585, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 30.

The chief justice shall be entitled to receive an annual salary of six thousand five hundred dollars, and each of the other judges an annual salary of six thousand dollars, payable monthly, from the Treasury. [36 Stat. L. 1135.]

the judges provided in the Act of Feb. 12, 1903, ch. 547, 32 Stat. L. 825, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 198, being carried into the section.

SEC. 137. [Seal.] The Court of Claims shall have a seal, with such device as it may order. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1050, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 53.

SEC. 138. [Session; quorum.] The Court of Claims shall hold one annual session at the city of Washington, beginning on the first Monday in December and continuing as long as may be necessary for the prompt disposition of the business of the court. Any three of the judges of said court shall constitute a quorum, and may hold a court for the transaction of business: Provided, That the concurrence of three judges shall be necessary to the decision of any case. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. infra, p. 26 1052, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 54 (which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, Annot. 54.

infra, p. 250), as amended by the Act of June 23, 1874, ch. 468, 18 Stat. L. 252, 'Fed. Stat. Annot. 54.

SEC. 139. [Officers of the court.] The said court shall appoint a chief clerk, an assistant clerk, if deemed necessary, a bailiff, and a chief messenger. The clerks shall take an oath for the faithful discharge of their duties, and shall be under the direction of the court in the performance thereof; and for misconduct or incapacity they may be removed by it from office; but the court shall report such removals, with the cause thereof, to Congress, if in session, or if not, at the next session. The bailiff shall hold his office for a term of four years, unless sooner removed by the court for cause. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 1053, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 54, with no change except that, as in recent Appropriation Acts the messenger provided for in the Revised Statutes section is termed a chief, for the reason that additional messengers are now provided for the court, he is therefore so termed in the Judicial Code section. R. S. sec. 1053, above cited, is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 140. [Salaries of officers.] The salary of the chief clerk shall be three thousand five hundred dollars a year; of the assistant clerk two thousand five hundred dollars a year; of the bailiff one thousand five hundred dollars a year, and of the chief messenger one thousand dollars a year, payable monthly from the Treasury. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

Section 140 states the salaries provided in the last three or four Appropriation Acts for the officers authorized by R. S. sec. 1054, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 54, the latter section being expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. See, for example, the Appropriation Acts of May 22, 1908, ch. 186, 35 Stat. L. 244; of March 4, 1909, ch. 297, 35 Stat. L. 906, and of June 22, 1906, ch. 3514, 34 Stat. L. 448.

SEC. 141. [Clerk's bond.] The chief clerk shall give bond to the United States in such amount, in such form, and with such security as shall be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1056, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 54, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 142. [Contingent fund.] The said clerk shall have authority when he has given bond as provided in the preceding section, to disburse, under the direction of the court, the contingent fund which may from time to time be appropriated for its use; and his accounts shall be settled by the proper accounting officers of the Treasury in the same way as the accounts of other disbursing agents of the Government are settled. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1056, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 54, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 143. [Reports to Congress; copies for departments, etc.] On the first day of every regular session of Congress, the clerk of the Court of Claims shall transmit to Congress a full and complete statement of all the judgments rendered by the court during the previous year, stating the amounts thereof and the parties in whose favor they were rendered, together with a brief synopsis of the nature of the claims upon which they were rendered. At the end of every term of the court he shall transmit a copy of its decisions to the heads of departments; to the Solicitor, the Comptroller, and the Auditors of the Treasury; to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and of Indian Affairs; to the chiefs of bureaus, and to other officers charged with the adjustment of claims against the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 1057, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 55, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250; the only change consisting in the use of the word "regular" for "December" in the first line of the section, and in the omission of the word "and" at the beginning of the last sentence.

Sec. 144. [Members of Congress not to practice in the court.] Whoever, being elected or appointed a Senator, Member of, or Delegate to Congress, or a Resident Commissioner, shall, after his election or appointment, and either before or after he has qualified, and during his continuance in office, practice in the Court of Claims, shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars and imprisoned not more than two years; and shall, moreover, thereafter be incapable of holding any office of honor, trust, or profit under the Government of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section is a re-enactment and expansion of R. S. sec. 1058, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 55, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 145. [Jurisdiction.] The Court of Claims shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the following matters:

First. [Claims against the United States.] All claims (except for pensions) founded upon the Constitution of the United States or any law of Congress, upon any regulation of an Executive Department, upon any contract, express or implied, with the Government of the United States, or for damages, liquidated or unliquidated, in cases not sounding in tort, in respect of which claims the party would be entitled to redress against the United States either in a court of law, equity, or admiralty if the United States were suable: Provided, however, That nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to the said court jurisdiction to hear and determine claims growing out of the late civil war, and commonly known as "war claims," or to hear and determine other claims which, prior to March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, had been rejected or reported on adversely by any court, department, or commission authorized to hear and determine the same.

Second. [Set-offs.] All set-offs, counterclaims, claims for damages, whether liquidated or unliquidated, or other demands whatsoever on the part of the Government of the United States against any claimant against the Government in said court: Provided, That no suit against the Government of the United States, brought by any officer of the United States to recover fees for services alleged to have been performed for the United States, shall be allowed under this chapter until an account for said fees shall have been rendered and finally acted upon as required by law, unless the proper accounting officer of the Treasury fails to act finally thereon within six months after the account is received in said office.

Third. [Disbursing officers.] The claim of any paymaster, quartermaster, commissary of subsistence, or other disbursing officer of the United States, or of his administrators or executors, for relief from responsibility on account of loss by capture or otherwise, while in the line of his duty, of Government funds, vouchers, records, or papers in his charge, and for which such officer was and is held responsible. [36 Stat. L. 1136.]

This section states in concise language the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims as conferred by R. S. secs. 1059, 1069, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 55, 65, and the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch 359, sec. 1, 24 Stat. L. 505, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 80, all of which sections, together with the Act of June 27, 1898, ch. 503, 30 Stat. L. 494, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 82, are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

See also the provisions as to the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims in paragraph "Twentieth" of Judicial Code, sec. 24, supra,

The Act of Jan. 20, 1885, ch. 25, 23 Stat. L. 283, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 88, commonly known as the French Spoliation Claims Act, and the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 538, 26 Stat. L. 851, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 91, commonly known as the Indian Depredation Claims Act, have not been carried into this section, for the reason that neither Act is "one of a general nature, permanent in character." Section 2 of the former Act requires that suit shall be brought within two years after its passage, or the claims shall be forever barred. The latter Act not only requires that all claims shall be put in suit within three years after its passage or be barred, but there is a further provision that no suit shall be maintained for any depredation thereafter committed. The Acts will therefore remain in force outside of this section, without repeal, until all pending cases are finally disposed of, when they will become obsolete.

SEC. 146. [Judgments for set-off or counterclaims; how enforced.] Upon the trial of any cause in which any set-off, counterclaim, claim for damages, or other demand is set up on the part of the Government against any person making claim against the Government in said court, the court shall hear and determine such claim or demand both for and against the Government and claimant; and if upon the whole case it finds that the claimant is indebted to the Government it shall render judgment to that effect, and such judgment shall be final, with the right of appeal, as in other cases provided for by law. Any transcript of such judgment, filed in the clerk's office of any district court, shall be entered upon the records thereof, and shall thereby become and be a judgment of such court and be enforced as other judgments in such court are enforced. [36 Stat. L. 1137.]

Except for omission of reference to the Circuit Court, Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249, this section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1061, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 61, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 147. [Decree on accounts of disbursing officers.] Whenever the Court of Claims ascertains the facts of any loss by any paymaster, quartermaster, commissary of subsistence, or other disbursing officer, in the cases hereinbefore provided, to have been without fault or negligence on the part of such officer, it shall make a decree setting forth the amount thereof, and upon such decree the proper accounting officers of the Treasury shall allow to such officer the amount so decreed as a credit in the settlement of his accounts. [36 Stat. L. 1137.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1062, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 61, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Sec. 148. [Claims referred by departments.] When any claim or matter is pending in any of the executive departments which involves controverted questions of fact or law, the head of such department may transmit the same, with the vouchers, papers, documents and proofs pertaining thereto, to the Court of Claims and the same shall be there proceeded in under such rules as the court may adopt. When the facts and conclusions of law shall have been found, the court shall report its findings to the department by which it was transmitted for its guidance and action: Provided, however, That if it shall have been transmitted with the consent of the claimant, or if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court upon the facts established, that under existing laws or the provisions of this chapter it has jurisdiction to render judgment or decree thereon, it shall proceed to do so, in the latter case giving to either party such further opportunity for hearing as in its judgment justice shall require, and shall report its findings therein to the department by which the same was referred to said court. The Secretary of the Treasury may, upon the certificate of any auditor, or of the Comptroller of the Treasury, direct any claim or matter, of which, by reason of the subject matter or character, the said court might under existing laws, take jurisdiction on the voluntary action of the claimant, to be transmitted, with all the vouchers, papers, documents and proofs pertaining thereto, to the said court for trial and adjudication. [36 Stat. L. 1137.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 1063, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 62, sections 12 and 13 of the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, 24 Stat. L. 507, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 86, 87, and section 2 of the Bowman Act of March 3, 1883, ch. 116, 22 Stat. L. 485, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 77; all of which provisions are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 149. [Procedure in cases transmitted by departments.] All cases transmitted by the head of any department, or upon the certificate of any auditor, or of the Comptroller of the Treasury, according to the provisions of the preceding section, shall be proceeded in as other cases pending in the Court of Claims, and shall, in all respects, be subject to the same rules and regulations. [36 Stat. L. 1138.]

This section is a re-enactment, without material change, of R. S. sec. 1064, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 63, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 150. [Judgments in cases transmitted by departments; how paid.] The amount of any final judgment or decree rendered in favor of the claimant, in any case transmitted to the Court of Claims under the two preceding sections, shall be paid out of any specific appropriation applicable to the case, if any such there be; and where no such appropriation exists, the judgment or decree shall be paid in the same manner as other judgments of the said court. [36 Stat. L. 1138.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1065, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 64, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 151. [Either House of Congress may refer certain claims to court.] Whenever any bill, except for a pension, is pending in either House of Congress providing for the payment of a claim against the United States, legal or equitable, or for a grant, gift, or bounty to any person, the House in which such bill is pending may, for the investigation and determination of facts, refer the same to the Court of Claims, which shall proceed with the same in accordance with such rules as it may adopt and report to such House the facts in the case and the amount, where the same can be liquidated, including any facts bearing upon the question whether there has been delay or laches in presenting such claim or applying for such grant, gift, or bounty, and any facts bearing upon the question whether the bar of any statute of limitation should be removed or which shall be claimed to excuse the claimant for not having resorted to any established legal remedy, together with such conclusions as shall be sufficient to inform Congress of the nature and character of the demand, either as a claim, legal or equitable, or as a gratuity against the United States, and the amount, if any, legally or equitably due from the United States to the claimant: Provided, however, That if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court upon the facts established, that under existing laws or the provisions of this chapter, the subject matter of the bill is such that it has jurisdiction to render judgment or decree thereon, it shall proceed to do so, giving to either party such further opportunity for hearing as in its judgment justice shall require, and it shall report its proceedings therein to the House of Congress by which the same was referred to said court. [36 Stat. L. 1138.]

This section is a re-enactment, without material change, of the Act of June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. L. 409, which amended the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, sec. 14, 24 Stat. L. 507, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 87, the latter section being also expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

The Act given below is probably superseded by this section, but it is not mentioned among the Acts repealed in section 297, although that section does repeal, among others, section 14 of the Act of March 3, 1887, which is amended by the Act here set forth.

An Act To amend section fourteen of "An Act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven.

[Act of June 25, 1910, ch. 409.]

[Reference to Court of Claims of claims pending in Congress.] That section fourteen of the Act of March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, entitled "An Act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," be, and the same is hereby, amended by adding at the end thereof the words "together with such conclusions as shall be sufficient to inform Congress of the nature and character of the demand, either as a claim, legal or equitable, or as a gratuity, against the United States," so that when amended it shall read as follows:

This section is a re-enactment of provisions in R. S. sec. 1074, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 68, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The only changes are in the substitution of the words "Civil War" for the word "rebellion," and the omission of the provision making certain facts prima facie evidence of disloyalty.

SEC. 162. [Claims for proceeds arising from sales of abandoned property.] The Court of Claims shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the claims of those whose property was taken subsequent to June the first, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, under the provisions of the Act of Congress approved March twelfth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, entitled "An Act to provide for the collection of abandoned property and for the prevention of frauds in insurrectionary districts within the United States," and Acts amendatory thereof where the property so taken was sold and the net proceeds thereof were placed in the Treasury of the United States; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall return said net proceeds to the owners thereof, on the judgment of said court, and full jurisdiction is given to said court to adjudge said claims, any statutes of limitations to the contrary notwithstanding. This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 1077, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 69, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, the words "be the duty of the court to" being omitted, with the effect of prohibiting the court from authorizing the taking of testimony when the petition of the claimant does not furnish any ground for relief.

SEC. 166. [Examination of claimant.] The court may, at the instance of the attorney or solicitor appearing in behalf of the United States, make an order in any case pending therein, directing any claimant in such case to appear, upon reasonable notice, before any commissioner of the court and be examined on oath touching any or all matters pertaining to said claim. Such examination shall be reduced to writing by the said commissioner, and be returned to and filed in the court, and may, at the discretion of the attorney or solicitor of the United States appearing in the case, be read and used as evidence on the trial thereof. And if any claimant, after such order is made and due and reasonable notice thereof is given to him, fails to appear, or refuses to testify or answer fully as to all matters within his knowledge material to the issue, the court may, in its discretion, order that the said cause shall not be brought forward for trial until he shall have fully complied with the order of the court in the premises. Sec. 169. [Cross-examinations.] In taking testimony to be used in support of any claim, opportunity shall be given to the United States to file interrogatories, or by attorney to examine witnesses, under such regulations as said court shall prescribe; and like opportunity shall be afforded the claimant, in cases where testimony is taken on behalf of the United States, under like regulations. [36 Stat. L. 1140.]

SEC. 171. [Fees of commissioners, by whom paid.] When testimony is taken for the claimant, the fees of the commissioner before whom it is taken, and the cost of the commission and notice, shall be paid by such claimant; and when it is taken at the instance of the Government, such fees shall be paid out of the contingent fund provided for the Court of Claims, or other appropriation made by Congress for that purpose. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 1085, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 71, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250; the words "together with all postage incurred by the Assistant Attorney General" being omitted as obsolete, since all such business is entitled to be sent through the mails under the official frank of the department.

SEC. 172. [Claims forfeited for fraud.] Any person who corruptly practices or attempts to practice any fraud against the United States in the proof, statement, establishment, or allowance of any claim or of any part of any claim against the United States shall, ipso facto, forfeit the same to the Government; and it shall be the duty of the Court of Claims, in such cases, to find specifically that such fraud was practiced or attempted to be practiced, and thereupon to give judgment that such claim is forfeited to the Government, and that the claimant be forever barred from prosecuting the same. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1086, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 71, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 173. [Claims under Act of June 16, 1874.] No claim shall be allowed by the accounting officers under the provisions of the Act of Congress approved June sixteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, or by the Court of Claims, or by Congress, to any person where such claimant, or those under whom he claims, shall willfully, knowingly, and with intent to defraud the United States, have claimed more than was justly due in respect of such claim, or presented any false evidence to Congress, or to any department or court, in support thereof. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment of section 2 of the Act of April 30, 1878, ch. 77, 20 Stat. L. 524, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 19, the only change being the omission of the word "hereafter" in the first line as redundant.

SEC. 174. [New trial on motion of claimant.] When judgment is rendered against any claimant, the court may grant a new trial for any reason which, by the rules of common law or chancery in suits between individuals, would furnish sufficient ground for granting a new trial. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1087, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 71, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 175. [New trial on motion of United States.] The Court of Claims, at any time while any claim is pending before it, or on appeal from it, or within two years next after the final disposition of such claim, may, on motion, on behalf of the United States, grant a new trial and stay the payment of any judgment therein, upon such evidence, cumulative or otherwise, as shall satisfy the court that any fraud, wrong, or injustice in the premises has been done to the United States; but until an order is made staying the payment of a judgment, the same shall be payable and paid as now provided by law. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1088, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 72, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Sec. 176. [Cost of printing record.] There shall be taxed against the losing party in each and every cause pending in the Court of Claims the cost of printing the record in such case, which shall be collected, except when the judgment is against the United States, by the clerk of said court and paid into the Treasury of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is drawn from a provision in the Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 105, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 293, modified so as to apply only to the taxing of costs and the printing of records in the Court of Claims. In so far as that provision applies to the Supreme Court, it has been revised in Judicial Code, sec. 254, infra, p. 238.

SEC. 177. [No interest on claims.] No interest shall be allowed on any claim up to the time of the rendition of judgment thereon by the Court of Claims, unless upon a contract expressly stipulating for the payment of interest. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1091, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 73, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 178. [Effect of payment of judgment.] The payment of the amount due by any judgment of the Court of Claims, and of any interest thereon allowed by law, as provided by law, shall be a full discharge to the United States of all claim and demand touching any of the matters involved in the controversy. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1092, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 74, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 179. [Final judgments a bar.] Any final judgment against the claimant on any claim prosecuted as provided in this chapter shall forever bar any further claim or demand against the United States arising out of the matters involved in the controversy. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 1093, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 74, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 180. [Debtors to the United States may have amount due ascertained.] Whenever any person shall present his petition to the Court of Claims alleging that he is or has been indebted to the United States as an officer or agent thereof, or by virtue of any contract therewith, or that he is the guarantor, or surety, or personal representative of any officer or agent or contractor so indebted, or that he or the person for whom he is such surety, guarantor, or personal representative has held any office or agency under the United States, or entered into any contract therewith, under which it may be or has been claimed that an indebtedness to the United States had arisen and exists, and that he or the person he represents has applied to the proper department of the Government requesting that the account of such office, agency, or indebtedness may be adjusted and settled, and that three years have elapsed from the date of such application, and said account still remains unsettled and unadjusted, and that no suit upon the same has been brought by the United States, said court shall, due notice first being given to the head of said department and to the Attorney General of the United States, proceed to hear the parties and to ascertain the amount, if any, due the United States on said account. The Attorney General shall represent the United States at the hear-The court may postpone the same from time to time whening of said cause. ever justice shall require. The judgment of said court or of the Supreme Court of the United States, to which an appeal shall lie, as in other cases, as to the amount due, shall be binding and conclusive upon the parties. The payment of such amount so found due by the court shall discharge such obligation. An action shall accrue to the United States against such principal, or surety, or representative to recover the amount so found due, which may be brought at any time within three years after the final judgment of said court; and unless suit shall be brought within said time, such claim and the claim on the original indebtedness shall be forever barred. The provisions of section one hundred and sixty-six shall apply to cases under this section. [36 Stat. L. 1141.]

This section is drawn from sections 3 and 8 of the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 83, 85, which sections are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250; the last sentence of this section being derived from section 8 of the Act, which makes applicable to suits brought under the Act the provisions of R. S. sec. 1080, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 70, which is revised in Judicial Code, sec. 166, supra, p. 206

SEC. 181. [Appeals.] The plaintiff or the United States, in any suit brought under the provision of the section last preceding, shall have the same right of appeal as is conferred under sections two hundred and forty-two and two hundred and forty-three; and such right shall be exercised only within the time and in the manner therein prescribed. [36 Stat. L. 1142.]

This section is drawn from section 9 of the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 85, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. Only such changes are made as were necessary for proper revision.

SEC. 182. [Appeals in Indian cases.] In any case brought in the Court of Claims under any Act of Congress by which that court is authorized to render a judgment or decree against the United States, or against any Indian tribe or any Indians, or against any fund held in trust by the United States for any Indian tribe or for any Indians, the claimant, or the United States, or the tribe of Indians, or other party in interest shall have the same right of appeal as is conferred under sections two hundred and forty-two and two hundred and forty-three; and such right shall be exercised only within the time and in the manner therein prescribed. [36 Stat. L. 1142.]

This section is evidently a re-enactment of section 10 of the Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 538, 26 Stat. L. 854, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 100, with only such changes as were necessary for proper revision. See the note to Judicial Code, sec. 145, supra, p. 200.

SEC. 183. [Attorney General's report to Congress.] The Attorney General shall report to Congress, at the beginning of each regular session, the suits under section one hundred and eighty, in which a final judgment or decree has been rendered, giving the date of each and a statement of the costs taxed in each case. [36 Stat. L. 1142.]

This section is substantially a re-enactment of section 11 of the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, 24 Stat. L. 507, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 86, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The word "regular" before the word "session" has been added, in the belief that Congress did not mean to require a report at the beginning of a special session. The dropping of the words "of Congress" and the substitution of the words "section one hundred and eighty" for "this act" make no change in the meaning of the section, SEC. 184. [Loyalty a jurisdictional fact in certain cases.] In any case of a claim for supplies or stores taken by or furnished to any part of the military or naval forces of the United States for their use during the late Civil War, the petition shall aver that the person who furnished such supplies or stores, or from whom such supplies or stores were taken, did not give any aid or comfort to said rebellion, but was throughout that war loyal to the Government of the United States, and the fact of such loyalty shall be a jurisdictional fact; and unless the said court shall, on a preliminary inquiry, find that the person who furnished such supplies or stores, or from whom the same were taken as aforesaid, was loyal to the Government of the United States throughout said war, the court shall not have jurisdiction of such cause, and the same shall, without further proceedings, be dismissed. [36 Stat. L. 1142.]

This section is a re-enactment of section 4 of the Bowman Act of March 3, 1883, ch. 116, 22 Stat. L. 485, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 79, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The only change made is in the substitution of the words "Civil War" for the words "war for the suppression of the rebellion," a similar change being made in Judicial Code, sec. 161, supra, p. 205.

SEC. 185. [Attorney General to appear for the defense.] The Attorney-General, or his assistants under his direction, shall appear for the defense and protection of the interests of the United States in all cases which may be transmitted to the Court of Claims under the provisions of this chapter, with the same power to interpose counter claims, offsets, defenses for fraud practiced or attempted to be practiced by claimants, and other defenses, in like manner as he is required to defend the United States in said court. [36 Stat. L. 1142.]

This section is drawn from section 5 of the Bowman Act of March 3, 1883, ch. 116, 22 Stat. L. 486, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 79, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The changes consist in the omission of the word "now" before the word "required," and in the substitution of the words "the provisions of this chapter" for the words "this act." The effect of this substitution is to require the Attorney General to appear in all cases arising under the provisions of this chapter instead of cases arising under the Bowman Act, and to interpose the proper defenses to suit.

SEC. 186. [Persons not to be excluded as witnesses on account of color or because of interest; plaintiff may be witness for government.] No person shall be excluded as a witness in the Court of Claims on account of color, [or] because he or she is a party to or interested in the cause or proceeding; and any plaintiff or party in interest may be examined as a witness on the part of the Government. [36 Stat. L. 1143.]

This section is a combination of R. S. sec. 1078, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 69; of section 6 of the Bowman Act of March 3, 1883, ch. 116, 22 Stat. L. 486, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 79; and of section 8 of the Tucker Act of March 3, 1887, ch. 359, 24 Stat. L. 506, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 85. All of those statutes are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. And the text section is made applicable to all cases in the Court of Claims.

SEC. 187. [Reports of court to Congress.] Reports of the Court of Claims to Congress, under sections one hundred and forty-eight and one hundred and fifty-one, if not finally acted upon during the session at which they are reported, shall be continued from session to session and from Congress to Congress until the same shall be finally acted upon. [36 Stat. L. 1143.]

This section is drawn from sec. 7 of the Bowman Act of March 3, 1883, ch. 116, 22 Stat. L. 486, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 79, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 188. [Court of Customs Appeals; appointment and salary of judges; quorum; circuit and district judges may act in place of judge disqualified, etc.] There shall be a United States Court of Customs Appeals, which shall consist of a presiding judge and four associate judges, each of whom shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall receive a salary of seven thousand dollars a year. The presiding judge shall be so designated in the order of appointment and in the commission issued to him by the President; and the associate judges shall have precedence according to the date of their commissions. Any three members of said court shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of three members shall be necessary to any decision thereof. In case of a vacancy or of the temporary inability or disqualification, for any reason, of one or two of the judges of said court, the President may, upon the request of the presiding judge of said court, designate any qualified United States circuit or district judge or judges to act in his or their place; and such circuit or district judges shall be duly qualified to so act. [36 Stat. L. 1143.

This section states in concise terms what was the existing law, although the provisions of the section are not in the order in which they appear in the original section 28 cited ' 36 Stat. L. 214.

in the footnote on this page. The salaries of the judges are as fixed by the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of Feb. 25, 1910, ch. 62,

SEC. 189. [Court to be always open for business; terms may be held in any circuit; when expenses of judges to be paid.] The said Court of Customs Appeals shall always be open for the transaction of business, and sessions thereof may, in the discretion of the court, be held in the several judicial circuits, and at such places as said court may from time to time designate. Any judge who, in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter, shall attend a session of said court at any place other than the city of Washington, shall be paid, upon his written and itemized certificate, by the marshal of the district in which the court shall be held, his actual and necessary expenses incurred for travel and attendance, and the actual necessary expenses of one stenographic clerk who may accompany him; and such payments shall be allowed the marshal in the settlement of his accounts with the United States. [36 Stat: L. 1143.]

This section is made up of two provisions of the original law, the only change being in the substitution of the word "chapter" for the word "act."

SEC. 190. [Marshal of the court; appointment, salary, and duties.] Said court shall have the services of a marshal, with the same duties and powers, under the regulations of the court, as are now provided for the marshal of the Supreme Court of the United States, so far as the same may be applicable. Said services within the District of Columbia shall be performed by a marshal to be appointed by and to hold office during the pleasure of the court, who shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum. Said services outside of the District of Columbia shall be performed by the United States marshals in and for the districts where sessions of said court may be held; and to this end said marshals shall be the marshals of said court. The marshal of said court, for the District of Columbia, is authorized to purchase, under the direction of the presiding judge, such books, periodicals, and stationery, as may be necessary for the use of said court; and such expenditures shall be allowed and paid by the Secretary of the Treasury upon claim duly made and approved by said presiding judge. [36 Stat. L. 1144.]

This section transposes some of the clauses in the original law, and the word "shall" is substituted for the word "to."

SEC. 191. [Clerk of the court; appointment, salary, and duties.] The court shall appoint a clerk, whose office shall be in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, and who shall perform and exercise the same duties and powers in regard to all matters within the jurisdiction of said court as are now exercised and performed by the clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States, so far as the same may be applicable. The salary of the clerk shall be three thousand five hundred dollars per annum, which sum shall be in full payment for all service rendered by such clerk; and all fees of any kind whatever, and all costs shall be by him turned into the United States Treasury. clerk shall not be appointed by the court or any judge thereof as a commissioner, master, receiver, or referee. The costs and fees in the said court shall be fixed and established by said court in a table of fees to be adopted and approved by the Supreme Court of the United States within four months after the organization of said court: Provided, That the costs and fees so fixed shall not, with respect to any item, exceed the costs and fees charged in the Supreme Court of the United States; and the same shall be expended, accounted for, and paid over to the Treasury of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1144.]

The salary of the clerk is as fixed by the Deficiencies Appropriation Act of Feb. 25, 1910, ch. 62, 36 Stat. L. 214.

SEC. 192. [Assistant clerk, stenographic clerks, and reporter; appointment, salary, and duties.] In addition to the clerk, the court may appoint an assistant clerk at a salary of two thousand dollars per annum, five stenographic clerks at a salary of one thousand six hundred dollars per annum each, one stenographic reporter at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars per annum, and a messenger at a salary of eight hundred and forty dollars per annum, all payable in equal monthly installments, and all of whom, including the clerk, shall hold office during the pleasure of and perform such duties as are assigned them by the court. Said reporter shall prepare and transmit to the Secretary of the Treasury once a week in time for publication in the Treasury Decisions copies of all decisions rendered to that date by said court, and prepare and transmit, under the direction of said court, at least once a year, reports of said decisions rendered to that date, constituting a volume, which shall be printed by the Treasury Department in such numbers and distributed or sold in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury shall direct. [36 Stat. L. 1144.]

The salaries of the various officers and clerks have been revised in accordance with the changes made therein by the Deficiencies Appropriation Act cited in the last preceding note.

SEC. 193. [Rooms for holding court to be provided; bailiffs and messengers.] The marshal of said court for the District of Columbia and the marshals of the several districts in which said Court of Customs Appeals may be held shall, under the direction of the Attorney General, and with his approval, provide such rooms in the public buildings of the United States as may be necessary for said court: Provided, That in case proper rooms can not be provided in such buildings, then the said marshals, with the approval of the Attorney-General, may, from time to time, lease such rooms as may be necessary for said court. The bailiffs and messengers of said court shall be allowed the same compensation for their respective services as are allowed for similar services in the existing district courts. In no case shall said marshals secure other rooms than those regularly occupied by existing district courts, or other public officers, except where such can not, by reason of actual occupancy or use, be occupied or used by said Court of Customs Appeals. [36 Stat. L. 1144.]

The only changes made by this section are the omission of the words "of the United States" after the words "Attorney General" and the breaking of the section into more sentences.

SEC. 194. [To be a court of record; to prescribe form and style of seal, and establish rules and regulations; may affirm, modify, or reverse and remand case, ctc.] The said Court of Customs Appeals shall be a court of record, with jurisdiction as in this chapter established and limited. It shall prescribe the form and style of its seal, and the form of its writs and other process and procedure, and exercise such powers conferred by law as may be conformable and necessary to the exercise of its jurisdiction. It shall have power to establish all rules and regulations for the conduct of the business of the court, and as may be needful for the uniformity of decisions within its jurisdiction as conferred by law. It shall have power to review any decision or matter within its jurisdiction, and may affirm, modify, or reverse the same and remand the case with such orders as may seem to it proper in the premises, which shall be executed accordingly. [36 Stat. L. 1145.]

The repeating of the name of the court at the beginning of the section, the substitution of the words "in this chapter" for the word "hereinafter," and the breaking of the section into more sentences make no change in the existing law.

SEC. 195. [Final decisions of Board of General Appraisers to be reviewed only by Customs Court.] The Court of Customs Appeals established by this chapter shall exercise exclusive appellate jurisdiction to review by appeal, as herein provided, final decisions by a Board of General Appraisers in all cases as to the construction of the law and the facts respecting the classification of merchandise and the rate of duty imposed thereon under such classification, and the fees and charges connected therewith, and all appealable questions as to the jurisdiction of said board, and all appealable questions as to the laws and regulations governing the collection of the customs revenues; and the judgments and decrees of said Court of Customs Appeals shall be final in all such cases. [36 Stat. L. 1145.]

The changes consist in the substitution of the word "chapter" for "act" and the word "herein" for the words "in this act."

SEC. 196. [Other courts deprived of jurisdiction in customs cases; pending cases excepted.] After the organization of said court, no appeal shall be taken or allowed from any Board of United States General Appraisers to any other court, and no appellate jurisdiction shall thereafter be exercised or allowed by any other courts in cases decided by said Board of United States General Appraisers; but all appeals allowed by law from such Board of General Appraisers shall be subject to review only in the Court of Customs Appeals hereby established, according to the provisions of this chapter: Provided, That nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to deprive the Supreme Court of the United States of jurisdiction to hear and determine all customs cases which have heretofore been certified to said court from the United States circuit courts of appeals on applications for writs of certiorari or otherwise, nor to review by writ of certiorari any customs case heretofore decided or now pending and hereafter decided by any circuit court of appeals, provided application for said writ be made within six months after August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine: Provided further, That all customs cases decided by a circuit or district court of the United States or a court of a Territory of the United States prior to said date above mentioned, and which have not been removed from said courts by appeal or writ of error, and all such cases theretofore submitted for decision in said courts and remaining undecided may be reviewed on appeal at the instance of either party by the United States Court of Customs Appeals, provided such appeal be taken within one year from the date of the entry of the order, judgment, or decrees sought to be reviewed. [36 Stat. L. 1145.]

The changes made by this section consist in the substitution of the word "chapter" for "act" and the words "August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine," for the words "the passage of this act." This was deemed necessary in order to limit, as provided in the original. Act, the time within which cases might go to the Supreme Court.

SEC. 197. [Transfer to Customs Court of pending cases; completion of testimony.] Immediately upon the organization of the Court of Customs Appeals, all cases within the jurisdiction of that court pending and not submitted for decision in any of the United States circuit courts of appeals, United States circuit, territorial or district courts, shall, with the record and samples therein, be certified by said courts to said Court of Customs Appeals for further proceedings in accordance herewith: Provided, That where orders for the taking of further testimony before a referee have been made in any of such cases, the taking of such testimony shall be completed before such certification. [36 Stat. L. 1145.]

This section makes no change in the amendatory Act cited in the foot note at the beginning of this chapter, supra, p. 211.

SEC. 198. [Appeals from Board of General Appraisers; time within which to be taken; record to be transmitted to Customs Court.] If the importer, owner, consignee, or agent of any imported merchandise, or the collector or Secretary of the Treasury, shall be dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of General Appraisers as to the construction of the law and the facts respecting the classification of such merchandise and the rate of duty imposed thereon under such classification, or with any other appealable decision of said board, they, or either of them, may, within sixty days next after the entry of such decree or judgment, and not afterwards, apply to the Court of Customs Appeals for a review of the questions of law and fact involved in such decision: Provided. That in Alaska and in the insular and other outside possessions of the United States ninety days shall be allowed for making such application to the Court of Customs Appeals. Such application shall be made by filing in the office of the clerk of said court a concise statement of errors of law and fact complained of; and a copy of such statement shall be served on the collector, or on the importer, owner, consignee, or agent, as the case may be. Thereupon the court shall immediately order the Board of General Appraisers to transmit to said court the record and evidence taken by them, together with the certified statement of the facts involved in the case and their decision thereon; and all the evidence taken by and before said board shall be competent evidence before said Court of Customs Appeals. The decision of said Court of Customs Appeals shall be final, and such cause shall be remanded to said Board of General Appraisers for further proceedings to be taken in pursuance of such determination. [36 Stat. L. 1146.]

See note to the last preceding section.

SEC. 199. [Records filed in Customs Court to be at once placed on calendar; calendar to be called every sixty days. Immediately upon receipt of any record transmitted to said court for determination the clerk thereof shall place the same upon the calendar for hearing and submission; and such calendar shall be called and all cases thereupon submitted, except for good cause shown, at least once every sixty days: Provided, That such calendar need not be called during the months of July and August of any year. [36 Stat. L. 1146.]

have a seal of such form and style as the court may prescribe. The said court shall be composed of five judges, to be from time to time designated and assigned thereto by the Chief Justice of the United States, from among the circuit judges of the United States, for the period of five years, except that in the first instance the court shall be composed of the five additional circuit judges referred to in the next succeeding section, who shall be designated by the President to serve for one, two, three, four, and five years, respectively, in order that the period of designation of one of the said judges shall expire in each year thereafter. In case of the death, resignation, or termination of assignment of any judge so designated, the Chief Justice shall designate a circuit judge to fill the vacancy so caused and to serve during the unexpired period for which the original designation was made. After the year nineteen hundred and fourteen no circuit judge shall be redesignated to serve in the Commerce Court until the expiration of at least one year after the expiration of the period of his last previous designation. The judge first designated for the five-year period shall be the presiding judge of said court, and thereafter the judge senior in designation shall be the presiding judge. The associate judges shall have precedence and shall succeed to the place and powers of the presiding judge whenever he may be absent or incapable of acting in the order of the date of their designations. Four of said judges shall constitute a quorum, and at least majority of the court shall concur in all decisions. Each of the judges during the period of his service in the Commerce Court shall, on account of the regular sessions of the court being held in the city of Washington, receive in addition to his salary as circuit judge an expense allowance at the rate of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum. [36 Stat. L. 1146.]

SEC. 201. [Additional circuit judges; appointment and assignment.] The five additional circuit judges authorized by the Act to create a Commerce Court, and for other purposes, approved June eighteenth, nineteen hundred and ten, shall hold office during good behavior, and from time to time shall be designated and assigned by the Chief Justice of the United States for service in the district court of any district, or the circuit court of appeals for any circuit, or in the Commerce Court, and when so designated and assigned for service in a district court or circuit court of appeals shall have the powers and jurisdiction in this Act conferred upon a circuit judge in his circuit. [36 Stat. L. 1147.]

SEC. 202. [Officers of the court; clerk, marshal, etc.; salaries, etc.] The court shall also have a clerk and a marshal, with the same duties and powers, so far as they may be appropriate and are not altered by rule of the court, as are now possessed by the clerk and marshal, respectively, of the Supreme Court of the United States. The offices of the clerk and marshal of the court shall be in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia. The judges of the court shall appoint the clerk and marshal, and may also appoint, if they find it necessary, a deputy clerk and deputy marshal; and such clerk, marshal, deputy clerk, and deputy marshal, shall hold office during the pleasure of the court. The salary of the clerk shall be four thousand dollars per annum; the salary of the marshal three thousand dollars per annum; the salary of the deputy clerk two thousand five hundred dollars per annum; and the salary of the deputy marshal two thousand five hundred dollars per annum. The said clerk and marshal may, with the approval of the court, employ all requisite assistance. The costs and fees in said court shall be established by the court in a table thereof, approved by the Supreme Court of the United States, within four months after the organization of the court; but such costs and fees shall in no case exceed those charged in the Supreme Court of the United States, and shall be accounted for and paid into the Treasury of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1147.]

SEC. 203. [Court to be always open for business; sessions of, to be held in Washington and elsewhere.] The Commerce Court shall always be open for the transaction of business. Its regular sessions shall be held in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia; but the powers of the court or of any judge thereof, or of the clerk, marshal, deputy clerk, or deputy marshal, may be exercised anywhere in the United States; and for expedition of the work of the court and the avoidance of undue expense or inconvenience to suitors the court ahall hold sessions in different parts of the United States as may be found desirable. The actual and necessary expenses of the judges, clerk, marshal, deputy clerk, and deputy marshal of the court incurred for travel and attendance elsewhere than in the city of Washington shall be paid upon the written and itemized certificate of such judge, clerk, marshal, deputy clerk, or deputy marshal, by the marshal of the court, and shall be allowed to him in the settlement of his accounts with the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1147.]

SEC. 204. [Marshals to provide rooms for holding court outside of Washington.] The United States marshals of the several districts outside of the city of Washington in which the Comerce Court may hold its sessions shall provide, under the direction and with the approval of the Attorney General, such rooms in the public buildings of the United States as may be necessary for the court's use; but in case proper rooms can not be provided in such public buildings, said marshals, with the approval of the Attorney General, may then lease from time to time other necessary rooms for the court. [36 Stat. L. 1148.]

SEC. 205. [Assignment of judges to other duty; vacancies, how filled.] If, at any time, the business of the Commerce Court does not require the services of all the judges, the Chief Justice of the United States may, by writing, signed by him and filed in the Department of Justice, terminate the assignment of any of the judges or temporarily assign him for service in any district court or circuit court of appeals. In case of illness or other disability of any judge assigned to the Commerce Court the Chief Justice of the United States may assign any other circuit judge of the United States to act in his place, and may terminate such assignment when the exigency therefor shall cease; and any circuit judge so assigned to act in place of such judge shall, during his assignment, exercise all the powers and perform all the functions of such judge. [36 Stat. L. 1148.]

SEC. 206. [Powers of court and judges; writs, process, procedure, etc.] In all cases within its jurisdiction the Commerce Court, and each of the judges assigned thereto, shall, respectively, have and may exercise any and all of the powers of a district court of the United States and of the judges of said court, respectively, so far as the same may be appropriate to the effective exercise of the jurisdiction hereby conferred. The Commerce Court may issue all writs and process appropriate to the full exercise of its jurisdiction and powers and may prescribe the form thereof. It may also, from time to time, establish such rules and regulations concerning pleading, practice, or procedure in cases or matters within its jurisdiction as to the court shall seem wise and proper. Its orders, writs, and process may run, be served, and be returnable anywhere in the United States; and the marshal and deputy marshal of said court and also the United States marshals and deputy marshals in the several districts of the United States shall have like powers and be under like duties to act for and in behalf of said court as pertain to United States marshals and deputy marshals generally when acting under like conditions concerning suits or matters in the district courts of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1148.]

Power of single rederat jungs. — Collection water this section, in Ew p. Metropolitan Water Co., (1911) 220 U. S. 539, 544, 31 S. Ct. 600, and Chief Justice White said: "Limitation Limitation of the Collection Power of single federal judge. - Construtions are unequivocally imposed upon the power of the single justice or judge to act in the character of case to which the provision refers. They are, a, to receive an application for an interlocutory injunction in the character of case stated in the section; b, within the period specified in the section to grant a temporary restraining order 'if of opinion that irreparable loss or damage would result to the complainant unless a temporary restraining order is granted; 'and, c, to 'immediately call to his assistance to hear and determine the application [for an interlocutory injunction] two other judges.' It is to the hearing thus provided for that the notice must relate which is to be given to the Governor and to the Attorney General of the State and 'such other persons as may be defendants in the suit.' It is the hearing before the court thus constituted also that is required to be expedited; and the appeal authorized by the section to be taken directly to this court 'from the order granting or denying, after notice and hearing, an inter-locutory injunction is manifestly an appeal from the expedited hearing had before the court consisting of three judges. We find no expression of or implication anywhere in the section justifying the assumption that there was an intention on the part of Congress that the single justice or judge to whom the application for the interlocutory injunction should be presented need not call to his assistance two other judges to pass upon the application, in the event that he was of opinion that the claim of the unconstitutionality of the statute was untenable. On the contrary, the statute evidences the purpose of Congress that the application for the interlocutory injunc-tion should be heard before the enlarged court; whether the claim of unconstitutionality be or be not meritorious, as the appeal allowed to this court is from an order denying as well as from an order granting an injunction. Congress having declared that the merits of the application for an interlocutory injunction, such as that applied for in the case with which we are concerned, should be considered and determined by a tribunal consisting of three judges constituted as pro-vided in the act, it results that a tribunal not so constituted did not possess jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the right to such injunction." Hence, where a district judge acting as a circuit judge had issued a restraining order in a case where an interlocutory injunction was sought under the text section, and had subsequently vacated the re-straining order and denied the application for injunction, refusing a request to call to his assistance two other judges, the Supreme Court, in the case above cited, granted a writ of mandamus, at the instance of the complainant in the suit, directing the judge to annul his order vacating the restraining order and denying the injunction, "and that said judge or such other judge of the said Circuit Court as may hear and determine the application for an interlocutory injunction call to his assistance two other judges, as provided by " the text section.

Act of March 3, 1911.

SEC. 207. [Jurisdiction of the court.] The Commerce Court shall have the jurisdiction possessed by circuit courts of the United States and the judges thereof immediately prior to June eighteenth, nineteen hundred and ten, over all cases of the following kinds:

First. All cases for the enforcement, otherwise than by adjudication and collection of a forfeiture or penalty or by infliction of criminal punishment, of any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission other than for the payment of money.

Second. Cases brought to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend in whole or in part any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Third. Such cases as by section three of the Act entitled "An Act to further regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States," approved February nineteenth, nineteen hundred and three, are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States.

Fourth. All such mandamus proceedings as under the provisions of section twenty or section twenty-three of the Act entitled "An Act to regulate commerce," approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, as amended, are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States.

Nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed as enlarging the jurisdiction now possessed by the circuit courts of the United States or the judges thereof, that is hereby transferred to and vested in the Commerce Court.

The jurisdiction of the Commerce Court over cases of the foregoing classes shall be exclusive; but this chapter shall not affect the jurisdiction possessed by any circuit or district court of the United States over cases or proceedings of a kind not within the above-enumerated classes. [36 Stat. L. 1148.]

The first opinion rendered by the Commerce Court is in the case of Procter, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1911) 188 Fed. 221, which was a petition by Procter & Gamble Co. against the United States and others to set aside an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission (19 Int. Com. Rep. 556), dismissing the petitioner's complaint which sought to have the commission annul a provision of the Uniform Demurrage Code, requiring privately owned cars while standing on private tracks to pay demurrage under certain circumstances. petitioner also prayed the court to enjoin the respondent railroads from collecting the demurrage charge, and that they be required to repay to the petitioner the sums which had been wrongfully collected from it under the rule.

The United States moved to dismiss the petition on the ground that the Commerce Court had no jurisdiction in the premises; or that, if it had, no cause of action was made out which entitled the petitioner to relief. And in this motion the Interstate Commerce Commission and the several railroads summoned as respondents joined.

On the jurisdictional question, Judge Archbald, speaking for the court, said: "The jurisdiction of this court is denied on the ground that the petitioner is a shipper, and the Interstate Commerce Commission having merely dismissed the complaint which was made to it, and granted no affirmative relief, that there is nothing in the order of dismissal which it entered that affords any basis for action here. Or, in other words, that it is only the carrier against which an order is made in favor of the shipper that can bring the case for review into this court; the shipper being concluded by the action of the commission, whatever it may chance to be. This is a serious question, which merits careful consideration and is not altogether easy to solve.

"By the Act by which the Commerce Court was created (Act June 18, 1910, ch. 309, 36 Stat. L. 539), it was given 'the jurisdiction now possessed by Circuit Courts of the United. States and the judges thereof' of, inter alia, 'cases brought to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend in whole or in part any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.' It was also therein further provided that 'in all cases within its jurisdiction the Commerce Court and each of the judges assigned thereto shall respectively have and may exercise any and all the powers of a Circuit Court of the United States, and of the judges of said court respectively, so far as the same may be appropriate to the effective exercise of the jurisdiction hereby conferred;' and, conversely, that nothing in the Act should be construed as enlarging the jurisdiction at the time possessed by said Circuit Courts, or the judges thereof, thereby transferred to and vested in the Commerce Court; the jurisdiction, however, so far as conferred, to be exclusive, and so far as not conferred being reserved. The question, then, is whether upon any recognized ground of equity practice the present petitioner, under the law as it previously stood, would have had the right to apply by bill to a Circuit Court of the United States to set aside the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission dismissing its complaint, and to enjoin the enforcement by the railroads of the demurrage charge which in effect was thereby approved.

"It is of no significance in this connection, nor of any assistance in the solution of the question, that suits in this court to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend any order of the commission are required to be brought against the United States. It is just as consistent that the United States should be the respondent in cases brought for this purpose by the shipper as in cases brought by the carrier; the government in each case standing for the order of the commission which it is thus appointed to justify and defend.

"Neither does it detract from the jurisdiction of this court that, under the law as it previously stood, the venue of suits brought in the Circuit Courts of the United States against the commission to set aside its orders was fixed in each case in the district where the carrier against which the order was made had its principal operating office; jurisdiction to hear and determine such suits being in terms vested in the courts of such district. Act June 29, 1906, ch. 3591, sec. 16, 34 Stat. L. 592, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 268. This was a favor to the carrier adversely affected by the order. And according to the law at the time, the commission being the respondent, provision had to be made for jurisdiction over it by the courts of the various districts throughout the country where it was liable to be summoned. It was to meet this situation that jurisdiction was given in terms over suits of the character mentioned to the courts of the district where the carrier against which the order was made had its principal office. Nothing more was intended, and nothing more is to be made out of this provision of the law. Certainly nothing adverse to possible suits by others than the carrier is to be thereby implied.

"The real argument against the right of suit, where the complaint of a shipper has been dismissed, is that the denial of relief by the commission is not an order of which the courts can lay hold. Such an order, it is urged, must be one specifically requiring that something shall or shall not be done before this is the case. In Peavey v. Union Pac-R. Co., (1910) 176 Fed. 409, it is said:

"'A careful search of the Interstate Commerce Act discloses no limitation of the parties who may maintain suits to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend an order of the commission. to those who were parties to the proceedings before it, upon which the order was based. The proceeding in court is not an appeal; it is a plenary suit in equity. . . The determination of the question what parties may maintain such suits is left by the . . . Act to the general rules and practice in equity, and under them any party whose rights or property are in danger of irreparable injury from an unauthorized order of the commission may appeal to a federal court in equity for relief."

"There was an order of the commission in that case, however, which prohibited the railroads from paying to complainants, and others who were owners of elevators located upon their lines, any compensation for the elevation of grain in transit, so that the law was unquestionably met so far as there being an order is concerned; and the case therefore decided nothing more than that the right to resort to the courts is not confined to the carrier, but extends to every one injuriously affected by the order of the commission, even though not a party to the proceedings before it in which the order was made. To that extent, but no further, it is pertinent here.

"Putting aside, however, for the moment, the provisions of the statute, and considering the case as though it had not been passed, it is clear that a shipper would have been entitled, in one form or another, to redress in court against an unjust and unlawful charge or practice imposed by a carrier, such as the one here is alleged to be. And it would have been permissible, therefore, for the Procter & Gamble Company denying the right of the carrier to make this demurrage charge, to have refused to pay it and compel the carriers to bring suit therefor; or in view of the complications to which this would give rise, to say nothing of the multiplicity of suits with different carriers which would be likely to ensue, and in order to settle the matter as to all parties once for all, it would have had the undoubted right to go into a court of equity by bill and have the legality of the practice tested, and, if found to be unjusti-fled, enjoined. Donovan r. Pennsylvania Co., (1905) 199 U. S. 279, 26 S. Ct. 91. 50 U. S. (L. ed.) 192. Indeed, the only question would seem to be whether this was not the course which the company, even considering the provisions of the statute, was required to puraue; the legality of the demurrage charge being the only thing involved, and that being , matter for the courts and not for the commission to decide. Hite r. New Jersey Cent. R. Co., (1909) 171 Fed. 370, 96 C. C. A. 326. See also Danciger v. Wells, (1907) 154 Fed. 379, and Langdon v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 11911) 186 Fed. 237. It was decided, how-§ver, in Texas, etc., R. Co. r. Abilene Cotton
3075, 27 S. Ct. 350, 51 U. S. (L. ed.) 553, that redress by a carrier against an unjust and unreasonable rate must be sought in the first instance by proceedings before the commission, and that only after that could an action be maintained against the carrier for reparation based on the result. This conclusion was reached, and the common-law right of action otherwise existing held to be abrogated by implication, in view of the system established by the enactments with regard to rate regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and as necessary to the efficiency of that system, which otherwise would be subverted and made nugatory. And this was repeated in Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Pitcairn Coal Co., (1910) 215 U. S. 481, 30 S. Ct. 164, 54 U. S. (L. ed.) 292, where it was held that, for the correction of an unequal distribution of cars, a shipper was similarly required to go to the commission, and could not in advance of its action seek to remedy by mandamus the discrimination alleged. And Morrisdale Coal Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., (1910) 183 Fed. 929, 106 C. C. A. 269, also, is to the same effect. But, if that be so, there can be no serious question as to the propriety, if not the necessity, for the present petitioner going first to the commission to have determined whether the demurrage charge in controversy was a just and reasonable requirement. And it cannot be that the implication by which this is brought about is to be carried so far as to make the action of the commission conclusive where relief is denied. There is no such compelling necessity in order to save the system; nor is the statute to be construed as requiring exclusive resort to a tribunal where the rights of the party can only be partially determined at the sacrifice of other rights which the courts of the land are appointed to consider and defend. This is not to deny that in questions of fact, or where judgment or expediency is involved, the action of the commission in denying relief, the same as in granting it, may not be final. But where, as here, it is not the amount that is in dispute—one dollar a day per car being recognized as reasonable if there is to be any charge — but the right of the carrier, under the circumstances, to make any charge at all, it is not to be implied, unless there is no escape from it, that the decision of the commission adverse to the shipper is to foreclose the question. And while the dismissal of a complaint by the commission in a case like the present one may not in strictness be an order, in that it does not require or prohibit that anything shall or shall not be done, it is so in substance and effect, in that, by refusing to interfere with the practice or the charge complained of, it virtually approves it and makes it operative. If it was required by the Act to hold that a court could not interfere with such an order however confiscatory to the shipper it might be, the shipper being thus without legal redress, the Act might well be declared unconstitutional as wanting in due process of law.

"The action of the commission, if to be given any force, having thus the effect of an adverse decision with respect to the question involved, must be regarded, even though negative in character, as an order within the meaning of the statute, which the courts may enjoin or set aside if legal or equitable grounds for doing so are found to exist. The petitioner therefore correctly came into this court, as it could previously have gone into a Circuit Court of the United States—the requisite amount being involved and the case being one arising under the federal law—to have the action of the commission dismissing its complaint set aside and the demurrage charge disallowed, if that should be the conclusion reached with regard to it, either by direct decree or by remanding the case to the commission with directions to sustain the complaint."

But the petition was finally dismissed on the merits, with costs.

SEC. 208: [Suits to enjoin, etc., orders of Interstate Commerce Commission to be against United States; restraining orders, when granted without notice.] Suits to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be brought in the Commerce Court against the United States. The pendency of such suit shall not of itself stay or suspend the operation of the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission; but the Commerce Court, in its discretion, may restrain or suspend, in whole or in part, the operation of the commission's order pending the final hearing and determination of the suit. No order or injunction so restraining or suspending an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be made by the Commerce Court otherwise than upon notice and after hearing, except that in cases . where irreparable damage would otherwise ensue to the petitioner, said court, or a judge thereof may, on hearing after not less than three days' notice to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Attorney General, allow a temporary stay or suspension in whole or in part of the operation of the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission for not more than sixty days from the date of the order of such court or judge, pending application to the court for its order or injunction, in which case the said order shall contain a specific finding, based upon evidence submitted to the judge making the order and identified by reference thereto, that such irreparable damage would result to the petitioner and specifying the nature of the damage. The court may, at the time of hearing such application, upon a like finding, continue the temporary stay or suspension in whole or in part until its decision upon the application. [36 Stat. *L. 1149.*7

Sec. 209. [Jurisdiction of the court, how invoked; practice and procedure. The jurisdiction of the Commerce Court shall be invoked by filing in the office of the clerk of the court a written petition setting forth briefly and succinctly the facts constituting the petitioner's cause of action, and specifying the relief sought. A copy of such petition shall be forthwith served by the marshal or a deputy marshal of the Commerce Court or by the proper United States marshal or deputy marshal upon every defendant therein named, and when the United States is a party defendant, the service shall be made by filing a copy of said petition in the office of the Secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission and in the Department of Justice. Within thirty days after the petition is served, unless that time is extended by order of the court or a judge thereof, an answer to the petition shall be filed in the clerk's office, and a copy thereof mailed to the petitioner's attorney, which answer shall briefly and categorically respond to the allegations of the petition. No replication need be filed to the answer, and objections to the sufficiency of the petition or answer as not setting forth a cause of action or defense must be taken at the final hearing or by motion to dismiss the petition based on said grounds, which motion may be made at any time before answer is filed. In case no answer shall be filed as provided herein the petitioner may apply to the court on notice for such relief as may be proper upon the facts alleged in the petition. The court may, by rule, prescribe the method of taking evidence in cases pending in said court; and may prescribe that the evidence be taken before a single judge of the court, with power to rule upon the admission of evidence. Except as may be otherwise provided in this chapter, or by rule of the court, the practice and procedure in the Commerce Court shall conform as nearly as may be to that in like cases in a district court of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1149.]

"Motion to dismiss the petition."— Motions to dismiss, as authorized by this section, were made in Procter, etc., Co. v. U. S., (1911) 188 Fed. 221; Southern Pac. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, (1911) 188 Fed. 241; and Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, (1911) 188 Fed. 229, where the court said: "As determinative of these motions, our view is necessarily limited to the facts which are well pleaded in the petition."

SEC. 210. [Final judgments and decrees reviewable in Supreme Court.] A final judgment or decree of the Commerce Court may be reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States if appeal to the Supreme Court be taken by an aggrieved party within sixty days after the entry of said final judgment or decree. Such appeal may be taken in like manner as appeals from a district court of the United States to the Supreme Court, and the Commerce Court may direct the original record to be transmitted on appeal instead of a transcript thereof. The Supreme Court may affirm, reverse, or modify the final judgment or decree of the Commerce Court as the case may require. Supreme Court, however, shall in no case supersede or stay the judgment or decree of the Commerce Court appealed from, unless the Supreme Court or a justice thereof shall so direct; and appellant shall give bond in such form and of such amount as the Supreme Court, or the justice of that court allowing the stay, may require. An appeal may also be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States from an interlocutory order or decree of the Commerce Court granting or continuing an injunction restraining the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, provided such appeal be taken within thirty days from the entry of such order or decree. Appeals to the Supreme Court under this section shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes in that court. [36 Stat. L. 1150.]

SEC. 211. [Suits to be against United States; when United States may intervene.] All cases and proceedings in the Commerce Court which but for this chapter would be brought by or against the Interstate Commerce Commission, shall be brought by or against the United States, and the United States may intervene in any case or proceeding in the Commerce Court whenever, though it has not been made a party, public interests are involved. [36 Stat. L. 1150.]

SEC. 212. [Attorney General to control all cases; Interstate Commerce Commission may appear as of right; parties interested may intervene, etc.] The Attorney General shall have charge and control of the interests of the Government in all cases and proceedings in the Commerce Court, and in the Supreme Court of the United States upon appeal from the Commerce Court. If in his opinion the public interest requires it, he may retain and employ in the name of the United States, within the appropriations from time to time made by the Congress for such purposes, such special attorneys and counselors at law as he may think necessary to assist in the discharge of any of the duties incumbent upon him and his subordinate attorneys; and the Attorney-General shall stipulate with such special attorneys and counsel the amount of their compensation, which shall not be in excess of the sums appropriated therefor by Congress for such purposes, and shall have supervision of their action: Provided, That the Interstate Commerce Commission and any party or parties in interest to the proceeding before the commission, in which an order or requirement is made, may appear as parties thereto of their own motion and as of right, and be represented by their counsel, in any suit wherein is involved the validity of such order or requirement or any part thereof, and the interest of such party; and the court wherein is pending such suit may make all such rules and orders as to such appearances and representations, the number of counsel, and all matters of procedure, and otherwise, as to subserve the ends of justice and speed the determination of such suits: Provided further, That communities, associations, corporations, firms, and individuals who are interested in the controversy or question before the Interstate Commerce Commission, or in any suit which may be brought by any one under the provisions of this chapter, or the Acts of which it is amendatory or which are amendatory of it, relating to action of the Interstate Commerce Commission, may intervene in said suit or proceedings at any time after the institution thereof; and the Attorney General shall not dispose of or discontinue said suit or proceeding over the objection of such party or intervenor aforesaid, but said intervenor or intervenors may prosecute, defend, or continue said suit or proceeding unaffected by the action or non-action of the Attorney General therein. [36 Stat. L. 1150.]

SEC. 213. [Complainants may appear and be made parties to case.] Complainants before the Interstate Commerce Commission interested in a case shall have the right to appear and be made parties to the case and be represented before the courts by counsel, under such regulations as are now permitted in similar circumstances under the rules and practice of equity courts of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1151.]

SEC. 214. [Pending cases to be transferred to Commerce Court; exception; status of transferred cases.] Until the opening of the Commerce Court, all cases and proceedings of which from that time the Commerce Court is hereby given exclusive jurisdiction may be brought in the same courts and conducted in like manner and with like effect as is now provided by law; and if any such case or proceeding shall have gone to final judgment or decree before the opening of the Commerce Court, appeal may be taken from such final judgment or decree in like manner and with like effect as is now provided by law. Any such case or proceeding within the jurisdiction of the Commerce Court which may have been begun in any other court as hereby allowed, before the said date, shall be forthwith transferred to the Commerce Court, if it has not yet proceeded to final judgment or decree in such other court unless it has been finally submitted for the decision of such court, in which case the cause shall proceed in such court to final judgment or decree and further proceeding thereafter, and appeal may be taken direct to the Supreme Court; and if remanded, such cause may be sent back to the court from which the appeal was taken or to the Commerce Court for further proceeding as the Supreme Court shall direct. All previous proceedings in such transferred case shall stand and operate notwithstanding the transfer, subject to the same control over them by the Commerce Court and to the same right of subsequent action in the case or proceeding as if the transferred case or proceeding had been originally begun in the Commerce Court. The clerk of the court from which any case or proceeding is so transferred to the Commerce Court shall transmit to and file in the Commerce Court the originals of all papers filed in such case or proceeding and a certified transcript of all record entries in the case or proceeding up to the time of transfer. This section supersedes section 6 of the Act of June 18, 1910, ch. 309, 36 Stat. L. 544, with the exception of the last paragraph of such section 6 relating to an agent in Washington to be designated for the service of process. Such last paragraph is given supra, p. 111, under the title INTERSTATE COMMERCE, where the portions of the Act of June 18, 1910, not dealing with the Court of Commerce are set forth.

Pending cases transferred to Commerce Court. — Hooker v. Interstate Commerce Commission, (1911) 188 Fed. 242, and Eagle White Lead Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, (1911) 188 Fed. 256, were cases transferred to the Commerce Court from a federal Circuit Court where they were originally instituted, and heard in the Commerce Court upon bill and demurrers, the latter having been filed before the transfer.

SEC. 216. [Precedence of the associate justices.] The associate justices shall have precedence according to the dates of their commissions, or, when the commissions of two or more of them bear the same date, according to their ages. [36 Stat. L. 1152.]

SEC. 217. [Vacancy in the office of Chief Justice.] In case of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice, or of his inability to perform the duties and powers of his office, they shall devolve upon the associate justice who is first in precedence, until such disability is removed, or another Chief Justice is appointed and duly qualified. This provision shall apply to every associate justice who succeeds to the office of Chief Justice. [36 Stat. L. 1152.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 675, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 435, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 218. [Salaries of justices.] The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States shall receive the sum of fifteen thousand dollars a year, and the justices thereof shall receive the sum of fourteen thousand five hundred dollars a year each, to be paid monthly. [36 Stat. L. 1152.]

This section is a re-enactment of the provision in the Act of Feb. 12, 1903, ch. 547, 32

Stat. L. 825, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 198, which superseded R. S. sec. 676, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 435, the latter being also expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 219. [Clerk, marshal, and reporter.] The Supreme Court shall have power to appoint a clerk and a marshal for said court, and a reporter of its decisions. [36 Stat. L. 1152.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 677, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 73, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 220. [The clerk to give bond.] The clerk of the Supreme Court shall, before he enters upon the execution of his office, give bond, with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, to the United States, in the sum of not less than five thousand and not more than twenty thousand dollars, to be determined and regulated by the Attorney General, faithfully to discharge the duties of his office, and seasonably to record the decrees, judgments, and determinations of the court. The Supreme Court may at any time, upon the motion of the Attorney General, to be made upon thirty days' notice, require a new bond, or a bond for an increased amount within the limits above prescribed; and the failure of the clerk to execute the same shall vacate his office. All bonds given by the clerk shall, after approval, be recorded in his office, and copies thereof from the records, certified by the clerk under seal of the court, shall be competent evidence in any court. The original bonds shall be filed in the Department of Justice. [36 Stat. L. 1152.]

This section was drawn from section 3 of the Act of Feb. 22, 1875, ch. 95, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 83. The law revised in this section has been so modified as to apply only to the bond to be given by the clerk of the Supreme Court. All reference to the duties of the district attorneys is omitted from this section, as those provisions can only apply in the case of bonds to be given by clerks of the District Courts. The further change is made that a new bond, or a bond for an increased amount, may be ordered by the court upon the motion of the attorney general.

SEC. 221. [Deputies of the clerk.] One or more deputies of the clerk of the Supreme Court may be appointed by the court on the application of the clerk, and may be removed at the pleasure of the court. In case of the death of the clerk, his deputy or deputies shall, unless removed, continue in office and perform the duties of the clerk in his name until a clerk is appointed and qualified; and for the defaults or misfeasances in office of any such deputy, whether in the lifetime of the clerk or after his death, the clerk, and his estate, and the sureties on his official bond shall be liable; and his executor or administrator shall have such remedy for any such defaults or misfeasances committed after his death as the clerk would be entitled to if the same had occurred in his lifetime. [36 Stat. L. 1153.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 678, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 73, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

[Records of the old court of appeals.] The records and proceedings of the court of appeals, appointed previous to the adoption of the present Constitution, shall be kept in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court, who shall give copies thereof to any person requiring and paying for them, in the manner provided by law for giving copies of the records and proceedings of the Supreme Court; and such copies shall have like faith and credit with all other proceedings of said court. He shall also distribute one complete set of said reports, and one set of the digests thereof, to such executive officers as are entitled to receive said reports under this section and have not already received them, to each United States judge and to each United States district attorney who has not received a set, to each of the places where district courts are now held to which said reports have not been distributed, and to each of the places at which a district court may hereafter be held, the edition of said reports and digests to be selected by the judge or officer receiving them. No distribution of reports and digests under this section shall be made to any place where the court is held in a building not owned by the United States, unless there be at such place a United States officer to whose responsible custody they can be committed. The clerks of said courts (except the Supreme Court) shall in all cases keep said reports and digests for the use of the courts and of the officers thereof. Such reports and digest[s] shall remain the property of the United States, and shall be preserved by the officers above named and by them turned over to their successors in office. [36 Stat. L. 1154.]

pealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250; and from the Act of July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. L. 630, 631, 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 770, 771.

SEC. 228. [Additional reports and digests; limitation upon cost; estimates to be submitted to Congress annually.] The publishers of the decisions of the Supreme Court shall deliver to the Attorney General, in addition to the three hundred copies delivered by the Reporter, such number of copies of each report heretofore published, as the Attorney General may require, for which he shall pay not more than two dollars per volume, and such number of copies of each report hereafter published as he may require, for which he shall pay not more than one dollar and seventy-five cents per volume. The Attorney General shall include in his annual estimates submitted to Congress, an estimate for the current volumes of such reports, and also for the additional sets of reports and digests required for distribution under the section last preceding. [36 Stat. L. 1155.]

Under the Act of Feb. 12, 1889, ch. 135, 25 Stat. L. 661, 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 769, the court reporter was required to furnish the Secretary of the Interior, in addition to the number "heretofore required by law" (300 copies; R. S. sec. 681, 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 767), 76 copies, at not exceeding two dollars per volume, beginning with volume 123. The Act of July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. L. 631, 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 771, required the publishers to furnish the secretary 104 copies, in addition to 300 to be furnished by the reporter; and further imposed upon them the duty of furnishing the 76 copies theretofore, by the Act of 1889, required to be furnished by the reporter, at a cost not to exceed two dollars per volume.

Besides other changes, this section substitutes the attorney general for the secretary of the interior.

SEC. 229. [Distribution of Federal Reporter, etc., and Digests.] The Attorney General is authorized to procure complete sets of the Federal Reporter or, in his discretion, other publication containing the decisions of the circuit courts of appeals, circuit courts, and district courts, and digests thereof, and also future volumes of the same as issued, and distribute a copy of each such reports and digests to each place where a circuit Court of appeals, or a district court, is now or may hereafter regularly be held, and to the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, the court of Customs Appeals, the Commerce Court, the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the Attorney General, the Solicitor General, the Solicitor of the Treasury, the Assistant Attorney General for the Department of the Interior, the Commissioner of Patents, and the Interstate Commerce Commission; and to the Secretary of the Senate, for the use of the Senate, and to the Clerk of the House of Representatives, not more than three sets each. Whenever any such court room, office, or officer shall have a partial or complete set of any such reports, or digests, already purchased or owned by the United States, the Attorney General shall distribute to such court room, office, or officer, only sufficient volumes to make a complete set thereof. No distribution of reports or digests under this section shall be made to any place where the court is held in a building not owned by the United States, unless there be at such place a United States officer to whose responsible custody they can be committed. The clerks of the courts (except the Supreme Court) to which the reports and digests are distributed under this section, shall keep such reports and digests for the use of the courts and the officers thereof. All reports and digests distributed under the provisions of this section shall be and remain the property of the United States and, before distribution, shall be plainly marked on their covers with the words "The Property of the United States," and shall be transmitted by the officers receiving them to their successors in office. Not to exceed two dollars per volume shall be paid for the back and current volumes of the Federal Reporter or other publication purchased under the provisions of this section, and not to exceed five dollars per volume for the digest, the said money to be disbursed under the direction of the Attorney General; and the Attorney General shall include in his annual estimates submitted to Congress, an estimate for the back and current volumes of such reports and digests, the distribution of which is provided for in this section. [36 Stat. L. 1155.]

This section is new legislation.

SEC. 230. [Terms.] The Supreme Court shall hold at the seat of government, one term annually, commencing on the second Monday in October, and such adjourned or special terms as it may find necessary for the dispatch of business. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, omitting the obsolete part, of R. S. sec. 684, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 692, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 231. [Adjournment for want of a quorum.] If, at any session of the Supreme Court, a quorum does not attend on the day appointed for holding it, the justices who do attend may adjourn the court from day to day for twenty days after said appointed time, unless there be sooner a quorum. If a quorum does not attend within said twenty days, the business of the court shall be continued over till the next appointed session; and if, during a term, after a quorum has assembled, less than that number attend on any day, the justices attending may adjourn the court from day to day until there is a quorum, or may adjourn without day. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 685, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 693, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 232. [Certain orders made by less than quorum.] The justices attending at any term, when less than a quorum is present, may, within the twenty days mentioned in the preceding section, make all necessary orders touching any suit, proceeding, or process, depending in or returned to the court, preparatory to the hearing, trial, or decision thereof. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 686, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 693, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 233. [Original disposition.] The Supreme Court shall have exclusive jurisdiction of all controversies of a civil nature where a State is a party, except between a State and its citizens, or between a State and citizens of other States, or aliens, in which latter cases it shall have original, but not exclusive, jurisdiction. And it shall have exclusively all such jurisdiction of suits or proceedings against ambassadors or other public ministers, or their domestics or domestic servants, as a court of law can have consistently with the law of nations; and original, but not exclusive, jurisdiction, of all suits brought by ambassadors, or other public ministers, or in which a consul or vice consul is a party. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 687, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 436, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 234. [Writs of prohibition and mandamus.] The Supreme Court shall have power to issue writs of prohibition to the district courts, when proceeding as courts of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; and writs of mandamus, in cases warranted by the principles and usages of law, to any courts appointed under the authority of the United States, or to persons holding office under the authority of the United States, where a State, or an ambassador, or other public minister, or a consul, or vice consul is a party. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 688, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 439, the only change being in the substitution of the word "to" after the word "prohibition" for the word

"in." Writs of prohibition run to and not in the District Courts. R. S. sec. 688 is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 235. [Issues of fact.] The trial of issues of fact in the Supreme Court, in all actions at law against citizens of the United States, shall be by jury. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 689, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 443, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 236. [Appellate jurisdiction.] The Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction in the cases hereinafter specially provided for. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 690, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 443, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 237. [Writs of error from judgments and decrees of State courts.] A final judgment or decree in any suit in the highest court of a State in which a decision in the suit could be had, where is drawn in question the validity of a treaty or statute of, or an authority exercised under, the United States, and the decision is against their validity; or where is drawn in question the validity of a statute of, or an authority exercised under any State, on the ground of their being repugnant to the Constitution, treaties, or laws of the United States, and the decision is in favor of their validity; or where any title, right, privilege, or immunity is claimed under the Constitution, or any treaty or statute of, or commission held or authority exercised under, the United States, and the decision is against the title, right, privilege, or immunity especially set up or claimed, by either party, under such Constitution, treaty, statute, commission, or authority, may be reexamined and reversed or affirmed in the Supreme Court upon a writ of error. The writ shall have the same effect as if the judgment or decree complained of had been rendered or passed in a court of the United States. The Supreme Court may reverse, modify, or affirm the judgment or decree of such State court, and may, at their discretion, award execution or remand the same to the court from which it was removed by the writ. [36 Stat. L. 1156.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 709, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 467, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 238. [Appeals and writs of error from United States district courts.] Appeals and writs of error may be taken from the district courts, including the United States district court for Hawaii, direct to the Supreme Court in the following cases: In any case in which the jurisdiction of the court is in issue, in which case the question of jurisdiction alone shall be certified to the Supreme Court from the court below for decision; from the final sentences and decrees in prize causes; in any case that involves the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States; in any case in which the constitutionality of any law of the United States, or the validity or construction of any treaty made under its authority is drawn in question; and in any case in which the constitution or law of a State is claimed to be in contravention of the Constitution of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

In respect of appeals and writs of error from the District Courts within the United States this section is drawn from section 5 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 827, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 398, as amended by the Act of Jan. 20, 1897, ch. 68, 29 Stat. L. 492, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 433, omitting, however, the provision for appellate review in criminal cases, appellate jurisdiction as to the latter being con-ferred upon the Circuit Courts of Appeals by Judicial Code, sec. 128, infra, p. 195, and the Act of Jan. 20, 1897, above cited, being expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

The last clause of section 5 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act, above cited, is omitted, since it can now serve no useful purpose, the law referred to being set out in Judicial Code, sec. 237, supra, p. 230.

The classes of cases described in this section are the same as those described in Judicial Code, sec. 247, infra, p. 234, except as to cases in which the jurisdiction of the court is in issue, and the same as several of the classes described in Judicial Code, sec. 250, infra, p. 235.

Hawaii. — Section 86 of the Organic Act for Hawaii, as last amended in Act of March 3. 1909, ch. 269, 35 Stat. L. 838, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 152, authorized the taking of appeals and writs of error from the United States District Court for that territory direct to the Supreme Court, in the same manner and in the same class of cases as from a Circuit or District Court of the United States. For this reason the District Court for Hawaii is included with the District Courts. It is specially mentioned from the fact that while it is called a United States District Court, it is not a constitutional court. McAllister v. U. S., (1891) 141 U. S. 174, 11 S. Ct. 949, 35 U. S. (L. ed.) 693. The special reference is to remove any doubt as to its inclusion.

Appellate jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals in respect of decisions of the United States District Court for Hawaii and of decisions of the District Courts within the United States, see Judicial Code, sec. 128, supra, p. 195.

Appellate jurisdiction of the United States Supreme Court over judgments and decrees of the Supreme Court of the territory of Hawaii, see Judicial Code, sec. 246, infra, p.

SEC. 239. [Circuit court of appeals may certify questions to Supreme Court for instructions. In any case within its appellate jurisdiction, as defined in section one hundred and twenty-eight, the circuit court of appeals at any time may certify to the Supreme Court of the United States any questions or propositions of law concerning which it desires the instruction of that court for its proper decision; and thereupon the Supreme Court may either give its instruction on the questions and propositions certified to it, which shall be binding upon the circuit court of appeals in such case, or it may require that the whole record and cause be sent up to it for its consideration, and thereupon shall decide the whole matter in controversy in the same manner as if it had been brought there for review by writ of error or appeal. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

The appellate jurisdiction of the Circuit Courts of Appeals is to be determined by a reference to Judicial Code, sec. 128, supra, p. 195, in connection with Judicial Code, sec. 238, supra. This section 239 represents that portion of section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 828, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 409, which authorizes the certification of questions to the Supreme Court, and recites the action which may be taken by the Supreme Court in case of such certification.

Similar provisions for certification are in Judicial Code, sec. 134, supra, p. 197, Judicial Code, sec. 251, infra, p. 236, and in the last clause of Judicial Code, sec. 252, infra, p. 237, which also appears in this Supplement, post, title BANKRUPTCY, as section 25d of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898, and is there annotated.

SEC. 240. [Certiorari to circuit court of appeals.] In any case, civil or criminal, in which the judgment or decree of the circuit court of appeals is made final by the provisions of this Title, it shall be competent for the Supreme Court to require, by certiorari or otherwise, upon the petition of any party thereto, any such case to be certified to the Supreme Court for its review and determination, with the same power and authority in the case as if it had been carried by appeal or writ of error to the Supreme Court. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

This section is drawn from section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 828, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 409, and contains that provision thereof which authorizes the Supreme Court to require the certification to it of cases made final in the Circuit Courts of Appeals.

There is a similar provision in Judicial Code, sec. 251, infra, p. 236, and a general power to issue writs of certiorari is embraced in the provisions of Judicial Code, sec. 262, infra, p. 241.

In the phrase "final by the provisions of this Title" the words "this Title" mean this Act, i. e., this Judicial Code. See Judicial Code, sec. 293, infra, p. 250. And the "provisions" referred to are in Judicial Code,

The phrase "upon the petition of any party thereto" is new legislation. It was not in section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act from which this section was drawn, nor was it in the section of the Judicial Code as submitted to Congress March 15, 1910, in the report of the committee on revision.

"With the same power and authority," etc., in this section evidently alludes to a provision in section 10 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 829, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 428, also annotated in volume 2 of this Supplement, title JUDICIARY.

SEC. 241. [Appeals and writs of error in other cases.] In any case in which the judgment or decree of the circuit court of appeals is not made final by the provisions of this Title, there shall be of right an appeal or writ of error to the Supreme Court of the United States where the matter in controversy shall exceed one thousand dollars, besides costs. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

This section is drawn from the last paragraph of section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 828, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 409.

"Final by the provisions of this Title," see note to this phrase in the last preceding section 240.

As to the time limit for appeals under this section, see the last sentence of section 6 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 828, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 409, still in force, and also annotated in volume 2 of this Supplement, title Judi-CLARY.

SEC. 242. [Appeals from Court of Claims.] An appeal to the Supreme Court shall be allowed on behalf of the United States, from all judgments of the Court of Claims adverse to the United States, and on behalf of the plaintiff in any case where the amount in controversy exceeds three thousand dollars, or where his claim is forfeited to the United States by the judgment of said court as provided in section one hundred and seventy-two. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 707, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 467, with no change except by substituting "section one hundred and seventy-two" for "one thousand and eighty-nine." Reference to the latter in R. S. sec. 707 was a mistake; the reference should have been to R. S. sec. 1086, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 71, which is revised in Judicial Code, sec. 172, supra, p. 207. Being the only change in the language of the section, no change is made in the law.

R. S. secs. 707, 1086, are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. See also as to the right of appeal and the procedure therein, Judicial Code, secs. 181, 182, supra, p. 209.

SEC. 243. [Time and manner of appeals from the Court of Claims.] All appeals from the Court of Claims shall be taken within ninety days after the judgment is rendered, and shall be allowed under such regulations as the Supreme Court may direct. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

See the reference to this section in Judicial Code, secs. 181, 182, supra, p. 209.

SEC. 244. [Writs of error and appeals from supreme court of and United States district court for Porto Rico.] Writs of error and appeals from the final judgments and decrees of the supreme court of, and the United States district court for, Porto Rico, may be taken and prosecuted to the Supreme Court of the United States, in any case wherein is involved the validity of any copyright, or in which is drawn in question the validity of a treaty or statute of, or authority exercised under, the United States, or wherein the Constitution of the United States, or a treaty thereof, or an Act of Congress is brought in question and the right claimed thereunder is denied, without regard to the sum or value of the matter in dispute; and in all other cases in which the sum or value of the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, to be ascertained by the oath of either party or of other competent witnesses, exceeds the sum or value of five thousand dollars. Such writs of error and appeals shall be taken within the same time, in the same manner, and under the same regulations as writs of error and appeals are taken to the Supreme Court of the United States from the district courts. [36 Stat. L. 1157.]

This section revises and re-enacts, with material changes, the larger part of section 35 of the Organic Act of Porto Rico, viz., the Foraker Act, so called, of April 12, 1900, ch. 191, 31 Stat. L. 77, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 773, which section 35 to that extent is superseded by force of the last paragraph of Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

The most material change is in the last sentence of this section, conforming the appellate procedure to the regulations for writs of error and appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States from the District Courts; section 35 of the Foraker Act, above cited, providing that they should be taken "in the same manner and under the same regulations and in the same cases as from the Supreme Courts of the territories of the United States." In view of this and other changes, and because all of the cases taken from Porto Rico to the Supreme Court and reported prior to the publication of this Supplement were decided under the provisions of section 35, above cited, those cases are set forth in the note to that section, infra, volume 2 of this Supplement, title Porto Rico.

The jurisdictional amount of $5,000, with the provision for "oath," etc., attached thereto, was evidently taken from R. S. sec. 1909, 7 Fed. Stat. Annot. 231, as amended by the first section of the Act of March 3, 1885, ch. 355, 23 Stat. L. 443, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 463, and now appearing in Judicial Code, sec. 245, infra, this page. A like provision as to the oath appears in Judicial Code, secs. 246,

SEC. 245. [Writs of error and appeals from the Supreme Courts of Arizona and New Mexico.] Writs of error and appeals from the final judgments and decrees of the supreme courts of the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico may be taken and prosecuted to the Supreme Court of the United States in any case wherein is involved the validity of any copyright, or in which is drawn in question the validity of a treaty or statute of, or authority exercised under, the United States, without regard to the sum or value of the matter in dispute; and in all other cases in which the sum or value of the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, to be ascertained by the oath of either party or of other competent witnesses, exceeds the sum or value of five thousand dollars. [36 Stat. L. 1158.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 702, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 459, expressly repealed in Judicial Code. sec. 297, infra, p. 250, and from sections 1 and 2 of the Act of March 3, 1885, ch. 355, 23 Stat. L. 443, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 463, also expressly repealed in the same section of the Judicial Code. The section was revised in accordance with the opinion of the Supreme Court in Simms v. Simms, (1899) 175 U. S. 162, 166, 20 S. Ct. 58, 44 U. S. (L. ed.) 115, and cited 7 Fed. Stat. Annot. 231, note, wherein the court points out the classes of cases in which writs of error and appeals may be taken from the Supreme Courts of Arizona and New Mexico to the Supreme Court of the United States. See also Folsom v. U. S., (1895) 160 U. S. 121, 125, 16 S. Ct. 222, 40 U. S. (L. ed.) 363.

SEC. 246. [Writs of error and appeals from the Supreme Court of Hawaii.] Writs of error and appeals from the final judgments and decrees of the supreme court of the Territory of Hawaii may be taken and prosecuted to the Supreme Court of the United States, within the same time, in the same manner, under the same regulations, and in the same classes of cases, in which writs of error and appeals from the final judgments and decrees of the highest court of a State in which a decision in the suit could be had, may be taken and prosecuted to the Supreme Court of the United States under the provisions of section two hundred and thirty-seven; and also in all cases wherein the amount involved, exclusive of costs, to be ascertained by the oath of either party or of other competent witnesses, exceeds the sum or value of five thousand dollars. [36 Stat. L. 1158.]

Section 86 of the Organic Act for Hawaii, Act of April 30, 1900, ch. 339, 31 Stat. L. 158, 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 206, as amended by the Act of March 3, 1908, 35 Stat. L. 838, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 152, provided for the taking of appeals and writs of error from the Supreme Court of that territory to the Supreme Court of the United States, in the same manner and in the same classes of cases in which they may be taken to that court from the Supreme Court of a state; and also in all cases in which the amount involved exceeded $5,000. This section of the Judicial Code was so drawn as to state those facts.

and was existing law. See cases cited 3 Fed. Stat. Annot. 207.

SEC. 247. [Appeals and writs of error from the district court for Alaska direct to Supreme Court in certain cases.] Appeals and writs of error may be taken and prosecuted from final judgments and decrees of the district court for the district of Alaska or for any division thereof, direct to the Supreme Court of the United States, in the following cases: In prize cases; and in all cases which involve the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States, or in which the constitutionality of any law of the United States or the validity or construction of any treaty made under its authority is drawn in question, or in which the constitution or law of a State is claimed to be in contravention of the Constitution of the United States. Such writs of error and appeal shall be taken within the same time, in the same manner, and under the same regulations as writs of error and appeals are taken from the district courts to the Supreme Court. [36 Stat. L. 1158.]

The cases in which writs of error and appeals could be taken from the District Court for Alaska to the United States Supreme Court were stated in section 202 of the Criminal Code for Alaska, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 370, and in section 504 of the Civil Code, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 147. Following the policy of divesting the Supreme Court of its appellate jurisdiction in capital cases, this section 247 as revised was so modified as to vest appellate jurisdiction of that class of cases in the Circuit Court of Appeals for the ninth circuit. See Judicial Code, sec. 134, supra, p. 197. Aside from that change, the section stated what was existing law.

The classes of cases described in this section are precisely the same as those described in Judicial Code, sec. 238, supra, p. 231, except as to cases in which the jurisdiction of the court is in issue, and the same as the "Second," "Third," and "Fourth" classes described in Judicial Code, sec. 250, infra, p. 235.

SEC. 248. [Appeals and writs of error from the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands.] The Supreme Court of the United States shall have jurisdiction to review, revise, reverse, modify, or affirm the final judgments and decrees of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands in all actions, cases, causes, and proceedings now pending therein or hereafter determined thereby, in which the Constitution, or any statute, treaty, title, right, or privilege of the United States is involved, or in causes in which the value in controversy exceeds twenty-five thousand dollars, or in which the title or possession of real estate exceeding in value the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, to be ascertained by the oath of either party or of other competent witnesses, is involved or brought in question; and such final judgments or decrees may and can be reviewed, revised, reversed, modified, or affirmed by said Supreme Court on appeal or writ of error by the party aggrieved, within the same time, in the same manner, under the same regulations, and by the same procedure, as far as applicable, as the final judgments and decrees of the district courts of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1158.]

This section is a re-enactment of section 10 of the Act of July 1, 1902, ch. 1369, 32 Stat. L. 691, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 722. The change made is by insertion of the words "within the same time" before the words "in the same manner." By reason of the varied character of the courts of our territorial and insular possessions, it was deemed best to insert this provision, not leaving it to each practitioner to solve the problem. In section 10 of the Act above cited the manner of procedure, as far as applicable, was to be that employed in appellate proceedings from the Circuit Courts. But the Circuit Courts are abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. Therefore, the word "district" has been substituted for the word "circuit." Aside from these changes the section was ex-

SEC. 249. [Appeals and writs of error when a Territory becomes a State.] In all cases where the judgment or decree of any court of a Territory might be reviewed by the Supreme Court on writ of error or appeal, such writ of error or appeal may be taken, within the time and in the manner provided by law, notwithstanding such Territory has, after such judgment or decree, been admitted as a State; and the Supreme Court shall direct the mandate to such court as the nature of the writ of error or appeal requires. [36 Stat. L. 1158.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 703, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 461, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 250. [Appeals and writs of error from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.] Any final judgment or decree of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia may be reexamined and affirmed, reversed, or modified by the Supreme Court of the United States, upon writ of error or appeal, in the following cases:

· First. In cases in which the jurisdiction of the trial court is in issue; but when any such case is not otherwise reviewable in said Supreme Court, then the question of jurisdiction alone shall be certified to said Supreme Court for decision.

Second. In prize cases.

Third. In cases involving the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States, or the constitutionality of any law of the United States, or the validity or construction of any treaty made under its authority.

Fourth. In cases in which the constitution, or any law of a State, is claimed to be in contravention of the Constitution of the United States.

Fifth. In cases in which the validity of any authority exercised under the United States, or the existence or scope of any power or duty of an officer of the United States is drawn in question.

Sixth. In cases in which the construction of any law of the United States is drawn in question by the defendant.

Except as provided in the next succeeding section, the judgments and decrees of said court of appeals shall be final in all cases arising under the patent laws, the copyright laws, the revenue laws, the criminal laws, and in admiralty cases; and, except as provided in the next succeeding section, the judgments and decrees of said court of appeals shall be final in all cases not reviewable as hereinbefore provided.

Writs of error and appeals shall be taken within the same time, in the same manner, and under the same regulations as writs of error and appeals are taken from the circuit courts of appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1159.]

R. S. sec. 705, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 462, expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, sufra, p. 250, authorized the taking of appeals and writs of error from final judgments and decrees of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to the Supreme Court of the United States "in the same manner and under the same regulations as are provided in cases of writs of error on judgments, or appeals from decrees rendered in a circuit court." Section 846 of the Revised Statutes (1875) of the District of Columbia provided: "Any final judgment, order, or decree of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia may be re-examined and reversed or affirmed in the Supreme Court of the United States, upon writ of error or appeal, in the same cases and in like manner as provided by law in reference to final judgments, orders, and decrees of the Circuit Courts of the United States." That section appears in the Com-piled Statutes of the District of Columbia, published in 1894, as section 43 of chapter 35, title Judiciary. These sections stated the law upon the subject of appeals and writs of error at the time the Act of Feb. 9, 1893, ch. 74, sec. 8. 27 Stat. L. 436, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 466, establishing a Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, was passed. That Act authorized writs of error and appeals from the Supreme Court to the Court of Appeals, and from the latter court to the Supreme Court of the United States in certain instances, section 8 thereof providing that writs of error and appeals from the Court of Appeals were to be taken "in the same manner and under the same regulations as heretofore provided for in cases of writs of error on judgment or appeals from decrees rendered in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia." That section 8 appears, with slight changes of phraseology, as section 233 of the District of Columbia Code, Act of March 3, 1901, ch. 854, 31 Stat. L. 1227, which provides as follows: "Any final judgment or decree of the Court of Appeals may be reexamined and affirmed, reversed, or nodified by the Supreme Court of the United States, upon writ of error or appeal, in all cases in which the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, shall exceed the sum of five thousand dollars, in the same manner and under the same regulations as existed in cases of writs of error on judgments or appeals from decrees readered in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on February ninth, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, and also in cases, without regard to the sum or value of the matter in dispute, wherein is involved the validity of any patent or copyright, or in which is drawn in question the validity of a treaty or statute of, or an authority exercised under, the United States."

From the foregoing review of the law it will be seen that the manner of taking write of error and appeals from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States was the same as that by which they were taken from the Circuit Courts of the United States to the Supreme Court. Section 11 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. L. 829, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 428, provides that: "All provisions of law now in force regulating the methods and system of review, through appeals or writs of error, shall regulate the methods and system of appeals and writs of error provided for in this act in respect of the Circuit Courts of Appeals." The effect of this provision was to continue the then existing method by which appeals and writs of error were taken from the Circuit Courts to the Supreme Court and make it applicable to the Circuit Courts of Appeals.

In view of the foregoing facts, Judicial Code, sec. 250, as revised, correctly stated the existing law as to the procedure by which writs of error and appeals were taken from the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the Supreme Court of the United

The "First," "Second," "Third," and "Fourth" classes of cases described in this section are likewise described in Judicial Code, sec. 238, supra, p. 231; and the "Second," "Third," and "Fourth" classes are the same as those found in Judicial Code, sec. 247, supra. p. 234.

SEC. 251. [Certiorari to Court of Appeals, District of Columbia.] In any case in which the judgment or decree of said court of appeals is made final by the section last preceding, it shall be competent for the Supreme Court of the United States to require, by certiorari or otherwise, any such case to be certified to it for its review and determination, with the same power and authority in the case as if it had been carried by writ of error or appeal to said Supreme Court. It shall also be competent for said court of appeals, in any case in which its judgment or decree is made final under the section last preceding, at any time to certify to the Supreme Court of the United States any questions or propositions of law concerning which it desires the instruction of that court for their proper decision; and thereupon the Supreme Court may either give its instruction on the questions and propositions certified to it, which shall be binding upon said court of appeals in such case, or it may require that the whole record and cause be sent up to it for its consideration, and thereupon shall decide the whole matter in controversy in the same manner as if it had been brought there for review by writ of error or appeal. [36 Stat. L. 1159.]

The part of this section which authorizes certiorari was drawn from the Act of March 3, 1897, ch. 390, 29 Stat. L. 692, embodied in section 234 of the District of Columbia Code in the Act of March 3, 1901, ch. 854, 31 Stat. L. 1227, which provided as follows: "In any case heretofore made final in the court of appeals it shall be competent for the Supreme Court of the United States to require, by certified to said Supreme Court for its review and determination, with the same power and authority in the case as if it had been carried by appeal or writ of error to said Supreme Court." The leading provision for review by the Supreme Court on certiorari is in Judicial Code, sec. 240, supra, p. 232. See also Judicial Code, sec. 262, infra, p. 241.

The part of this section which authorizes

The part of this section which authorizes certification of questions to the Supreme Court is new legislation as respects the relation of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to the Supreme Court. The leading provision for certification is in Judicial Code, sec. 239, supra, p. 231. Similar provisions for certification are in Judicial Code, sec. 134, supra, p. 197 and in the last clause of Judicial Code, sec. 252, which also appears as section 25d of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898, post, title Bankruptor, in this Supplement, and is there annotated.

SEC. 252. [Appellate jurisdiction under the bankruptcy act.] The Supreme Court of the United States is hereby invested with appellate jurisdiction of controversies arising in bankruptcy proceedings, from the courts of bankruptcy, from which it has appellate jurisdiction in other cases; and shall exercise a like jurisdiction from courts of bankruptcy not within any organized circuit of the United States and from the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

An appeal may be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States from any final decision of a court of appeals allowing or rejecting a claim under the laws relating to bankruptcy, under such rules and within such time as may be prescribed by said Supreme Court, in the following cases and no other:

First. Where the amount in controversy exceeds the sum of two thousand dollars, and the question involved is one which might have been taken on appeal or writ of error from the highest court of a State to the Supreme Court of the United States: or Second. Where some justice of the Supreme Court shall certify that in his opinion the determination of the question involved in the allowance or rejection of such claim is essential to a uniform construction of the laws relating to bankruptcy throughout the United States.

Controversies may be certified to the Supreme Court of the United States from other courts of the United States, and the former court may exercise jurisdiction thereof, and may issue writs of certiorari pursuant to the provisions of the United States laws now in force or such as may be hereafter enacted. [36 Stat. L. 1159.]

This section states concisely the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court conferred upon it by sections 24 and 25 of the Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 593-604, and post, title BANKRUPTCY, in this Supplement. The only changes in phraseology are those necessary to separate the provisions relating to the Supreme Court from those relating to other courts.

SEC. 253. [Precedence of writs of error to state courts.] Cases on writ of error to revise the judgment of a State court in any criminal case shall have precedence on the docket of the Supreme Court, of all cases to which the Government of the United States is not a party, excepting only such cases as the court, in its discretion, may decide to be of public importance. [36 Stat. L. 1160.7

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 710, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 490,

SEC. 254. [Cost of printing records.] There shall be taxed against the losing party in each and every cause pending in the Supreme Court the cost of printing the record in such case, except when the judgment is against the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1160.]

The Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1877, ch. 105, 19 Stat. L. 344, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 293, required the clerk of the Supreme Court to collect from the losing party in any case the cost of printing the record, and to pay it into the Treasury; the cost of printing the records in the first intended to the cost of printing the c stance being paid out of appropriations made by the Congress. As Congress quite regularly failed to appropriate a sufficient sum to pay for such printing, thus stopping the work of the court, the court, about the year 1883, changed its rules and required the party filing a case in that court to deposit a sum sufficient to pay the cost of printing the record, this sum ultimately being paid by the losing party. This has been the practice of the court since that time, and the Act of 1877 is modified accordingly in this section.

In so far as the Act revised in this section applies to the Court of Claims, it has been revised in Judicial Code, sec. 176, supra, p.

SEC. 255. [Women may be admitted to practice.] Any woman who shall have been a member of the bar of the highest court of any State or Territory, or of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, for the space of three years, and shall have maintained a good standing before such court, and who shall be a person of good moral character, shall, on motion, and the production of such record, be admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1160.]

The "original jurisdiction" of the District Courts is prescribed in Judicial Code, sec. 24, supra, p. 139.

The first three lines of this section are the language of the introductory paragraph of R. S. sec. 711, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

First. This paragraph is a re-enactment,

Annot. 220; and of paragraph "Sixth" of R. S. sec. 629, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 247; all of which Revised Stat. Annot. 247; all of which Revised Stat. utes sections are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

As to the original jurisdiction of the District Courts in these classes of cases see paragraph "Third" of Judicial Code, sec. 24. supra, p. 139.

Fifth. This paragraph is a re-enactment, without change, of paragraph "Fifth" of R. S. sec. 711, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 494, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

As to the original jurisdiction of the District Courts in this class of cases see paragraph "Seventh" of Judicial Code, sec. 24, supra, p. 139.

Sixth. This paragraph is a re-enactment, without change, of paragraph "Sixth" of R. S. sec. 711, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 497, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec.

297, infra, p. 250.

As to the original jurisdiction of the District Courts in this class of cases see paragraph "Nineteenth" of Judicial Code, sec. 24, supra, p. 140.

Seventh. This paragraph is a re-enactment, without change, of paragraph "Seventh" of R. S. sec. 711, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 497, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec.

Eighth. This paragraph is a re-enactment of paragraph "Eighth" of R. S. sec. 711, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 497, which was expressly repealed by the Act of Feb. 18, 1875, ch. 80, 18 Stat. L. 318. Just why this clause was repealed the Committee on Revision is unable to state. In In re Iasigi, (1897) 79 Fed. 751, 753, the court, discussing the repeal of the Revised Statutes paragraph, said: "As respects any actual intention of Congress, the repeal of paragraph 8 of section 711, by the Act of 1875, affords no light. The explanation of that repeal is difficult, if not impossible. The Act is entitled 'An Act to correct errors and supply omissions' in the Revised Statutes of the United States. It embraces over seventy different subjects; and the first section of the Act declares that the amendments therein made are made 'for the purpose of correcting errors and supplying omissions' in the Revised Statutes 'so as to make the same truly express' the laws in force on December 1, 1873. There is no doubt that on December 1, 1873, the jurisdiction of the federal courts over consular offenses was exclusive. In both houses of Congress when the bill was presented, as appears from the Congressional Record, members were induced to withdraw proposed amendments on the positive assurance that this Act contained no new legislation and was solely for the purposes above expressed."

Believing that the jurisdiction of the federal courts of suits against ambassadors, public ministers, and consuls should be exclusive, the committee restored the paragraph and recommended its re-enactment.

As to the original jurisdiction of the District Courts of suits against consuls and vice-consuls, see paragraph "Eighteenth" of Judicial Code, sec. 24, supra, p. 140.

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 712, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 497, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 258. [Judges prohibited from practicing law.] It shall not be lawful for any judge appointed under the authority of the United States to exercise the profession or employment of counsel or attorney, or to be engaged in the practice of the law. Any person offending against the prohibition of this section shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor. [36 Stat. L. 1161.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 713, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 497, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 259. [Traveling expenses, etc., of circuit justices and circuit and district judges. The circuit justices, the circuit and district judges of the United States, and the judges of the district courts of the United States in Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico, shall each be allowed and paid his necessary expenses of travel, and his reasonable expenses (not to exceed ten dollars per day) actually incurred for maintenance, consequent upon his attending court or transacting other official business in pursuance of law at any place other than his official place of residence, said expenses to be paid by the marshal of the district in which such court is held or official business transacted, upon the written certificate of the justice or judge. The official place of residence of each justice and of each circuit judge while assigned to the Commerce Court shall be at Washington; and the official place of residence of each circuit and district judge, and of each judge of the district courts of the United States in Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico, shall be at that place nearest his actual residence at which either a circuit court of appeals or a district court is regularly held. Every such judge shall, upon his appointment, and from time to time thereafter whenever he may change his official residence, in writing notify the Department of Justice of his official place of residence. [36 Stat. L. 1161.]

For provisions relating to payment of a judge's expenses see R. S. sec. 554, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 217, repealed in part by the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act of March 3, 1881, ch. 133, 21 Stat. L. 454, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 677, and repealed in toto by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

In making appropriations for the traveling expenses of United States judges when holding court outside of their respective districts, the Act of March 3, 1905, ch. 1483, 33 Stat. L. 1208, imposed the restriction that the expenses should be "actually incurred." This restriction has appeared in each Act making appropriations for such purpose since that time; for example, in the Act of March 4, 1907, ch. 2919, 34 Stat. L. 1390.

R. S. sec. 551, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 216, provided that a district judge "shall reside in the district for which he is appointed;"

and R. S. sec. 607, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 239, that "every circuit judge shall reside within his circuit." Both of those sections are expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 260. [Salary of judges after resignation.] When any judge of any court of the United States appointed to hold his office during good behavior resigns his office, after having held a commission or commissions as judge of any such court or courts at least ten years continuously, and having attained the age of seventy years, he shall, during the residue of his natural life, receive the salary which is payable at the time of his retirement for the office that he held at the time of his resignation. [36 Stat. L. 1161.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 714, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 498, as amended by the Act of Feb. 15, 1909, ch. 127, 35 Stat. L. 619, 1909 Supp. 294. R. S. sec. 714 is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 261. [Writs of ne exeat.] Writs of ne exeat may be granted by any justice of the Supreme Court, in cases where they might be granted by the Supreme Court; and by any district judge, in cases where they might be granted by the district court of which he is a judge. But no writ of ne exeat shall be granted unless a suit in equity is commenced, and satisfactory proof is made to the court or judge granting the same that the defendant designs quickly to depart from the United States. [36 Stat. L. 1162.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 717, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 353, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. Since Circuit Courts are abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249, the words "circuit justice or circuit judge" are omitted and the words "district judge"

substituted, so that the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by these officers will be exercised by the District Court and the district judge. The writ being ancillary to the exercise of original jurisdiction only, the power to issue it is confined to the Supreme Court and the District Courts and their judges.

SEC. 262. [Power to issue writs.] The Supreme Court and the district courts shall have power to issue writs of scire facias. The Supreme Court, the circuit courts of appeals, and the district courts shall have power to issue all writs not specifically provided for by statute, which may be necessary for the exercise of their respective jurisdictions, and agreeable to the usages and principles of law. [36 Stat. L. 1162.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 716, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 498, expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, and from section 12 of the Circuit Court of Appeals Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 517, 26 Stat. Annot. 430. Reference to the Circuit Courts is omitted for reasons stated in the note to section 261, supra; that omission making necessary the specification of the courts in the second sentence in order to preserve in them the power to issue other writs necessary for the exercise of their respective jurisdictions.

SEC. 263. [Temporary restraining orders.] Whenever notice is given of a motion for an injunction out of a district court, the court or judge thereof may, if there appears to be danger of irreparable injury from delay, grant an order restraining the act sought to be enjoined until the decision upon the motion; and such order may be granted with or without security, in the discretion of the court or judge. [36 Stat. L. 1162.]

reference to the Circuit Court, Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 264. [Injunctions; in what cases judge may grant.] Writs of injunction may be granted by any justice of the Supreme Court in cases where they might be granted by the Supreme Court; and by any judge of a district court in cases where they might be granted by such court. But no justice of the Supreme Court shall hear or allow any application for an injunction or restraining order in any cause pending in the circuit to which he is allotted, elsewhere than within such circuit, or at such place outside of the same as the parties may stipulate in writing, except when it can not be heard by the district judge of the district. In case of the absence from the district of the district judge, or of his disability, any circuit judge of the circuit in which the district is situated may grant an injunction or restraining order in any case pending in the district court, where the same might be granted by the district judge. [36 Stat. L. 1162.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 719, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 508, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

In view of the abolition of Circuit Courts by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249, the provision conferring authority upon a circuit judge to grant injunctions in cases where they might be granted by such court is omitted and a similar provision vesting in district judges a similar power has been inserted. For the same reason the last paragraph of R. S. sec. 719, above cited, is omitted.

To meet a condition that might arise in a district, a provision has been added for a case of absence or disability of the district judge. This is but an extension of the power conferred upon the circuit judges by Judicial Code, sec. 18, supra, p. 137.

SEC. 265. [Injunctions to stay proceedings in State courts.] The writ of injunction shall not be granted by any court of the United States to stay proceedings in any court of a State, except in cases where such injunction may be authorized by any law relating to proceedings in bankruptcy. [36 Stat. L. 1162.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 720, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 509, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 266. [Injunctions based upon alleged unconstitutionality of State statutes; when and by whom may be granted.] No interlocutory injunction suspending or restraining the enforcement, operation, or execution of any statute of a State by restraining the action of any officer of such State in the enforcement or execution of such statute, shall be issued or granted by any justice of the Supreme Court, or by any district court of the United States, or by any judge thereof, or by any circuit judge acting as district judge, upon the ground of the unconstitutionality of such statute, unless the application for the same shall be presented to a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, or to a circuit or district judge, and shall be heard and determined by three judges, of whom at least one shall be a justice of the Supreme Court, or a circuit judge, and the other two may be either circuit or district judges, and unless a majority of said three judges shall concur in granting such application. Whenever such application as aforesaid is presented to a justice of the Supreme Court, or to a judge, he shall immediately call to his assistance to hear and determine the application two other judges: Provided, however, That one of such three judges shall be a justice of the Supreme Court, or a circuit judge. Said application shall not be heard or determined before at least five days' notice of the hearing has been given to the governor and to the attorney general of the State, and to such other persons as may be defendants in the suit: Provided. That if of opinion that irreparable loss or damage would result to the complainant unless a temporary restraining order is granted, any justice of the Supreme Court, or any circuit or district judge, may grant such temporary restraining order at any time before such hearing and determination of the application for an interlocutory injunction, but such temporary restraining order shall remain in force only until the hearing and determination of the application for an interlocutory injunction upon notice as aforesaid. The hearing upon such application for an interlocutory injunction shall be given precedence and shall be in every way expedited and be assigned for a hearing at the earliest practicable day after the expiration of the notice hereinbefore provided for. An appeal may be taken direct to the Supreme Court of the United States from the order granting or denying, after notice and hearing, an interlocutory injunction in such case. [36 Stat. L. 1162.]

This section is a re-enactment of section 17 of the Act of June 18, 1910, ch. 309, 36 Stat. L. 557, expressly repealed in Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250, with only such changes in language as are necessitated by the abolition of Circuit Courts effected by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

Appeals to the Circuit Courts of Appeals from orders on applications for interlocutory injunctions in general, see Judicial Code, sec. 129, supra, p. 195.

See note to Act of April 14, 1906, ch. 1627, 34 Stat. L. 116, 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 291, and at the corresponding place, post, vol. 2 of this Supplement.

SEC. 267. [When suits in equity may be maintained.] Suits in equity shall not be sustained in any court of the United States in any case where a plain, adequate, and complete remedy may be had at law. \[ \int 36 \text{ Stat. L. 1163.} \]

With only the substitution of the words "in any court" for the words "in either of the courts," since by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249, Circuit Courts are abolished,

SEC. 268. [Power to administer oaths and punish contempts.] The said courts shall have power to impose and administer all necessary oaths, and to punish, by fine or imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, contempts of their authority: Provided, That such power to punish contempts shall not be construed to extend to any cases except the misbehavior of any person in their presence, or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice, the misbehavior of any of the officers of said courts in their official transactions, and the disobedience or resistance by any such officer, or by any party, juror, witness, or other person to any lawful writ, process, order, rule, decree, or command of the said courts. [36 Stat. L. 1163.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 725, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 534, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 269. [New trials.] All of the said courts shall have power to grant new trials, in cases where there has been a trial by jury, for reasons for which new trials have usually been granted in the courts of law. [36 Stat. L. 1163.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 726, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 549, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 270. [Power to hold to security for the peace and good behavior.] The judges of the Supreme Court and of the circuit courts of appeals and district courts, United States commissioners, and the judges and other magistrates of the several States, who are or may be authorized by law to make arrests for offenses against the United States, shall have the like authority to hold to security of the peace and for good behavior, in cases arising under the Conatitution and laws of the United States, as may be lawfully exercised by any judge or justice of the peace of the respective States, in cases cognizable before them. [36 Stat. L. 1163.]

This section is drawn from R. S. sec. 727, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 519, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. Circuit Courts having been abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249, the words "circuit courts of appeals" have been inserted for the words "circuit courts," although the same judges are authorized to hold persons to security of the peace, etc. Commissioners of Circuit Courts were abolished by the Act of May 28, 1896, ch. 184, sec. 19, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 79, and in lieu thereof United States commissioners were provided for, and the latter term has been substituted for the former in the text section. These changes make no change in the law.

SEC. 271. [Power to enforce awards of foreign consults, etc., in certain cases. The district courts and the United States commissioners shall have power to carry into effect, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, the award or arbitration or decree of any consul, vice consul, or commercial agent of any foreign nation, made or rendered by virtue of authority conferred on him as such consul, vice consul, or commercial agent, to sit as judge or arbitrator in such differences as may arise between the captains and crews of the vessels belonging to the nation whose interests are committed to his charge, application for the exercise of such power being first made to such court or commissioner, by petition of such consul, vice consul, or commercial agent. And said courts and commissioners may issue all proper remedial process, mesne and final, to carry into full effect such award, arbitration, or decree, and to enforce obedience thereto by imprisonment in the jail or other place of confinement in the district in which the United States may lawfully imprison any person arrested under the authority of the United States, until such award, arbitration, or decree is complied with, or the parties are otherwise discharged therefrom, by the consent in writing of such consul, vice consul, or commercial agent, or his successor in office, or by the authority of the foreign government appointing such consul, vice consul, or commercial agent: Provided, however. That the expenses of the said imprisonment and maintenance of the prisoners, and the cost of the proceedings, shall be borne by such foreign government, or by its consul, vice consul, or commercial agent requiring such imprisonment. The marshals of the United States shall serve all such process, and do all other acts necessary and proper to carry into effect the premises, under the authority of the said courts and commissioners. [36 Stat. L. 1163.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 728, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 551, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The words "and circuit" before the word "courts" have been omitted, Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249, and the words "United States commissioners" substituted for "commissioners of circuit courts," for the reason stated in the note to the last section, sec. 270, supra.

SEC. 272. [Parties may manage their causes personally or by counsel.] In all the courts of the United States the parties may plead and manage their own causes personally, or by the assistance of such counsel or attorneys at law as, by the rules of the said courts, respectively, are permitted to manage and conduct causes therein. [36 Stat. L. 1164.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 747, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 556, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 273. [Certain officers forbidden to act as attorneys.] No clerk, or assistant or deputy clerk, of any Territorial, district, or circuit court of appeals, or of the Court of Claims, or of the Supreme Court of the United States, or marshal or deputy marshal of the United States within the district for which he is appointed, shall act as a solicitor, proctor, attorney, or counsel in any cause depending in any of said courts, or in any district for which he is acting as such officer. [36 Stat. L. 1164.]

to its provisions, and dropping clerks of Circuit Courts, since these courts and their clerks are abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249. Near the end of the section the word "any" is substituted for "either," since more than two courts are referred to.

SEC. 274. [Penalty for violating preceding section.] Whoever shall violate the provisions of the preceding section shall be stricken from the roll of attorneys by the court upon complaint, upon which the respondent shall have due notice and be heard in his defense; and in the case of a marshal or deputy marshal so acting, he shall be recommended by the court for dismissal from office. [36 Stat. L. 1164.]

infra, p. 250. The slight changes made in the language are for the purpose of correcting the text, and make no change in the law.

287. Challenges.

288. Persons disqualified for service on jury in prosecution for polygamy, etc.

SEC. 275. [Qualifications and exemptions of jurors.] Jurors to serve in the courts of the United States, in each State respectively, shall have the same qualifications, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, and be entitled to the same exemptions, as jurors of the highest court of law in such State may have and be entitled to at the time when such jurors for service in the courts of the United States are summoned. [36 Stat. L. 1164.]

This section is drawn from that portion of R. S. sec. 800, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 737, which was not superseded or repealed by the Act of June 30, 1879, ch. 52, sec. 2, 21 Stat. L. 43,

SEC. 276. [Jurors, how drawn.] All such jurors, grand and petit, including those summoned during the session of the court, shall be publicly drawn from a box containing, at the time of each drawing, the names of not less than three hundred persons, possessing the qualifications prescribed in the section last preceding, which names shall have been placed therein by the clerk of such court and a commissioner, to be appointed by the judge thereof, or by the judge senior in commission in districts having more than one judge, which commissioner shall be a citizen of good standing, residing in the district in which such court is held, and a well-known member of the principal political party in the district in which the court is held opposing that to which the clerk may belong, the clerk and said commissioner each to place one name in said box alternately, without reference to party affiliations until the whole number required shall be placed therein. [36 Stat. L. 1164.]

This is a re-enactment of a provision in ection 2 of the Act of June 30, 1879, ch. 52, 21 Stat. L. 43, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 749, the change consisting in the substitution of the words "the section last preceding" for the words "in section eight hundred of the Revised Statutes," that being the correct reference of this Judicial Code; and the added provision vesting in the judge senior in commission in districts having more than one judge the power to appoint the court commissioner.

SEC. 277. [Jurors, how to be apportioned in the district.] Jurors shall be returned from such parts of the district, from time to time, as the court shall direct, so as to be most favorable to an impartial trial, and so as not to incur an unnecessary expense, or unduly burden the citizens of any part of the district with such service. [36 Stat. L. 1164.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 802, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 741, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 278. [Race or color not to exclude.] No citizen possessing all other qualifications which are or may be prescribed by law shall be disqualified for service as grand or petit juror in any court of the United States on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of the proviso in sec. 2 of the Act of June 30, 1879, ch. 52, 21 Stat. L. 43, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 749.

SEC. 279. [Venire, how issued and served.] Writs of venire facias, when directed by the court, shall issue from the clerk's office, and shall be served and returned by the marshal in person, or by his deputy; or, in case the marshal or his deputy is not an indifferent person, or is interested in the event of the cause, by such fit person as may be specially appointed for that purpose by the court, who shall administer to him an oath that he will truly and impartially serve and return the writ. Any person named in such writ who resides elsewhere than at the place at which the court is held, shall be served by the marshal mailing a copy thereof to such person commanding him to attend as a juror at a time and place designated therein, which copy shall be registered and deposited in the post office addressed to such person at his usual post-office address. And the receipt of the person so addressed for such registered copy shall be regarded as personal service of such writ upon such person, and no mileage shall be allowed for the service of such person. The postage and registry fee shall be paid by the marshal and allowed him in the settlement of his accounts. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

This section, down to the first period, is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 803, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 742, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250. The remainder of the section is new legislation, the saving of expense being the main consideration in support of it.

SEC. 280. [Talesmen for petit juries.] When, from challenges or otherwise, there is not a petit jury to determine any civil or criminal cause, the marshal or his deputy shall, by order of the court in which such defect of jurors happens, return jurymen from the bystanders sufficient to complete the panel; and when the marshal or his deputy is disqualified as aforesaid, jurors may be so returned by such disinterested person as the court may appoint, and such person shall be sworn, as provided in the preceding section. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 804, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 742, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

Sec. 281. [Special juries.] When special juries are ordered in any district court, they shall be returned by the marshal in the same manner and form as is required in such cases by the laws of the several States. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

of the word "district" for the word "circuit," Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code. sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 282. [Number of grand jurors.] Every grand jury impaneled before any district court shall consist of not less than sixteen nor more than twenty-three persons. If of the persons summoned less than sixteen attend, they shall be placed on the grand jury, and the court shall order the marshal to summon, either immediately or for a day fixed, from the body of the district, and not from the bystanders, a sufficient number of persons to complete the grand jury. And whenever a challenge to a grand juror is allowed, and there are not in attendance other jurors sufficient to complete the grand jury, the court shall make a like order to the marshal to summon a sufficient number of persons for that purpose. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

sion of the words "or circuit" before the word "court," since Circuit Courts are abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

Sec. 283. [Foreman of grand jury.] From the persons summoned and accepted as grand jurors, the court shall appoint the foreman, who shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the grand jury. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

This section is a re-enactment, without change, of R. S. sec. 809, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 744, which is expressly repealed by Judicial Code, sec. 297, infra, p. 250.

SEC. 284. [Grand juries, when summoned.] No grand jury shall be summoned to attend any district court unless the judge thereof, in his own discretion or upon a notification by the district attorney that such jury will be needed, orders a venire to issue therefor. If the United States attorney for any district which has a city or borough containing at least three hundred thousand inhabitants shall certify in writing to the district judge, or the senior district judge of the district, that the exigencies of the public service require it, the judge may, in his discretion, also order a venire to issue for a second grand jury. And said court may in term order a grand jury to be summoned at such time, and to serve such time as it may direct, whenever, in its judgment, it may be proper to do so. But nothing herein shall operate to extend beyond the time permitted by law the imprisonment before indictment found of a person accused of a crime or offense, or the time during which a person so accused may be held under recognizance before indictment found. [36 Stat. L. 1165.]

This section is a re-enactment of R. S. sec. 810, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 744, as amended by the Act of March 28, 1910, 36 Stat. L. 267, with such changes in language as were neces-

SEC. 285. [Discharge of grand juries.] The district courts, the district courts of the Territories, and the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia may discharge their grand juries whenever they deem a continuance of the sessions of such juries unnecessary. [36 Stat. L. 1166.]

omitting the words "circuit and," the Circuit Courts being abolished by Judicial Code, sec. 289, infra, p. 249.

SEC. 286. [Jurors not to serve more than once a year.] No person shall serve as a petit juror in any district court more than one term in a year; and it shall be sufficient cause of challenge to any juror called to be sworn in any cause that he has been summoned and attended said court as a juror at any term of said court held within one year prior to the time of such challenge. [36 Stat. L. 1166.]

Act of June 30, 1879, ch. 52, 21 Stat. L. 43, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 749, which reduced from two years to one year the period in which a person could not be again summoned as a juror.

SEC. 287. [Challenges.] When the offense charged is treason or a capital offense, the defendant shall be entitled to twenty and the United States to six peremptory challenges. On the trial of any other felony, the defendant shall be entitled to ten and the United States to six peremptory challenges; and in all other cases, civil and criminal, each party shall be entitled to three peremptory challenges; and in all cases where there are several defendants or several plaintiffs, the parties on each side shall be deemed a single party for the purposes of all challenges under this section. All challenges, whether to the array or panel, or to individual jurors for cause or favor, shall be tried by the court without the aid of triers. [36 Stat. L. 1166.]

Annot. 53. The number of peremptory challenges on the part of the government in trials for treason or other felony is increased to

SEC. 288. [Persons disqualified for service on jury in prosecutions for polygamy, etc.] In any prosecution for bigamy, polygamy, or unlawful co-habitation, under any statute of the United States, it shall be sufficient cause of challenge to any person drawn or summoned as a juryman or talesman—

First, that he is or has been living in the practice of bigamy, polygamy, or unlawful cohabitation with more than one woman, or that he is or has been guilty of an offense punishable either by sections one or three of an Act entitled "An Act to amend section fifty-three hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in reference to bigamy, and for other purposes," approved March twenty-second, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, or by section fifty-three hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes of the United States, or the Act of July first, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An Act to punish and prevent the practice of polygamy in the Territories of the United States and other places, and disapproving and annulling certain Acts of the legislative assembly of the territory of Utah"; or Second, that he believes it right for a man to have more than one living and undivorced wife at the same time, or to live in the practice of cohabiting with more than one woman.

Any person appearing or offered as a juror or talesman, and challenged on either of the foregoing grounds, may be questioned on his oath as to the existence of any such cause of challenge; and other evidence may be introduced bearing upon the question raised by such challenge; and this question shall be tried by the court.

But as to the first ground of challenge before mentioned, the person challenged shall not be bound to answer if he shall say upon his oath that he declines on the ground that his answer may tend to criminate himself; and if he shall answer as to said first ground, his answer shall not be given in evidence in any criminal prosecution against him for any offense above named; but if he declines to answer on any ground, he shall be rejected as incompetent. [36 Stat. L. 1166.]

Fee for indexing. - In Colt's Patent Firearms Mfg. Co. v. New York Sporting Goods Co., 186 Fed. 625, it was held that as this section makes no provision for indexes, they should be prepared by the clerk of the Circuit Court of Appeals, and since his fee for preparing and indexing the record under the fee bill in force is fixed at a stated sum per page of the whole, and is indivisible, until such fee bill is changed or further legislation enacted parties would be required to pay the full fee thereby prescribed, to be held by the clerk until its return was authorized.

SEC. 2. [Appeals, etc., to Supreme Court — use of printed record in court below as part of transcript — use of uncertified copies of record — clerk's fee - no written transcript of printed record required.] That in any cause or proceeding wherein the final judgment or decree is sought to be reviewed on appeal to or by writ of error or of certiorari from the Supreme Court of the United States, in which the record has been printed and used upon the hearing in the court below and which substantially conforms to the printed record in said Supreme Court, if there have been at the time of filing the record in the court below twenty-five copies of said printed record, in addition to those provided in the preceding section, lodged with the clerk of the court below one copy thereof shall be used by the clerk of the court below in the preparation and as a part of the transcript of the record of the court below; and no fee shall be allowed the clerk of the court below in the preparation of the transcript for such part thereof as is included in said printed record so lodged with him. And the clerk of the court below in transmitting the transcript of record to the Supreme Court of the United States for review shall at the same time transmit the remaining uncertified copies of the printed record so lodged with him, which shall be used in the preparation and as a part of the printed record in the Supreme Court of the United States, and the clerk's fee for preparing the record for the printer, indexing the same, supervising the printing and binding and distributing the copies shall be at such rate per folio thereof, exclusive of the printed record so furnished by the clerk of the court below, as the Supreme Court of the United States may from time to time by rule prescribe; and no written or typewritten transcript of so much of the record as shall have been printed as herein provided shall be required. [36 Stat. L. 901.]

An Act To amend an Act entitled "An Act relating to the liability of common carriers by railroad to their employees in certain cases," approved April twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eight.

[Act of April 5, 1910, ch. 143.]

[Sec. 1.] [Liability of railroad common carriers to employees — time limit of actions — jurisdiction — concurrent jurisdiction of state courts.] That an Act entitled "An Act relating to the liability of common carriers by railroad to their employees in certain cases," approved April twenty-second, nineteen hundred and eight, be amended in section six so that said section shall read:

"SEC. 6. That no action shall be maintained under this Act unless commenced within two years from the day the cause of action accrued.

"Under this Act an action may be brought in a circuit court of the United States, in the district of the residence of the defendant, or in which the cause or action arose, or in which the defendant shall be doing business at the time of commencing such action. The jurisdiction of the courts of the United States under this Act shall be concurrent with that of the courts of the several States, and no case arising under this Act and brought in any state court of competent jurisdiction shall be removed to any court of the United States." [36 Stat. L. 291.]

For sec. 6 of the Act of April 22, 1908, as originally enacted, see 1909 Supp. Fed. Stat. Annot. 585.

SEC. 2. [Survival of actions in case of death.] That said Act be further amended by adding the following section as section nine of said Act:

"SEC. 9. That any right of action given by this Act to a person suffering injury shall survive to his or her personal representative, for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children of such employee, and, if none, then of such employee's parents; and, if none, then of the next of kin dependent upon such employee, but in such cases there shall be only one recovery for the same injury." [36 Stat. L. 291.]

An Act To supplement "An Act to promote the safety of employees and travelers upon railreads by compelling common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to equip their cars with automatic couplers and continuous brakes and their locomotives with driving wheel brakes and for other purposes," and other safety appliance Acts, and for other purposes.

[SEC. 1.] [Railway safety appliances — application of laws.] That the provisions of this Act shall apply to every common carrier and every vehicle subject to the Act of March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, as amended April first, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, and March second, nineteen hundred and three, commonly known as the "Safety Appliance Acts." [56 Stat. L. 298.]

For the Acts above mentioned, see the title RAILBOADS in 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 752, 756, and in 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 375.

- SEC. 2. [Equipment required after July 1, 1911, on cars.] That on and after July first, nineteen hundred and eleven, it shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this Act to haul, or permit to be hauled or used on its line any car subject to the provisions of this Act not equipped with appliances provided for in this Act, to wit: All cars must be equipped with secure sill steps and efficient hand brakes; all cars requiring secure ladders and secure running boards shall be equipped with such ladders and running boards, and all cars having ladders shall also be equipped with secure hand holds or grab irons on their roofs at the tops of such ladders: Provided, That in the loading and hauling of long commodities, requiring more than one car, the hand brakes may be omitted on all save one of the cars while they are thus combined for such purpose. [36 Stat. L. 298.]
- SEC. 3. [Standard equipment required in six months penalty extension of period — modifying standard draw bars.] That within six months from the passage of this Act the Interstate Commerce Commission, after hearing, shall designate the number, dimensions, location, and manner of application of the appliances provided for by section two of this Act and section four of the Act of March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, and shall give notice of such designation to all common carriers subject to the provisions of this Act by such means as the commission may deem proper, and thereafter said number, location, dimensions, and manner of application as designated by said commission shall remain as the standards of equipment to be used on all cars subject to the provisions of this Act, unless changed by an order of said Interstate Commerce Commission, to be made after full hearing and for good cause shown; and failure to comply with any such requirement of the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be subject to a like penalty as failure to comply with any requirement of this Act: Provided. That the Interstate Commerce Commission may, upon full hearing and for good cause, extend the period within which any common carrier shall comply with the provisions of this section with respect to the equipment of cars actually in service upon the date of the passage of this Act. Said commission is hereby given authority, after hearing, to modify or change, and to prescribe the standard height of draw bars and to fix the time within which such modification or change shall become effective and obligatory, and prior to the time so fixed it shall be unlawful to use any car or vehicle in interstate or foreign traffic which does not comply with the standard now fixed or the standard so prescribed, and after the time so fixed it shall be unlawful to use any car or vehicle in interstate or foreign traffic which does not comply with the standard so prescribed by the commission. [36 Stat. L. 299.]

For sec. 6 of the Act of March 2, 1893, as amended April 1, 1896, see 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 756.

SEC. 5. [Liability for hauling defective cars except for repairs.] That except that, within the limits specified in the preceding section of this Act, the movement of a car with defective or insecure equipment may be made without incurring the penalty provided by the statutes, but shall in all other respects be unlawful, nothing in this Act shall be held or construed to relieve any common carrier, the Interstate Commerce Commission, or any United States attorney from any of the provisions, powers, duties, liabilities, or requirements of said Act of March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, as amended by the Acts of April first, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, and March second, nineteen hundred and three; and, except as aforesaid, all of the provisions, powers, duties, requirements, and liabilities of said Act of March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, as amended by the Acts of April first, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, and March second, nineteen hundred and three, shall apply to this Act. [Enforcement by Interstate Commerce Commission.] That it shall be the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of this Act, and all powers heretofore granted to said commission are hereby extended to it for the purpose of the enforcement of this Act. [36 Stat. L. 299.]

An Act Requiring common carriers engaged in interstate and foreign commerce to make full reports of all accidents to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and authorising investigations thereof by said commission.

[Act of May 6, 1910, ch. 208.]

[Sec. 1.] [Railway accidents — common carriers to make monthly reports of.] That it shall be the duty of the general manager, superintendent, or other proper officer of every common carrier engaged in interstate or foreign commerce by railroad to make to the Interstate Commerce Commission, at its office in Washington, District of Columbia, a monthly report, under oath, of all collisions, derailments, or other accidents resulting in injury to persons, equipment, or roadbed arising from the operation of such railroad under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the said commission, which report shall state the nature and causes thereof and the circumstances connected therewith: Provided, That hereafter all said carriers shall be relieved from the duty of reporting accidents in their annual financial and operating reports made to the commission. [36 Stat. L. 350.]

- SEC. 2. [Penalty.] That any common carrier failing to make such report within thirty days after the end of any month shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof by a court of competent jurisdiction shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each and every offense and for every day during which it shall fail to make such report after the time herein specified for making the same. [36 Stat. L. 351.]
- SEC. 3. [Investigation by Interstate Commerce Commission authority conferred — co-operation with state commissions — publication, etc., of reports. That the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have authority to investigate all collisions, derailments, or other accidents resulting in serious injury to person or to the property of a railroad occurring on the line of any common carrier engaged in interstate or foreign commerce by railroad. The commission, or any impartial investigator thereunto authorized by said commission, shall have authority to investigate such collisions, derailments, or other accidents aforesaid, and all the attending facts, conditions, and circumstances, and for that purpose may subpœna witnesses, administer oaths, take testimony, and require the production of books, papers, orders, memoranda, exhibits, and other evidence, and shall be provided by said carriers with all reasonable facilities: Provided, That when such accident is investigated by a commission of the State in which it occurred, the Interstate Commerce Commission shall, if convenient, make any investigation it may have previously determined upon, at the same time as, and in connection with, the state commission investigation. Said commission shall, when it deems it to the public interest, make reports of such investigations, stating the cause of accident, together with such recommendations as it deems proper. Such reports shall be made public in such manner as the commission deems proper. [36 Stat. L. 351.]
- SEC. 4. [Reports inadmissible as evidence in damage suits.] That neither said report nor any report of said investigation nor any part thereof shall be admitted as evidence or used for any purpose in any suit or action for damages growing out of any matter mentioned in said report or investigation. [36 Stat. L. 351.]
- SEC. 5. [Form of reports.] That the Interstate Commerce Commission is authorized to prescribe for such common carriers a method and form for making the reports hereinbefore provided. [36 Stat. L. 351.]
- SEC. 6. [Prior Act repealed.] That the Act entitled "An Act requiring common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to make full reports of all accidents to the Interstate Commerce Commission," approved March third, nineteen hundred and one, is hereby repealed. [36 Stat. L. 351.]

For the Act of March 3, 1901, above repealed, see 6 Fed. Stat. Annot. 757.

SEC. 7. [Definitions—"interstate commerce"—"foreign commerce."] That the term "interstate commerce," as used in this Act, shall include transportation from any State or Territory or the District of Columbia to any other State or Territory or the District of Columbia, and the term "foreign commerce," as used in this Act, shall include transportation from any State or Territory or the District of Columbia to any foreign country and from any foreign country to any State or Territory or the District of Columbia. [36 Stat. L. 351.]

SEC. 8. [Effect.] That this Act shall take effect sixty days after its passage. [36 Stat. L. 351.]

An Act To promote the safety of employees and travelers upon railroads by compelling common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to equip their locomotives with safe and suitable boilers and appurtenances thereto.

[Act of Feb. 17, 1911, ch. 108.]

- [Sec. 1.] [Locomotive boilers common carriers affected by Act meaning of terms "railroads" "employees."] That the provisions of this Act shall apply to any common carrier or carriers, their officers, agents, and employees, engaged in the transportation of passengers or property by railroad in the District of Columbia, or in any Territory of the United States, or from one State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia to any other State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, or from any place in the United States to an adjacent foreign country, or from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States. The term "railroad" as used in this Act shall include all the roads in use by any common carrier operating a railroad, whether owned or operated under a contract, agreement, or lease, and the term "employees" as used in this Act shall be held to mean persons actually engaged in or connected with the movement of any train. [36 Stat. L. 918.]
- Sec. 2. [Locomotives use, unless with safe boilers, unlawful inspection.] That from and after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and eleven, it shall be unlawful for any common carrier, its officers or agents, subject to this Act to use any locomotive engine propelled by steam power in moving interstate or foreign traffic unless the boiler of said locomotive and appurtenances thereof are in proper condition and safe to operate in the service to which the same is put, that the same may be employed in the active service of such carrier in moving traffic without unnecessary peril to life or limb, and all boilers shall be inspected from time to time in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and be able to withstand such test or tests as may be prescribed in the rules and regulations hereinafter provided for. [36 Stat. L. 913.]
- Sec. 3. [Chief and two assistant chief inspectors—appointment, etc.—selection—salaries, etc.—office, etc.] That there shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a chief inspector and two assistant chief inspectors of locomotive boilers, who shall have general superintendence of the inspectors hereinafter provided for, direct them in the duties hereby imposed upon them, and see that the requirements of this Act and the rules, regulations, and instructions made or given hereunder are observed by common carriers subject hereto. The said chief inspector and his two assistants shall be selected with reference to their practical knowledge of the construction and repairing of boilers, and to their fitness and ability to systematize and carry into effect the provisions hereof relating to the inspection and maintenance of locomotive boilers. The chief inspector shall receive a salary of four thousand dollars per year and the assistant chief inspectors shall each receive a salary of three thousand dollars per year; and each of the three shall be paid his traveling expenses incurred in the performance of his duties. The office of the chief inspector shall be in Washington, District of Columbia, and the Interstate Commerce Commission shall provide such stenographic and clerical help as the business of the offices of the chief inspector and his said assistants may require. [36 Stat. L. 914.]

Sec. 4. [Inspection districts — district inspectors — in classified civil service — salaries, etc.— examinations of applicants — disqualifications.] That immediately after his appointment and qualification the chief inspector shall divide the territory comprising the several States, the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona, and the District of Columbia into fifty locomotive boilerinspection districts, so arranged that the service of the inspector appointed for each district shall be most effective, and so that the work required of each inspector shall be substantially the same. Thereupon there shall be appointed by the Interstate Commerce Commission fifty inspectors of locomotive boilers. Said inspectors shall be in the classified service and shall be appointed after competitive examination according to the law and the rules of the Civil Service Commission governing the classified service. The chief inspector shall assign one inspector so appointed to each of the districts hereinbefore named. Each inspector shall receive a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per year and his traveling expenses while engaged in the performance of his duty. He shall receive in addition thereto an annual allowance for office rent, stationery, and clerical assistance, to be fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, but not to exceed in the case of any district inspector six hundred dollars per year. In order to obtain the most competent inspectors possible, it shall be the duty of the chief inspector to prepare a list of questions to be propounded to applicants with respect to construction, repair, operation, testing, and inspection of locomotive boilers, and their practical experience in such work, which list, being approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, shall be used by the Civil Service Commission as a part of its examination. No person interested, either directly or indirectly, in any patented article required to be used on any locomotive under supervision or who is intemperate in his habits shall be eligible to hold the office of either chief inspector or assistant or district inspector. [36 Stat. L. 914.]

SEC. 5. [Inspection by carriers — approval, etc., of rules filed — rules to be observed if carrier fails to file any — changes — office rules, etc. approval of all rules.] That each carrier subject to this Act shall file its rules and instructions for the inspection of locomotive boilers with the chief inspector within three months after the approval of this Act, and after hearing and approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission, such rules and instructions, with such modifications as the commission requires, shall become obligatory upon such carrier: Provided, however, That if any carrier subject to this Act shall fail to file its rules and instructions the chief inspector shall prepare rules and instructions not inconsistent herewith for the inspection of locomotive boilers, to be observed by such carrier; which rules and instructions, being approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and a copy thereof being served upon the president, general manager, or general superintendent of such carrier, shall be obligatory, and a violation thereof punished as hereinafter provided: Provided also, That such common carrier may from time to time change the rules and regulations herein provided for, but such change shall not take effect and the new rules and regulations be in force until the same shall have been filed with and approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The chief inspector shall also make all needful rules, regulations, and instructions not inconsistent herewith for the conduct of his office and for the government of the district inspectors: Provided, however, That all such rules and instructions shall be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission before they take effect. [36 Stat. L. 914.]

Sec. 6. [District inspection — personal inspection of boilers — inspection by carriers — sworn reports to be filed — repairing defects — notice of defective boilers, etc. — appeals to chief inspector by carrier — re-examination effect — appeals to Interstate Commerce Commission — final action — inspector's requirements effective pending appeals.] That it shall be the duty of each inspector to become familiar, so far as practicable, with the condition of each locomotive boiler ordinarily housed or repaired in his district, and if any locomotive is ordinarily housed or repaired in two or more districts, then the chief inspector or an assistant shall make such division between inspectors as will avoid the necessity for duplication of work. Each inspector shall make such personal inspection of the locomotive boilers under his care from time to time as may be necessary to fully carry out the provisions of this Act, and as may be consistent with his other duties, but he shall not be required to make such inspections at stated times or at regular intervals. His first duty shall be to see that the carriers make inspections in accordance with the rules and regulations established or approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that carriers repair the defects which such inspections disclose before the boiler or boilers or appurtenances pertaining thereto are again put in service. this end each carrier subject to this Act shall file with the inspector in charge, under the oath of the proper officer or employee, a duplicate of the report of each inspection required by such rules and regulations, and shall also file with such inspector, under the oath of the proper officer or employee, a report showing the repair of the defects disclosed by the inspection. The rules and regulations hereinbefore provided for shall prescribe the time at which such reports shall be made. Whenever any district inspector shall, in the performance of his duty, find any locomotive boiler or apparatus pertaining thereto not conforming to the requirements of the law or the rules and regulations established and approved as hereinbefore stated, he shall notify the carrier in writing that the locomotive is not in serviceable condition, and thereafter such boiler shall not be used until in serviceable condition: Provided, That a carrier, when notified by an inspector in writing that a locomotive boiler is not in serviceable condition, because of defects set out and described in said notice, may within five days after receiving said notice, appeal to the chief inspector by telegraph or by letter to have said boiler reexamined, and upon receipt of the appeal from the inspector's decision, the chief inspector shall assign one of the assistant chief inspectors or any district inspector other than the one from whose decision the appeal is taken to reexamine and inspect said boiler within fifteen days from date of notice. If upon such reexamination the boiler is found in serviceable condition, the chief inspector shall immediately notify the carrier in writing, whereupon such boiler may be put into service without further delay; but if the reexamination of said boiler sustains the decision of the district inspector, the chief inspector shall at once notify the carrier owning or operating such locomotive that the appeal from the decision of the inspector is dismissed, and upon the receipt of such notice the carrier may, within thirty days, appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and upon such appeal, and after hearing, said Commission shall have power to revise, modify, or set aside such action of the chief inspector and declare that said locomotive is in serviceable condition and authorize the same to be operated: Provided further, That pending either appeal the requirements of the inspector shall be effective. [36 Stat. L. 915.]

- SEC. 7. [Annual report of chief inspector.] That the chief inspector shall make an annual report to the Interstate Commerce Commission of the work done during the year, and shall make such recommendations for the betterment of the service as he may desire. [36 Stat. L. 916.]
- SEC. 8. [Accidents from failure of boilers investigation disabled parts to be preserved — detailed reports — reports by Interstate Commerce Commission of cause, etc. — reports, etc., not admitted in damage suits.] That in the case of accident resulting from failure from any cause of a locomotive boiler or its appurtenances, resulting in serious injury or death to one or more persons, a statement forthwith must be made in writing of the fact of such accident, by the carrier owning or operating said locomotive, to the chief inspector. Whereupon the facts concerning such accident shall be investigated by the chief inspector or one of his assistants, or such inspector as the chief inspector may designate for that purpose. And where the locomotive is disabled to the extent that it can not be run by its own steam, the part or parts affected by the said accident shall be preserved by said carrier intact, so far as possible, without hindrance or interference to traffic until after said inspection. The chief inspector or an assistant or the designated inspector making the investigation shall examine or cause to be examined thoroughly the boiler or part affected, making full and detailed report of the cause of the accident to the chief inspector.

The Interstate Commerce Commission may at any time call upon the chief inspector for a report of any accident embraced in this section, and upon the receipt of said report, if it deems it to the public interest, make reports of such investigations, stating the cause of accident, together with such recommendations as it deems proper. Such reports shall be made public in such manner as the commission deems proper. Neither said report nor any report of said investigation nor any part thereof shall be admitted as evidence or used for any purpose in any suit or action for damages growing out of any matter mentioned in said report or investigation. [36 Stat. L. 916.]

- Sec. 9. [Penalty for violations by carriers duty of district attorneys to bring suits information from chief inspector.] That any common carrier violating this Act or any rule or regulation made under its provisions or any lawful order of any inspector shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every such violation, to be recovered in a suit or suits to be brought by the United States attorney in the district court of the United States having jurisdiction in the locality where such violation shall have been committed; and it shall be the duty of such attorneys, subject to the direction of the Attorney-General, to bring such suits upon duly verified information being lodged with them, respectively, of such violations having occurred; and it shall be the duty of the chief inspector of locomotive boilers to give information to the proper United States attorney of all violations of this Act coming to his knowledge. [36 Stat. L. 916.]
- SEC. 10. [Limit of appropriations.] That the total amounts directly appropriated to carry out the provisions of this Act shall not exceed for any one fiscal year the sum of three hundred thousand dollars. [36 Stat. L. 916.]

That when authority has been or may hereafter be granted by Congress, either directly or indirectly or by any official or officials of the United States, to any persons, to construct and maintain a dam for water power or other purpose across or in any of the navigable waters of the United States, such dam shall not be built or commenced until the plans and specifications for such dam and all accessory works, together with such drawings of the proposed construction and such map of the proposed location as may be required for a full understanding of the subject, have been submitted to the Secretary of War and the Chief of Engineers for their approval, nor until they shall have approved such plans and specifications and the location of such dam and accessory works; and when the plans and specifications for any dam to be constructed under the provisions of this Act have been approved by the Chief of Engineers and by the Secretary of War it shall not be lawful to deviate from such plans or specifications either before or after completion of the structure unless the modification of such plans or specifications has previously been submitted to and received the approval of the Chief of Engineers and of the Secretary of War: Provided, That in approving the plans, specifications, and location for any dam, such conditions and stipulations may be imposed as the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War may deem necessary to protect the present and future interests of the United States, which may include the condition that the persons constructing or maintaining such dam shall construct, maintain, and operate, without expense to the United States, in connection with any dam and accessory or appurtenant works, a lock or locks, booms, sluices, or any other structure or structures which the Secretary of War and the Chief of Engineers or Congress at any time may deem necessary in the interests of navigation, in accordance with such plans as they may approve, and also that whenever Congress shall authorize the construction of a lock or other structures for navigation purposes in connection with such dam, the persons owning such dam shall convey to the United States, free of cost, title to such land as may be required for such constructions and approaches, and shall grant to the United States free water power or power generated from water power for building and operating such constructions: Provided further. That in acting upon said plans as aforesaid the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War shall consider the bearing of said structure upon a comprehensive plan for the improvement of the waterway over which it is to be constructed with a view to the promotion of its navigable quality and for the full development of water power; and, as a part of the conditions and stipulations imposed by them, shall provide for improving and developing navigation, and fix such charge or charges for the privilege granted as may be sufficient to restore conditions with respect to navigability as existing at the time such privilege be granted or reimburse the United States for doing the same, and for such additional or further expense as may be incurred by the United States with reference to such project, including the cost of any investigations necessary for approval of plans and of such supervision of construction as may be necessary in the interests of the United States: Provided further, That the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War are hereby authorized and directed to fix and collect just and proper charge or charges for the privilege granted to all dams authorized and constructed under the provisions of this Act which shall receive any direct benefit from the construction, operation, and maintenance by the United States of storage reservoirs at the headwaters of any navigable streams, or from the acquisition, holding, and maintenance of any forested watershed, or lands located by the United States at the headwaters of any navigable stream, wherever such shall be, for the development, improvement, or preservation of navigation in such streams in which such dams may be constructed. [36 Stat. L. 593.]

- "Sec. 2. [Rights reserved for navigation.] That the right is hereby reserved to the United States to construct, maintain, and operate, in connection with any dam built in accordance with the provisions of this Act, a suitable lock or locks, booms, sluices, or any other structures for navigation purposes, and at all times to control the said dam and the level of the pool caused by said dam to such an extent as may be necessary to provide proper facilities for navigation. [36 Stat. L. 594.]
- "Sec. 3. [Flowage, etc., damages lights, fishways, etc., to be maintained penalty for failure.] That the persons constructing, maintaining, or operating any dam or appurtenant or accessory works, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be liable for any damage that may be inflicted thereby upon private property, either by overflow or otherwise. The persons owning or operating any such dam, or accessory works, subject to the provisions of this Act, shall maintain, at their own expense, such lights and other signals thereon and such fishways as the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall prescribe, and for failure so to do in any respect shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars, and each month of such failure shall constitute a separate offense and subject such persons to additional penalties therefor. [36 Stat. L. 594.]
- "SEC. 4. [Forfeiture of rights revocation when needed for public use - termination in fifty years - exceptions.] That all rights acquired under this Act shall cease and be determined if the person, company, or corporation acquiring such rights shall, at any time, fail, after receiving reasonable notice thereof, to comply with any of the provisions and requirements of the Act, or with any of the stipulations and conditions that may be prescribed as aforesaid by the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War, including the payment into the Treasury of the United States of the charges provided for by section one of this Act: Provided, That Congress may revoke any rights conferred in pursuance of this Act whenever it is necessary for public use, and, in the event of any such revocation by Congress, the United States shall pay the owners of any dam and appurtenant works built under authority of this Act, as full compensation, the reasonable value thereof, exclusive of the value of the authority or franchise granted, such reasonable value to be determined by mutual agreement between the Secretary of War and the said owners, and in case they can not agree, then by proceedings instituted in the United States circuit court for the condemnation of such properties: And provided also, That the authority granted under or in pursuance of the provisions of this Act shall terminate at the end of a period not to exceed fifty years from the date of the original approval of the project under this Act, unless sooner revoked as herein provided or Congress shall otherwise direct: Provided, however, That this limitation shall not apply to any corporation or individual heretofore authorized by the United States, or by any State, to construct a dam in or across a navigable waterway, upon which dam expenditures of money have heretofore been made in reliance upon such grant or grants. [36 Stat. L. 595.]

- "SEC. 5. Said provision as to recovery of expense shall not apply wherever the United States has been previously reimbursed for such removal; and the removal or [of] any structures erected or maintained in violation of the provisions of this Act or the order or direction of the Secretary of War or the Chief of Engineers made in pursuance thereof may be enforced by injunction, mandamus, or other summary process, upon application to the circuit court in the district in which such structure may, in whole or in part, exist, and proper proceedings to this end may be instituted under the direction of the Attorney-General of the United States at the request of the Chief of Engineers or the Secretary of War; and in case of any litigation arising from any obstruction or alleged obstruction to navigation created by the construction of any dam under this Act the cause or question arising may be tried before the circuit court of the United States in any district in which any portion of said obstruction or dam touches. [36 Stat. L. 595.]
- "Sec. 6. [Time for construction.] That whenever Congress shall hereafter by law authorize the construction of any dam across any of the navigable waters of the United. States, and no time for the commencement and completion of such dam is named in said Act, the authority thereby granted shall cease and be null and void unless the actual construction of the dam authorized in such Act be commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date of the passage of such Act. [36 Stat. L. 596.]
- "Sec. 7. [Right to alter, etc., reserved.] That the right to alter, amend, or repeal this Act is hereby expressly reserved as to any and all dams which may be constructed in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and the United States shall incur no liability for the alteration, amendment, or repeal thereof to the owner or owners or any other persons interested in any dam which shall have been constructed in accordance with its provisions. L. 669.]
- Sec. 4. [Injuries by vessels on river and harbor works—adjustment of claims.] That whenever any vessel belonging to or employed by the United States engaged upon river and harbor work collides with and damages another vessel, pier, or other legal structure belonging to any person or corporation, the Chief of Engineers shall cause an immediate and thorough examination to be made, and, if in his judgment, the facts and circumstances of the collision are such as to make the whole or any part of the damage inflicted a proper charge against the United States, the Chief of Engineers, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War, shall have authority to adjust and settle all claims for damages caused by such collision in cases where the claim for damage does not exceed five hundred dollars, and report the same to Congress for consideration. [36 Stat. L. 676.]

- SEC. 3. [Proceeds to credit of irrigation project.] That the moneys derived from the sale of such lands shall be covered into the reclamation fund and be placed to the credit of the project for which such lands had been acquired. [36 Stat. L. 895.]

[Reclamation Act — withdrawal of public notices of charges, etc., permitted — authority of Secretary of Interior.] That the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, withdraw any public notice heretofore issued under section four of the reclamation Act of June seventeenth, nineteen hundred and two, and he may agree to such modification of water-right applications heretofore duly filed or contracts with water users' associations and others, entered into prior to the passage of this Act, as he may deem advisable, or he may consent to the abrogation of such water-right applications and contracts, and proceed in all respects as if no such notice had been given. [36 Stat. L. 902.]

An Act To authorise the Government to contract for impounding, storing, and carriage of water, and to cooperate in the construction and use of reservoirs and canals under reclamation projects, and for other purposes.

[Act of Feb. 21, 1911, ch. 141.]

[SEC. 1.] [Reclamation projects — irrigation systems under Carey Act may contract for excess waters — distribution to individual users — restriction on impounded water — charges — maximum.] That whenever in carrying out the provisions of the reclamation law, storage or carrying capacity has been or may be provided in excess of the requirements of the lands to be irrigated under any project, the Secretary of the Interior, preserving a first right to lands and entrymen under the project, is hereby authorized, upon such terms as he may determine to be just and equitable, to contract for the impounding, storage, and carriage of water to an extent not exceeding such excess capacity with irrigation systems operating under the Act of August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, known as the Carey Act, and individuals, corporations, associations, and irrigation districts organized for or engaged in furnishing or in distributing water for irrigation. Water so impounded, stored, or carried under any such contract shall be for the purpose of distribution to individual water users by the party with whom the contract is made: Provided, however, That water so impounded, stored, or carried shall not be used otherwise than as prescribed by law as to lands held in private ownership within Government reclamation projects. In fixing the charges under any such contract for impounding, storing, or carrying water for any irrigation system, corporation, association, district, or individual, as herein provided, the Secretary shall take into consideration the cost of construction and maintenance of the reservoir by which such water is to be impounded or stored and the canal by which it is to be carried, and such charges shall be just and equitable as to water users under the Government project. No irrigation system, district, association, corporation, or individual so contracting shall make any charge for the storage, carriage, or delivery of such water in excess of the charge paid to the United States except to such extent as may be reasonably necessary to cover cost of carriage and delivery of such water through their works. [38 Stat. L. 925.]

- SEC. 2. [Co-operation with water users for reservoirs, etc. title to works, etc. — limit of water allowed — right to control streams not affected.] That in carrying out the provisions of said reclamation Act and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, upon such terms as may be agreed upon, to cooperate with irrigation districts, water users associations, corporations, entrymen or water users for the construction or use of such reservoirs, canals, or ditches as may be advantageously used by the Government and irrigation districts, water users associations, corporations, entrymen or water users for impounding, delivering and carrying water for irrigation purposes: Provided, That the title to and management of the works so constructed shall be subject to the provisions of section six of said Act: Provided further. That water shall not be furnished from any such reservoir or delivered through any such canal or ditch to any one landowner in excess of an amount sufficient to irrigate one hundred and sixty acres: Provided, That nothing contained in this Act shall be held or construed as enlarging or attempting to enlarge the right of the United States, under existing law, to control the waters of any stream in any State. [36 Stat. L. 926.]
- SEC. 3. [Moneys to be available for reclamation fund.] That the moneys received in pursuance of such contracts shall be covered into the reclamation fund and be available for use under the terms of the reclamation Act and the Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto. [36 Stat. L. 926.]
- An Act To amend an Act entitled "An Act providing for the withdrawal from public entry of lands needed for town-site purposes in connection with irrigation projects under the reclamation Act of June seventeenth, nineteen hundred and two, and for other purposes," approved April sixteenth, nineteen hundred and six.

[Reclamation Act — leases of surplus water power — terms, etc. — impairing irrigation projects prohibited — longer term on Rio Grande project.] That section five of an Act entitled "An Act providing for the withdrawal from public entry of lands needed for town-site purposes in connection with irrigation projects under the reclamation Act of June seventeenth, nineteen hundred and two, and for other purposes," approved April sixteenth, nineteen hundred and six, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 5. That whenever a development of power is necessary for the irrigation of lands, under any project undertaken under the said reclamation Act, or an opportunity is afforded for the development of power under any such project, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to lease for a period not exceeding ten years, giving preference to municipal purposes, any surplus power or power privilege, and the money derived from such leases shall be covered into the reclamation fund and be placed to the credit of the project from which such power is derived: Provided, That no lease shall be made of such surplus power or power privileges as will impair the efficiency of the irrigation project: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, in his discretion, to make such a lease in connection with Rio Grande project in Texas and New Mexico for a longer period not exceeding fifty years, with the approval of the water users' association or associations under any such project, organized in conformity with the rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior in pursuance of section six of the reclamation Act approved June seventeenth, nineteen hundred and two." [36 Stat. L. 930.]

An Act To further regulate interstate and foreign commerce by prohibiting the transportation therein for immoral purposes of women and girls, and for other purposes.

- [Sec. 1.] [White slave traffic Act application of interstate and foreign commerce to transportation.] That the term "interstate commerce," as used in this Act, shall include transportation from any State or Territory or the District of Columbia to any other State or Territory or the District of Columbia, and the term "foreign commerce," as used in this Act, shall include transportation from any State or Territory or the District of Columbia to any foreign country and from any foreign country to any State or Territory or the District of Columbia. [36 Stat. L. 825.]

That any person who shall knowingly transport or cause to be transported, or aid or assist in obtaining transportation for, or in transporting, in interstate or foreign commerce, or in any Territory or in the District of Columbia, any woman or girl for the purpose of prostitution or debauchery, or for any other immoral purpose, or with the intent and purpose to induce, entice, or compel such woman or girl to become a prostitute or to give herself up to debauchery, or to engage in any other immoral practice; or who shall knowingly procure or obtain, or cause to be procured or obtained, or aid or assist in procuring or obtaining, any ticket or tickets, or any form of transportation or evidence of the right thereto, to be used by any woman or girl in interstate or foreign commerce, or in any Territory or the District of Columbia, in going to any place for the purpose of prostitution or debauchery, or for any other immoral purpose, or with the intent or purpose on the part of such person to induce, entice, or compel her to give herself up to the practice of prostitution, or to give herself up to debauchery, or any other immoral practice, whereby any such woman or girl shall be transported in interstate or foreign commerce, or in any Territory or the District of Columbia, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment of not more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. [36 Stat. L. 825.]

Constitutionality of Act. — This Act is not unconstitutional as an attempted infringement of the police powers of the states, and is within the powers conferred on Congress by the commerce clause of the Constitution. U. S. v. Westman, (1910) 182 Fed. 1017; U. S. v. Hoke, (1911) 187 Fed. 992.

Indictment.—A count in an indictment under this Act for transporting women from one state to another for immoral purposes is not bad for duplicity because it charges the transportation of two women at the same time for the same purpose. U. S. v. Westman, (1910) 182 Fed. 1017.

SEC. 3. [Inducing, etc., transportation of women for immoral purposes a felony - punishment. That any person who shall knowingly persuade, induce, entice, or coerce, or cause to be persuaded, induced, enticed, or coerced, or aid or assist in persuading, inducing, enticing, or coercing any woman or girl to go from one place to another in interstate or foreign commerce, or in any Territory or the District of Columbia, for the purpose of prostitution or debauchery, or for any other immoral purpose, or with the intent and purpose on the part of such person that such woman or girl shall engage in the practice of prostitution or debauchery, or any other immoral practice, whether with or without her consent, and who shall thereby knowingly cause or aid or assist in causing such woman or girl to go and to be carried or transported as a passenger upon the line or route of any common carrier or carriers in interstate or foreign commerce, or any Territory or the District of Columbia, shall be deemed guilty of a felony and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. [36 Stat. L. 825.

Sec. 5. [Jurisdiction of courts.] That any violation of any of the above sections two, three, and four shall be prosecuted in any court having jurisdiction of crimes within the district in which said violation was committed, or from, through, or into which any such woman or girl may have been carried or transported as a passenger in interstate or foreign commerce, or in any Territory or the District of Columbia, contrary to the provisions of any of said sections. SEC. 6. [Alien prostitutes — information bureau established — authority of Commissioner-General of Immigration — statements required — statements of alien inmates to be made by keepers of houses of prostitution - failure to file statement a misdemeanor — punishment — presumption if statement not on file — immunity for truthful statements. That for the purpose of regulating and preventing the transportation in foreign commerce of alien women and girls for purposes of prostitution and debauchery, and in pursuance of and for the purpose of carrying out the terms of the agreement or project of arrangement for the suppression of the white-slave traffic, adopted July twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred and two, for submission to their respective governments by the delegates of various powers represented at the Paris conference and confirmed by a formal agreement signed at Paris on May eighteenth, nineteen hundred and four, and adhered to by the United States on June sixth, nineteen hundred and eight, as shown by the proclamation of the President of the United States, dated June fifteenth, nineteen hundred and eight, the Commissioner-General of Immigration is hereby designated as the authority of the United States to receive and centralize information concerning the procuration of alien women and girls with a view to their debauchery, and to exercise supervision over such alien women and girls, receive their declarations, establish their identity, and ascertain from them who induced them to leave their native countries, respectively; and it shall be the duty of said Commissioner-General of Immigration to receive and keep on file in his office the statements and declarations which may be made by such alien women and girls, and those which are hereinafter required pertaining to such alien women and girls engaged in prostitution or debauchery in this country, and to furnish receipts for such statements and declarations provided for in this act to the persons, respectively, making and filing them.

Every person who shall keep, maintain, control, support, or harbor in any house or place for the purpose of prostitution, or for any other immoral purpose, any alien woman or girl within three years after she shall have entered the United States from any country, party to the said arrangement for the suppression of the white-slave traffic, shall file with the Commissioner-General of Immigration a statement in writing setting forth the name of such alien woman or girl, the place at which she is kept, and all facts as to the date of her entry into the United States, the port through which she entered, her age, nationality, and parentage, and concerning her procuration to come to this country within the knowledge of such person, and any person who shall fail, within thirty days after such person shall commence to keep, maintain, control, support, or harbor in any house or place for the purpose of prostitution, or for any other immoral purpose, any alien woman or girl within three years after she shall have entered the United States from any of the countries, party to the said arrangement for the suppression of the white-slave traffic, to file such statement concerning such alien woman or girl with the Commissioner-General of Immigration, or who shall knowingly and willfully state falsely or fail to disclose in such statement any fact within his knowledge or belief with reference to the age, nationality, or parentage of any such alien woman or girl, or concerning her procuration to come to this country, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than two thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

In any prosecution brought under this section, if it appear that any such statement required is not on file in the office of the Commissioner-General of Immigration, the person whose duty it shall be to file such statement shall be presumed to have failed to file said statement, as herein required, unless such person or persons shall prove otherwise. No person shall be excused from furnishing the statement, as required by this section, on the ground or for the reason that the statement so required by him, or the information therein contained, might tend to criminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture

ALASKA.

Vol. I. p. 22, sec. 1.

Removal of seat of government.— The ownership and occupation by the United States of a court-house at Juneau, Alaska, by court officials, and the granting of permission by the judge of the first Alaskan judicial district to the governor and surveyor-general of Alaska to use two rooms of such building for offices, was held not to constitute such a compliance with the proviso in this Act as would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to order the removal of the seat of government of Alaska from Sitka to Juneau. (1906) 25 Op. Atty.-Gen. 613.

But in (1906) 26 Op. Atty.-Gen. 3, it was held that the provision in the Act of June 22, 1906, 34 Stat. L. 416, appropriating $5,000 for clerk hire, rent of office and quarters at Juneau, etc., superseded the legislation embraced in this Act to the extent that the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to direct the removal of the seat of government of Alaska from Sitka to Juneau.

Vol. I, p. 23, sec. 4.

Jurisdiction.—A prosecution for murder, pending at the time of the passage of the Act of March 3, 1899, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 303, establishing a criminal code and code of criminal procedure for Alaska, must, in view of the provision therein for the preservation of pending causes, be regarded as within the "general jurisdiction" in criminal cases conferred upon the District Court for the district of Alaska by this section, whether that court be one newly created by that Act, which contains no provision for a transfer of pending causes, or be an existing tribunal continued thereby. Bird v. U. S., (1902) 187 U. S. 118, 23 S. Ct. 42, 47 U. S. (L. ed.) 100.

Under this section it is held that the court in each division is given jurisdiction throughout the district and that an indictment returned in either division is not defective because it fails to charge that the offense was committed in that particular division. Griggs v. U. S., (1908) 158 Fed. 572.

Vol. I, p. 30, sec. 15, proviso.

Recording location notice — This section does not require, but merely permits, the recording of notices of mining locations, nor does it provide that the failure to record shall work a forfeiture of rights, and such forfeiture does not follow in the absence of a well-established rule or custom of the miners of the district to that effect. Sturtevant v. Vogel, (1909) 167 Fed. 448.

Construction adopted. — The congressional adoption of the Oregon laws for Alaska implied the adoption of their prior construction by the Oregon courts. Nelson v. Meehan, (1905) 2 Alaska 484.

The general land laws are not applicable to Alaska, though the government recognizes and sanctions the actual possession and use of public land in Alaska by any Indian or other person as provided by this section. Martin v. Burford, (1910) 181 Fed. 922.

Section 2339 of Revised Statutes included by this section. - McFarland v. Alaska Perseverance Min. Co., (1907) 3 Alaska 309.

[Persons in possession not to be disturbed, etc.]

"Future legislation." - In McGrath v. Valentine, (1909) 167 Fed. 473, it was held that as to land within the town site of Juneau, future legislation mentioned in this proviso was prescribed by Act of March 3, 1891, ch. 561, secs. 11-14, 26 Stat. L. 1099, 1100, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 53, 54, under which such town site was located, and which provided the manner in which occupants could obtain title and for the determination of possessory rights by the trustee.

Rights of settlers in Alaska. - No intention on the part of Congress to permit rights to public lands in Alaska to be initiated by a settlement made after the enactment of this Act can be gathered from the first provise of this section, especially when considered with the last clause of the section that "nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to put in force in said district the general land laws," and with the provision of section 12 (1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 40), for the appointment of a commission to report the facts to enable Congress to determine what limitations or conditions should be imposed when the land laws should be extended to the district. Russian-American Packing Co. v. U. S., (1905) 199 U. S. 570, 26 S. Ct. 157, 50 U. S. (L. ed.) 314.

Possession acquired subsequent to Act. -The provision in this section that Indians or other persons shall not be disturbed in the possession of any lands "actually in their use or occupation or now claimed by them," refers only to possession held at the time of its passage, and does not protect possession ac-quired since. Columbia Canning Co. v. Hampton, (1908) 161 Fed. 60.

Tide lands. — The first proviso of this section applies to all lands, including tide lands, over which the federal government has exclusive jurisdiction and power of disposal, and protects possessory rights which were then exercised and claimed for fishing or other purposes by occupants of adjoining uplands against others who assert a common right to fish thereon. Heckman v. Sutter, (1904) 128 Fed. 394. See also McCloskey v. Pacific Coast Co., (1908) 160 Fed. 794.

Vol. I. p. 45, sec. 2.

Railroad right of way - prior claims. -Where, prior to a survey, certain oil claims had been located on the public land in controversy in Alaska, such claims, if valid, withdrew the land from entry, so that a railroad company could not obtain a right of way over the same under this section. Alaska Pac. R., etc., Co. v. Copper River, etc., R. Co., (1908) 160 Fed. 862.

Rights of riparian owner. — While the owner or locator of lands in Alaska which border on navigable or tidal waters has under the general law the right of access to such waters for the purpose of navigation, he has no right or title in the soil below high-water mark, and no right of possession which will support an action against an intruder for interfering with or obstructing him in the erection and use of a structure upon the shore below such high-water mark, unless it prevents or obstructs his access to the navigable waters. Columbia Canning Co. v. Hampton, (1908) 161 Fed. 60.

Right of fishery. — An owner or claimant of lands in Alaska which border on navigable waters, having no right to the shore lands, has no exclusive right of fishery in such waters, nor to erect and maintain a fish trap either on the shore between high and low water mark, or in the adjacent deep waters, to the exclusion of others. Columbia Canning Co. v. Hampton, (1908) 161 Fed. 60.

Vol. I. p. 47. sec. 5.

Validity of mortgages. - In Washington Trust Co. v. Dunaway, (1909) 169 Fed. 37, it appeared that the Council City & Solomon River Railroad Company, under its then corporate name, filed its preliminary map of location under this Act in 1903, and afterward commenced the actual construction of its road. In 1905 it executed a mortgage on all of its property then owned or to be thereafter acquired to secure bonds to be used for construction purposes, which mortgage was recorded as required by the Act. It had not at that time complied with the provision requiring the filing of map and profile of definite survey, but the time for doing so and for completion of its road was afterward extended by special Act of Congress, with which it complied. It was held that having in view the purpose of the legislation to en-courage the building of roads, the mortgage was within the scope of its provisions and constituted a valid lien on the company's property.

Under this section, see also Steele v. Tanana Mines R. Co., (1905) 2 Alaska 451.

Vol. I, p. 49, sec. 6.

Record of mortgage. — The provision in this section regarding the recording of mortgages on railroads contemplates a mortgage on the road as an entirety, including right of way, roadbed, track, rolling stock, and appurtenant property, and the general provisions of the Alaska Code of June 6, 1900, secs. 314, 315 1 Fed Stat. Annot. 292, 293, requiring chattel mortgages to be recorded in the precinct where the mortgagor resides and where the property is, and to be renewed each year, de not apply to such a railroad mortgage nor repeal the special provisions for its re-cording. Washington Trust Co. v. Dunaway, (1909) 169 Fed. 37.

Vol. I. p. 50, sec. 10. [Roadway parallel to shore reserved.]

Roedway through reserved lands. - This section refers to a roadway through the reserved land previously described, and not

Conclusiveness of trustee's decision. — Under this Act and regulations promulgated thereunder providing for the disposition of town site lots in Alaska, and authorizing the trial of conflicting claims before the trustee on notice with an appeal to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and from his decision to the Secretary of the Interior, the decision of the trustee is final, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, with reference to all questions of fact arising in such proceeding, except as the same may be reversed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office or the Secretary of the Interior. Miller

v. Margerie, (1907) 149 Fed. 694. See also McGrath v. Valentine, (1909) 167 Fed. 473.

Abandonment of possession.—In Gordon v. Ross-Higgins Co., (1908) 162 Fed. 637, it appeared that plaintiff staked out a lot in the mining camp of Fairbanks, Alaska, and built a log cabin thereon in which he resided for some three months, and then left and did not return for three years. He left some tools, a stove, etc., in the cabin, and asked two dimerent persons to look after the property for him, but neither of them took possession of or occupied the same. No steps had been taken to locate a town site at Fairbanks, and there was no law under which titles were recorded, but books were kept for the benefit of settlers in which locations were recorded, and plaintiff's was recorded therein. About a year after he left, other persons located the lot and went into possession, which was continuous thereafter; their rights having been subsequently acquired in good faith by defendants, who with their grantors had made valuable improvements on the property. It was held that plaintiff's acts amounted to an abandonment of the lot, and that he was not an occupant or in possession and had no right therein which could ripen into a title under the town site law at the time of its location by defendants' predecessor in interest, or which would support an action to recover the property from them.

Acquisition of town site title. — Under this and the three following sections the legal title to town lots can only be acquired from the town site trustee, and his decision on all questions of fact is conclusive, in the absence of fraud, unless reversed on appeal to the land department. McGrath v. Valentine,

Title mere possessory right. — The right of lccators within an alleged town site, not shown to have been entered for that purpose, is at most a mere possessory right, with the privilege of regularly entering the town site in the future, if the citizens so desire, and is insufficient on which to base a suit to remove Ripinsky v. Hinchman, a cloud on title. (1910) 181 Fed. 786.

Recovery for improvements. — The value of improvements made on public lands in Alaska by a mere trespasser, occupying the land without a shadow of title, cannot be recovered from the United States upon the selection of the land in question by the government, in accordance with this section, for a fish culture station. Russian-American Packing Co. v. U. S., (1905) 199 U. S. 570, 26 S. Ct. 157, 50 U. S. (L. ed.) 314.

Termination of rights acquired by settlement and survey. — Any rights previously acquired under sections 12 and 13 of this Act, by settlement upon and survey of public lands in Alaska, were terminated by the proclamation of the President that the land in question was reserved for the purpose of establishing a fish culture station, in accordance with the declaration of this section that the provisions of the last two preceding sections shall not be so construed as to warrant the sale of any lands belonging to the United States which shall be reserved for public purposes or selected for fish culture stations. Russian-American Packing Co. v. U. S., (1905) 199 U. S. 570, 26 S. Ct. 157, 50 U. S. (L. ed.) 314.

Applicability of rules of federal equity court.—By the provisions of this section the rule of the federal courts in equity, requiring both the legal and equitable title to support a suit to quiet title, is not applicable. Fulkerson v. Chisna Min., etc., Co., (1903) 122 Fed. 782.

Uniting causes of action. — In Bruce v. Murray, (1903) 123 Fed. 366, it was held that a cause of action at law could not be united with a cause of action in equity, or either with one in admiralty, so that it was improper to unite a cause of action for foreclosure of a mortgage on a vessel with one to enforce liens for wages of seamen against the vessel.

Nonresidents. — Where at the time a cause of action accrued the debtor was a nonresident of Alaska, but later removed thereto, it was held that the action was barred after six years from the time it accrued, notwithstanding the law of the state where the debtor first lived suspended the statute of limitations of that state during a debtor's absence. Murray v. Farrell, (1905) 2 Alaska 360.

Construction. — The proper construction of this section is that the nominal or technical form of pleading shall be by answer, while those defenses shall only be joined which will create issues that may be properly tried together; and that answers in the nature of pleas in abatement should now, as formerly, be pleaded and determined before the answer to the merits is interposed. Elliott v. Kuzek, (1905) 2 Alaska 587.

Demurrer to answer. — Under this section it has been held that a general demurrer to an answer on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense was erroneously sustained where the answer consisted of two parts, the first of which denied the material allegations of the complaint, and the second pleaded a defense of new matter. Heid v. Ebner, (1904) 133 Fed. 156.

Vol. i, p. 66, sec. 69.

Sufficiency of reply.—A denial in a reply on information and belief of affirmative matter alleged in the answer is sufficient, under this section, to prevent a judgment on the pleadings for want of a reply thereto. Walton v. Wild Goose Min., etc., Co., (1903) 123 Fed. 209.

while others do not, and it requires only that these different causes be separately stated. Kimball v. Miller, (1901) 1 Alaska 347.

Vol. I, p. 69, sec. 92.

Substitution of new plaintiff.—This section does not allow an amendment that substitutes an entirely new party plaintiff. Thus where a suit was brought in the name of the Willamette Tent & Awning Co., the plaintiff was not allowed to amend by substituting the name of Henry Wemme, doing business in the name of the Willamette Tent & Awning Co. Willamette Tent, etc., Co. v. West Coast Grocery Co., (1903) 2 Alaska 4. Under this section, see also Nowell v. Behrends. (1908) 3 Alaska 495.

for a nonsuit was granted. Debney v. Iles, (1907) 3 Alaska 438.

Conclusiveness of judgment in original action.—In an action on an attachment bond given under this section, conditioned, as there in provided, for the payment of "all costs that may be adjudged to the defendant and all damages that he may sustain by reason of the attachment if the same be wrongful or without sufficient cause," a judgment in favor of the defendant in the attachment suit is conclusive that the attachment was without sufficient cause, and of the liability of the obligors upon the bond. Anvil Gold Min. Co. v. Hoxsie, (1903) 125 Fed. 724.

The costs of the suit on the merits are not included in the attachment bond. Elwell v. Seattle Scandinavian Fish Co., (1905) 2 Alaska 617.

Vol. I, p. 81, sec. 150.

Effect of bond. — A defendant in an attachment suit who gives the undertaking provided for by this section for the release of the attachment is not thereby estopped to maintain an action on the attachment bond to recover his costs and the damages he may have sustained by reason of the attachment, if it is finally determined that plaintiff had no cause of action, although he may be held to have waived irregularities or defects in the attachment proceedings. Anvil Gold Min. Co. v. Hoxsie, (1903) 125 Fed. 724.

Provise unconstitutional.—Alaska was so incorporated into the United States by the treaty under which it was acquired and subsequent congressional legislation as to render repugnant to the United States Constitution, 6th Amendment, the provision of this section that in trials for misdemeanors in Alaska six jurors shall constitute a legal jury. Rassmussen v. U. S., (1905) 197 U. S. 516, 25 S. Ct. 514, 49 U. S. (L. ed.) 862.

Vol. I, p. 87, sec. 187, cl. sixth.

Necessity for written charge. — A provision in this section that on request the charge of the court "shall be reduced to writing and given to the jury by the court as written, without any oral explanation," is to be reasonably construed with reference to the purpose intended to be secured thereby, and a judgment will not be reversed because the court orally answered a question asked by the jury after they had retired, where it could not have prejudiced the plaintiff in error. Walton v. Wild Goose Min., etc., Co., (1903) 123 Fed. 209.

Vol. I, p. 90, sec. 208.

Necessity for writing. — Where it appeared both in the bill of exceptions and in the judgment that a jury was waived by stipulation of the parties in open court, the Circuit Court of Appeals was not precluded from reviewing assignments of error relating to the admission or exclusion of evidence, because the waiver was not in writing and filed as provided by R. S. secs. 649, 700, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 393, 450. Shields v. Mongollon Exploration Co., (1905) 137 Fed. 539.

Vol. I, p. 92, sec. 223.

Necessary delay. - A delay in settling and signing a bill of exceptions until after the expiration of the time fixed for filing the same as extended, caused by the inability of the court stenographer to make a transcript of his notes of the evidence and exceptions within the time so extended, is an extraordinary circumstance within an exception to the rule that a bill not presented within such time cannot be signed thereafter, so that, on such facts appearing, it is the duty of the judge to sign and allow the bill. Dalton v. Gunnison, (1908) 165 Fed. 873.

"Signing." — The signature of the judge to orders allowing and settling bills of exceptions does not constitute a "signing" of the bills within this section. Dalton v. Hazelet, (1910) 182 Fed. 561.

Time of filing exceptions. — Under the provision in this section that exceptions prepared and settled shall be filed with the clerk within ten days from the entering of the decree or such time as the court may allow, it was held that exceptions not filed with the clerk until more than six months after the entering of the decree, without an order extending the time, were nugatory. Dalton v. Hazelet, (1910) 182 Fed. 561.

Vol. I, p. 125, sec. 378.

Absence of evidence on record. — Where an action was dismissed without prejudice for a failure of proof, and on appeal none of the evidence was contained in the record, it was held that the Circuit Court of Appeals could not say that the dismissal without prejudice was an abuse of the court's discretion. Dismissal for lack of proof.—A motion under this section by the defendant at the close of plaintiff's case, to dismiss a suit of an equitable nature on the ground that plaintiff has failed to make a prima facie case, like a motion in an action at law for a non-suit or direction of a verdict on the same ground, admits every fact which the evidence proves, or tends to prove, as well as the facts which may naturally and rationally be inferred from the facts proved. Possessory title. — Under this section and R. S. sec. 910, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 35, which provides that no possessory action for the recovery of any mining title shall be affected by the fact that the paramount title to the land is in the United States, but each case shall be adjudged by the law of possession, one in possession of a mining claim in Alaska under a valid location has such title as will support an action to quiet title against an adverse claimant. Fulkerson v. Chisna Min., etc., Co., (1903) 122 Fed. 782.

A plaintiff who was living in a tent on one of a number of adjoining mining claims owned by him, and had commenced the sinking of a shaft thereon, had sufficient possession to entitle him to maintain a suit under Alaska Code of June 6, 1900, c. 786, 31 Stat. The portions of this section which authorize appeals direct to the Supreme Court have been revised and superseded by Judicial Code, sec. 247, ante, title JUDICIARY, p. 234 of this Supplement. As to review by the Circuit Court of Appeals the section is evidently superseded by Judicial Code, sec. 134, ante, p. 197 of this Supplement.

Filing judgment as prerequisite to appeal.

There is no provision in the Alaska Code requiring that a judgment shall be filed as a prerequisite to the perfecting of an appeal therefrom. Mackay v. Fox, (1903) 121 Fed.

Appeals to Circuit Court of Appeals. - The appellate jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit over appeals and writs of error from the District Courts of Alaska is not ruled by Act of April 7, 1874, ch. 80; 18 Stat. L. 27, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 460, relating to appeals from judgments and decrees of territorial courts, but by this section of the Alaska Code of Civil Procedure authorizing such appeals. Shields v. Mongollon Exploration Co., (1905) 137 Fed. 539.

Amount in controversy. - In determining the appellate jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals the amount of the judgment from which the appeal or writ of error may be prosecuted, and not the amount originally involved in the suit, is the amount in controversy. J. P. Jorgenson Co. v. Rapp, (1907) 157 Fed. 732, 85 C. C. A. 364. See note to section 507 of the Alaska Code, infra.

Mode of review. - Under this section and section 508, it was held that the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals had jurisdiction to review a decree in an action to recover an interest in a mining claim tried to the court by writ of error. Shields v. Mongollon Exploration Co.,

The purpose of Congress in this legislation has been to enlarge and not to restrict the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals with respect to interlocutory injunctions. . . . It is plain that the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of Appeals on appeal from an interlocutory order granting or dissolving an injunction, or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction, under section 507 of the Alaska Code, is not limited by the provisions of section 504 of that Code respecting appeals from final judgments or orders of the District Court." The limitation of five hundred dollars does not apply to section 507. J. P. Jorgenson Co. v. Rapp, (1907) 157 Fed. 732, 85 C. C. A. 364.

Supersedeas. - The inherent power of the Circuit Court of Appeals to grant a supersedeas on appeal from an order appointing a receiver is not interfered with by this section. In re McKenzie, (1901) 180 U. S. 536, 21 S. Ct. 468, 45 U. S. (L. ed.) 657, holding also that a writ of supersedeas issued by the clerk of a Circuit Court of Appeals is not void because its issue was directed by a judge of the court, and not by the court as a court.

Authority to abolish precincts. — In Cheney v. Alaska Treadwell Gold Min. Co., (1906) 148 Fed. 808, it appeared that pursuant to the provision of this section six precincts, including Douglas Island and Juneau precincts, were established in the first division, and a commissioner appointed in each. Subsequently an order was entered by the judge of the division, abolishing Douglas Island precinct, and providing that the territory embraced therein should become a part of the Juneau precinct. It also accepted the resignation of the commissioner and directed him to "deliver the records and property pertaining to his office" to the commissioner of the Juneau precinet. It was held that the effect of such order was to extend the limits of Juneau precinct, to constitute the commissioner thereof the successor in office of the former commissioner of Douglas Island precinct, and to transfer to him all the pending probate cases in said precinct, with power to proceed therein; that an order thereafter made by him removing an administrator appointed by the commissioner of Douglas Island precinct and appointing a new administrator of the estate was within his jurisdiction and valid.

Competency of witnesses. — The witnesses required by this section need not be disinterested persons; the ancient rules so requiring being based on the fact that, under the law at that time, interested persons were not competent to testify in court to such execution in case of any controversy respecting it, which law has been generally abrogated, and is not in force in Alaska. Thus an assignment of a lease of mining property in Alaska. required by Code Civ. Proc. Alaska, sec. 1046, 31 Stat. L. 493, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 236, to be executed with the formality of a deed, is not invalid because the subscribing witnesses thereto were members of the partnership which was the assignee. Halla v. Cowden, (1909) 170 Fed. 559.

Mecessity of attestation as between parties.—The requirement of this section that deeds of lands or any interest in lands executed within the district shall be executed in the presence of two witnesses, who shall subscribe the same as such, does not make such attestation necessary to the validity of the deed as between the parties, but is a formality necessary to entitle the deed to record. "Conveyance." — Under Civ. Code Alaska, sec. 181, 1 Fed. Stat. Annot. 262, which defines "real property" as including "all lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and rights thereto, and all interests therein, whether in fee simple or for the life of another," a lease of a mining claim for years conveys a chattel interest only and not an interest in the land, and is not a "conveyance" within the meaning of this section, the recording of which will protect the lessee against a prior unrecorded deed; nor is such lessee an innocent purchaser in good faith for a valuable consideration within such section, where he is to work the claim and pay the lessor a royalty. Eadie v. Chambers, (1909) 172 Fed. 73.

Title of section misleading.—This section is, despite the title, a classification of foreign bills of exchange for the purpose of fixing damages where the bills are drawn on a person in some state or territory of the United States. The damages in this class of bills are fixed at a less sum than in the class given in section 196, for the reason that the rates of exchange and the expenses and cost of collection are less between the states than they would be between foreign countries.

The mere fact that the compiler of the code has denominated the bills in section 196 as "foreign," and those in section 197 as "in-land," in no way makes them such. These are merely arbitrary titles, given by the compiler or editor, which the text of the law does not warrant. This code in no way changes the distinctions or definitions of the law merchant regarding foreign and inland bills of exchange. Miller v. American Gold Min. Co., (1906) 3 Alaska 1.

Construction. — The phrase "double the amount of the interest so received or collected," as used in this section, should not be construed as referring to and qualifying the words "usurious interest," so as to authorize judgment only for double the amount of the excess of the interest above the statutory rate, but that the section authorized recovery of twice the entire interest paid. Hemple v. Raymond, (1906) 144 Fed. 796. See also Fish v. Hemple, (1903) 2 Alaska 175.

Before an action may be maintained under this provision of the Alaska Code, the debtor must have actually paid an amount in excess of the principal and legal interest. Werner v. Lorentzen, (1907) 3 Alaska 275.

Vol. I, p. 281, sec. 258.

Contract before Act passed — action afterwards. — The Oregon interest statutes, in force in Alaska from 1884 to 1900, limited the rate of interest which might be lawfully contracted for to ten per cent., and provided that contracts by which a higher rate was reserved should be usurious, and the entire debt should be forfeited. Hill's Ann. Laws Ore. 1892, secs. 3587-3590. Sections 255-259 of the Alaska Code contain similar provisions, except that the contract rate may be twelve per cent., and the penalty for usury is the forfeiture of the interest only. It has been held that a mortgage executed in Alaska in 1898, securing notes in which interest at the rate of twelve per cent. was reserved, on which suit was there brought in 1903, was not subject to the defense of usury. Petterson v. Berry, (1903) 125 Fed. 902.

Vol. I, p. 282, sec. 262.

Construction. — This section and sections 266 and 266, providing for and authorizing the foreclosure of mechanics' liens, should be liberally construed, but such lien, being of purely statutory creation, can be established only by a substantial compliance with the statute. Russell v. Hayner, (1904) 130 Fed. 90; Jorgensen Co. v. Sheldon, (1906) 2 Alaska 607.

Labor done upon claim. — Work done in cleaning up and washing gold taken from a mining claim is "labor done upon the claim," for which the workmen are entitled to a lien under this section. Cascaden r. Wimbish, (1908) 161 Fed. 241.

Nature of work. - Where men were hired to work in making improvements on a mining claim at a certain sum per day and their board, one who devoted a part of his time to cooking for himself and the others was held to be entitled equally with the others to a mechanic's lien for his wages. Cascaden v. Wimbish, (1908) 161 Fed. 241.

Work done for lessee of mining claim.— The lien given by this section and sections 263 and 265, construed together, extends to and binds the interest of the owner of a mining claim for improvements made thereon under direction of a lessee with the owner's knowledge and in the absence of any disclaimer of responsibility by him. Cascaden v. Wimbish, (1908) 161 Fed. 241. Complaint — Statement of owner's name. — This section provides that every builder shall have a lien on a building erected or material furnished or labor performed thereon at the instance of the owner of the building, etc., and section 266 makes it the duty of every original contractor within a specified time to file with the recorder a claim, with the name of the owner or reputed owner, if known. It has been held that a statement of a lien, and a complaint to foreclose the same, which failed to state the name of the owner of the building, or to state that the name of the owner was unknown, was insufficient, though it stated the name of the legal title to the land, and the name of a vendee at whose instance the building was erected. Russell v. Hayner, (1904) 130 Fed. 90.

At instance of owner. — In order to establish a mechanic's lien under this section it must be alleged and proved that the work or labor was done "at the instance of the owner of the building or his agent;" a mere allegation that plaintiffs erected the structure at the instance of one who was in possession of the land under a contract to purchase with the owners being insufficient. Knowledge of owner. — A mechanic's lien cannot be established under this section where it does not appear from the complaint that the owners of the lot on which the building was erected had any knowledge of the contract made by the person in possession, under a contract of purchase, with the contractors, for the construction of a building, or that the building was constructed at the instance of such owners. Russell v. Hayner, (1904) 130 Fed. 90.

Necessary parties. — In a suit against the owner of a mining claim to establish a laborer's lien thereon for work done at the instance of lessees, such lessees are not necessary parties, and it is within the discretion of the court to refuse to permit the filing of an amended answer setting up their nonjoinder as a defense, after the case is ready for trial and after such lessees have left the jurisdiction of the court. Cascaden v. Wimbish, (1908) 161 Fed. 241.

S. Const., art. 1, sec. 8, must be uniform throughout the United States, although the proceeds are, by section 463 of this Act, to be paid into the treasury of the United States, and are not specifically appropriated to the expenses of the territory; but such fees must be deemed local taxes, imposed under the plenary power of Congress over the territories, for the purpose of defraying the expense of the territorial government, where the total sum derived from these and all other revenues of the territory does not equal the cost of maintaining such government. "Freight handled." — In John J. Sesnon Co. ©. U. S., (1910) 182 Fed. 573, it appeared that the defendant maintained a wharf structure at Nome, and was also engaged in the sale of coal for the joint account of itself and the seller. The defendant guaranteed the seller's advances in a sufficient sum to realize a net profit of fifty cents a ton on the coal sold and a further interest in the net proceeds of the sale of the coal and the profit in excess of fifty cents a ton; defendant regulating the selling price of the coal. It was held that coal handled under such contract from vessels by means of defendant's wharf structure constituted "freight handled," within this section, requiring persons maintaining public docks, wharves, and warehouses in Alaska to pay a license fee of ten cents per ton on freight handled or stored.

"Public wharf."—In John J. Sesnon Co. v. U. S., supra, it appeared that the defendant operated a lighterage business in Nome, consisting of an aerial tramway operated from towers anchored on permanent concrete foundations several hundred feet out to sea. Along this tramway cargoes were discharged from vessels by means of lighters; defendant contracting with each vessel for lighterage services at an agreed price per ton. It was held that such structure constituted a "public wharf," which defendant had no right to operate without payment of the fee. "Meat market."—The term "meat mar-

Repeal. — The power given to the District Court of Alaska by this section to apportion the license moneys collected from persons for doing business within an incorporated town, and thereby required to be paid over by the clerk of the court to the treasurer of the municipality, and to designate by order the proportion that should be used for school and for municipal purposes, respectively, was taken away by Act of April 28, 1904, ch. 1778, 33 Stat. L. 529, 10 Fed. Stat. Annot. 18, 19, which for the first time authorized the common council of incorporated towns to levy a general tax for school purposes, and required it to establish and maintain schools and provide the necessary funds therefor, and which also provided that the license moneys should be paid over to the municipal treasurer without qualification, "to be used for school and municipal purposes," and repealed all inconsistent Acts. the same as misdemeanors, and which repeals all prior Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent therewith, although acted upon by a town, does not affect the jurisdiction of the District Court over prosecutions for the same acts which are made offenses by the Alaska Code of March 3, 1899, ch. 429, 30 Stat. Good faith.—The benefits of the Act authorizing the consolidation of claims or locations of coal lands in Alaska can be shared only by persons who made such locations in good faith—that is, honestly and lawfully—prior to Nov. 16, 1906, in their own interests individually, without fraud, collusion, or deceit, or any purpose to violate any provision of the law. Therefore if it can be shown that agreements or arrangements for transferring entries to a company or corporation were entered into by locators of coal lands in Alaska after they had made their locations in good faith and in their own interest alone, such locations may, under the provisions of this Act, lawfully pass to entry and patent in accordance with the terms of said Act; but if such agreements or arrangements were entered into prior to such locations being made, the locations do not come within the provisions of the Act and cannot be lawfully passed to entry and patent. Shea v. Nilima, (1904) 133 Fed. 209.

Agreement to locate claims.—An agreement between two aliens to acquire or locate mining claims in Alaska for their joint benefit is not void; nor does the fact of their alienage prevent one who subsequently declared his intention to become a citizen from enforcing the contract by recovering his interest in a claim located in the name of the other pursuant to such agreement. to see that its employees engaged in handling its meats are not exposed to infectious diseases. If it relies on the government inspection, it is responsible to its servants in that regard for the efficiency of such inspection. O'Connor v. Armour Packing Co., (1908) 158 Fed. 241.

Eshleman v. Union Stockyards Co., (1908) 222 Pa. St. 20, 70 Atl. 899.

State laws.—The Arkansas statute (Act May 28, 1907) to prevent the introduction and spread of contagious and infectious diseases of animals in that state is not in conflict with this Act, which does not attempt to assume exclusive control over the quarantine of diseased animals, nor cover the transportation of live stock from state to state, so as to preclude state action, but merely authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to co-operate with state authorities, and to prescribe rules and regulations in that regard, nor does it conflict with rules and regulations so prescribed. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. State, (1909) 90 Ark. 343, 119 S. W. 288. In Reid v. Colorado, (1902) 187 U. S. 137.

(1902) 29 Colo. 333, 68 Pac. 228, it was held that the subject of transportation of cattle from one state to another was not so far covered by the provisions of this Act, or those relating to the exportation of diseased cattle to ports in foreign countries, and the transportation between the states of live stock known to be diseased, as to preclude the enactment of a statute (Colo. Sess. Laws 1885, p. 335) prohibiting the importation of cattle from south of the 36th parallel of north latitude between April 1 and Nov. I, unless first kept for ninety days at some place north of that parallel, or unless a certificate of freedom from contagious or infectious disease has been obtained from the state veterinary sanitary board.

Shipment of animals free from disease.— This section does not prohibit the shipment of animals free from disease, and the Secretary of Agriculture has no power thereunder to make rules and regulations with reference to such animals, the violation of which alone would constitute a crime. U. S. v. Hoover, (1904) 133 Fed. 950.

State laws. — In Asbell v. Kansas, (1908) 209 U. S. 251, 28 S. Ct. 485, 53 U. S. (L. ed.) 778, it was held that nothing in the provision of this Act that, when an inspector of the Bureau of Animal Industry has issued a certificate that he has inspected animals and found them free from disease, such animals may be introduced into any state without further inspection, or exaction of fees of any kind except such as may be ordered or ex-acted by the Secretary of Agriculture, pre-cluded the enactment of Kansas Laws 1905, ch. 495, sec. 27, making it a misdemeanor for any person to transport into that state cattle from any point south, except for immediate slaughter, without having first caused them to be inspected and passed as healthy by the proper state officials, or by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Interior Department of the United States.

But in Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Frye-Bruhn Co., (1910) 184 Fed. 15, it was held that the Driving diseased cattle from district not quarantined.—This Act makes it a misdemeanor to transport or drive on foot from one state to another any live stock known to be affected with any of the diseases specified in the Act, irrespective of the question whether or not the Secretary of Agriculture has established as an "infected district" the district from which the live stock are driven. provisions of orders Nos. 106 and 107 of the Secretary of Agriculture, promulgated March 10 and 13, 1903, respectively, under authority of this Act, establishing quarantine districts for cattle and regulations to be observed by carriers in the shipment of cattle from such districts, and which provided (order No. 107, sec. 4) that "cattle from said area may be transported by rail or boat for immediate slaughter" subject to such regulations, had the force of law and were paramount with respect to interstate shipments; and that the Washington statute (Code Wash. 1896, secs. 3216, 6431), which absolutely prohibits the introduction of Texas cattle into the state, without regard to their condition, so far as it conflicts with such federal regulations was void.

Effect of departmental regulations on state laws. — A regulation promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture under the authority of this Act, which is directed to the transportation of cattle from quarantined states, and which in terms recognizes restrictions imposed by the state of destination, does not invalidate -at least, where no quarantined areas are involved — the provision of Kansas Laws 1905, ch. 495, sec. 27, making it a misdemeanor for any person to transport into the state cattle from any point south, except for immediate slaughter, without having first caused them to be inspected and passed as healthy by the proper state officials, or by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Interior Department of the United States. Asbell v. Kansas, (1908) 209 U. S. 251, 28 S. Ct. 485, 53 U. S. (L. ed.) 778.

Connecting carriers outside quarantine district. — The receipt outside a quarantine district and subsequent transportation by a railroad company of live stock that was received for transportation, and was transported by a previous carrier from a quarantine district in one state into another state, has been held not an offense under this Act. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Co. v. U. S., (1911) 188 Fed. 191; U. S. v. El Paso, etc., R. Co., (1910) 178 Fed. 846; U. S. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (1910) 181 Fed. 882.

But in a case arising in the Circuit Court in the District of South Carolina a contrary view was reached. U. S. v. Southern R. Co., (1911) 187 Fed. 209, wherein the court said:
"The purpose of the Act of March 3, 1905, is to prevent the dissemination of contagious, infectious, or communicable diseases of live stock, by prohibiting the interstate transportation from infected areas. By section 2 of the Act, the receiving for transportation is made an offense, and the actual transportation itself is made an offense. It is evident, therefore, that the Congress had in view that the act of transportation, as well as the act of receiving for transportation, should be subject to such regulations as the Secretary of Agriculture should prescribe. If a connecting carrier, which receives cattle under a continuous shipment, is not subject to these regulations, then the object that the Congress had in view may, as far as the connecting carrier is concerned, be defeated. In other words, the contention is that, although the secretary may make regulations concerning this continuous shipment, the connecting carrier is not bound to observe them. Such a construction would defeat the purposes of the Act. The construction placed upon the Act in the two cases cited and relied upon, that where the transportation is over several connecting roads the railroad only whose tracks lie in the quarantined area, and which received the cattle therein and transported them, interstate, into that territory, is liable, is too narrow. This contention is based upon the interpretation of the phrase 'from any quarantined state,' etc., which would restrict the offense to the original movement of the cattle from a quarantined area of a state to another state. The phrase 'from any quarantined state,' etc., must be taken in connection with the succeeding words 'into any other state,' etc., and both must be construed in aid of the remedial purpose of the Act. To constitute the offense of transportation under this Act, the transportation must not only be 'from' a quarantined territory, but it must be 'into' prohibited territory. The act of transportation is a continuous one, and, where there is a through shipment, each successive carrier which takes up and transports the cattle towards its final destination in the prohibited territory is engaged in transporting, and is therefore amenable to the Act."

Duty imposed on both carrier and shipper.

— In Wakefield v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., (Ky. 1907) 104 S. W. 779, it was held that under this section and a rule of the Secretary of Agriculture forbidding shipment of sheep from a state quarantine for scabies, unless inspected by a government inspector, and requiring a certificate of health to accompany the sheep, the same duty was imposed on the shipper and the carrier as to obtaining a certificate, and if the shipper moved his sheep without a sufficient certificate and the alleged certificate was not signed by an inspector, he violated the Act as well as the carrier, and could not maintain an action for damages suffered by the loss of such paper by the carrier.

Delegation of legislative power. — Section 1 of this Act authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to establish quarantine limits for the transportation of live stock, and section 2 prohibits transportation companies from receiving for transportation or transporting from any quarantined territory in one state to another state "any cattle or other live stock except as hereinafter provided," and section 6 makes a violation of section 2 a misdemeanor. The exception referred to in section 2 is that, in the event the secretary shall deem that public safety permits, he shall establish rules and regulations under which live stock may be lawfully moved from quarantined territory in one state to another state. It was held that the exception was not to be construed to be as broad as the prohibition, and equivalent to a general prohibition against all shipments accompanied by a general permission of all shipments on compliance with departmental rules, but rather as containing a general prohibition, together with a limited and conditional exception, applicable only to such epidemics determined by the secretary to be of such a character as to justify ship-ments under particular safeguards; and hence that section 2 was not invalid as attempting to create an offense for violation of the departmental rule. U.S. v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1910) 176 Fed. 942.

Vol. X, p. 36, sec. 3.

Regulations. — Regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture under this section are ineffective to add to the class of railroad companies or to the acts denounced by that statute, and railroad companies that in violation of such regulations receive and transport outside a quarantined district live stock which has been received for transportation, and has been transported by a previous carrier from the quarantined district in one state into another state, are not punishable therefor. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Co. v. U. S. (1911) 188 Fed. 191.

Amendment No. 2 of order No. 143 of the regulations of the Agricultural Department, covering shipments of cattle from quarantined territory, only modified, and did not revoke, order No. 143, by revoking regulations 13 and 14 and substituting two new regulations therefor. U. S. v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1910) 176 Fed. 942.

Must show due publication of notice. — An indictment charging a railroad company with having transported live stock from a quarantined district into another state, in violation of this Act, which avers that the Secretary of Agriculture gave notice of the establishment of such quarantine to the "proper officers" of defendant, is insufficient, as alleging a mere legal conclusion; nor is the establishment of such quarantine sufficiently alleged by stating that the secretary "duly and legally established" it, but it must further show that he published the notice required by section 1 of the Act, which is prerequisite to a criminal conviction. U. S. v. El Paso, etc., R. Co., (1910) 178 Fed. 846.

Prospective operation. — In U. S. v. Hoover, (1904) 133 Fed. 950, it was held that this provision affected only rules and regulations made thereafter, and did not have the retroactive effect of giving validity to a prior void order.

"Make and promulgate."—The words "make" and "promulgate," as used in this section are not synonymous; the duty to "make" rules and regulations is sufficiently accomplished by writing them and signing them officially, but to "promulgate" them requires the giving notice thereof to the officers of transportation companies, etc., and their publication in the selected newspapers within the affected district. U. S. v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1908) 165 Fed. 936.

Vol. X, p. 36, sec. 4.

Delegation of legislative power. — The offense denounced by this section is defined merely by rules and regulations thereafter to be established by the Department of Agriculture, and hence no offense was created by such section, because of the rule that Congress has no power to intrust to the executive the power to declare by a departmental rule or regulation that to be unlawful and to constitute a crime which would otherwise not be so, nor itself to declare a violation of rules or regulations, thereafter to be promulgated by the executive, a criminal offense. U. S. v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1910) 176 Fed. 942.

Indictment.— An indictment against a carrier for moving cattle from a quarantined district, contrary to and in violations, failing to directly allege facts showing the promulgation of such rules, or otherwise than that the rules and regulations were "duly and legally made and promulgated," was insufficient. U. S. v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., (1908) 165 Fed. 936.

1909 Supp., p. 43, sec. 1.

What law governs.—To the extent that this Act fixes the duties and liabilities of the shipper and carrier in interstate transportation, it is obviously controlling, and displaces any state law on the subject. Gilliland v. Southern R. Co., (1910) 85 S. C. 26, 67 S. E. 20

Construction of second proviso. — The meaning of the second proviso of this section regarding sheep is that if the twenty-eighthour limit expires at night, the transit may be continued to a suitable place for unloading, without the consent of the owner or custolian, except that in no case shall the thirty-six-hour limit be exceeded. Southern Pac. Co. v. U. S., (1909) 171 Fed. 360; U. S. v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., (1911) 185 Fed. 105.

son, etc., R. Co., (1911) 185 Fed. 105.

Connecting carrier. — There has been considerable discussion among the judges of various districts as to whether or not the "twenty-eight-hour law" respecting the interstate shipment of live stock, admits of the construction that the length of time consumed in the transportation by the antescedent carrier can be carried over and charged to the connecting carrier, who does not run over the twenty-eight or thirty-six hours' time without unloading, feeding, and watering. In U. S. v. Stockyards Terminal Co., (1909) 172 Fed. 452, Judge Willard held that where the initial carrier of live stock has been subjected to the penalty imposed by this Act for confining live stock longer than permitted without unloading, rest, water, and feeding, in a second action against a connecting carrier to recover for the same confinement, the first twenty-eight hours or thirty-six hours which were necessarily included in the first action cannot be counted against the defendant or the connecting line.

In Northern Pac. Terminal Co. v. U. S., (1911) 184 Fed. 603, it appeared that the defendant, a terminal railroad company, received a car load of horses from a connecting railroad company, which had transported them in interstate commerce. Such carrier had kept them confined in the car for more than twenty-eight hours without unloading for rest, water, and feeding, in violation of the twenty-eight hour law, and was indicted and fined therefor. The defendant received them for transportation over its line for some 1,300 feet to stockyards, and moved them to such yards with all speed possible, and there unloaded them for rest, water, and feed. was held that defendant was not chargeable with violation of the statute, but that, on the contrary, its action aided in giving effect to its object and purpose.

But in U. S. v. Northern Pac. Terminal

But in U. S. v. Northern Pac. Terminal Co., (1911) 186 Fed. 947, it was held that where a terminal company's railroad formed a part of a continuous line of interstate transportation over which live stock was transported, and the animals had been confined in the cars without being unloaded for food, water, and rest for a period longer than that prescribed by the twenty-eight-hour law before being delivered to the terminal company for transportation to the stockyards for unloading, the terminal company could not relieve itself from liability for continuing such transportation on the ground that it found the cattle so confined at a place where they could not be unloaded except by being taken to the stockyards, nor, except in exceptional cases, because its violation of the law would subserve a humane purpose; the terminal company being under no obligation to accept the cattle from its connecting carrier under such circumstances.

So in U. S. v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., (1911) 184 Fed. 971, it was held that where animals have been confined for the entire statutory period before being delivered to a connecting carrier, it is not necessary that a new period equal to the statutory time must again expire before the connecting carrier can be held guilty of violating the Act; the liability being complete on the connecting carrier's continuing the transportation toward the destination except to transport them to the yards at the junction point to unload them, under the provision that, in estimating the confinement, the time consumed in loading and unloading shall not be considered, but the time during which they have been confined on connecting roads is to be included.

Extraterritorial operation. — This Act, though construed to apply to interstate shipments from one state to another through a foreign country, is not objectionable as extraterritorial in operation, since the offense is complete by continued confinement only after the statutory time has expired; it being immaterial that a part of the time has been consumed by transportation in a foreign country. U. S. v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., (1911) 184 Fed. 971.

Megligence of employees no defense. — It is no defense to an action for "knowingly and wilfully" violating this statute that the defendant made rules requiring its employees to comply with the same, and that its failure to do so was through the negligence of an employee and in violation of its rules. U. S. r. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., (1909) 173 Fed. 764.

Liability to shipper for injuries to stock.—
In Gilliland v. Southern R. Co., (1910) 85 S. C. 26, 67 S. E. 20, it was held that in the absence of federal decisions on the question, this Act, which is substantially the same as the state statute regulating shipments of stock within the state, must be given the same construction and effect, and the carrier of an interstate shipment be held liable for injuries resulting from its failure to supply proper shelter and protection when stock are unloaded to be fed and watered.

Equipment of stock pens. — This Act does not require a carrier to maintain any particular kind of equipment of its stock pens, permanent or otherwise, except in so far as to render them suitable for the humane purpose of properly feeding, watering, and resting the particular shipment of stock unloaded into them. U. S. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., (1910) 177 Fed. 205.

Sufficiency of request.—(a) A legal request under this Act may be made by the authorized agent of the owner, or by the person in custody of the particular shipment. (b) Such a request may be printed, engraved, or stamped and partly in handwriting. (c) A legal request may be made on or in a railroad form separate and apart from a printed bill of lading or other railroad form than one which contains the request alone. (d) Such a request may be made before the transportation of the shipment commences. (e) Such a request may be made although it is not induced by any unforeseen contingency that arises after the transportation commences. Wabash R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 5; Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 12; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 15.

Authority to request extension of time.— There is a legal presumption that one to whom an owner of animals has intrusted their possession and control for delivery to a railroad company for shipment, and who actually delivers and ships them, is authorized by the owner to make the request specified in this law, and to do any other usual act relevant to such a transaction. A railroad company is justified in relying upon this presumption, and cannot be held to have violated the law knowingly and wilfully because it confines animals more than twenty-eight and less than thirty-six hours in reliance upon this presumption, without notice or knowledge of any defect in the authority of the agent. Wabash R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 5.

Request for each shipment.—To justify confinement for a longer term than twenty-eight hours the shipper must file a written request for each shipment, and may not file a single general request applicable to all future shipments of his cattle. U. S. v. Pere Marquette R. Co., (1909) 171 Fed. 586.

Delegation of legislative power. — The provision of the twenty-eight-hour law authorizing the shipper of cattle or the person accompanying them to extend the time of their confinement to thirty-six hours, is not such a delegation of legislative power as would render the law unconstitutional. Southern Pac. Co. v. U. S., (1909) 171 Fed. 360.

The time consumed in loading and unloading stock is not to be considered as a part of their confinement in the cars permitted by the twenty-eight-hour law. U. S. v. Northern Pac. Terminal Co., (1911) 186 Fed. 947. Compliance with statute not negligent de-

Compliance with statute not negligent delay. — Where the person in charge refused to sign the thirty-six-hour release, and cattle were shipped from Arkansas through Missouri to East St. Louis, and upon arrival at a point in Arkansas it became apparent that the shipment could not be carried to destination within the prescribed twenty-eight hours, and it was unlawful to unload such cattle in Missouri, the carrier was not negligent in unloading the cattle at the Arkansas point reached, resulting in a delay in their delivery at destination, where the only train which they could have been shipped on, which passed through the place of feeding after a lapse of the five-hour period, was a slow train which reached destination at the same time as did the faster train upon which they were carried. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Davenport, (Ark. 1910) 133 S. W. 186.

The terms "knewingly and wilfully" describe an essential element of the offense on account of which the penalties are prescribed, without proof of which they cannot be recovered. Thus where a stockyards company, which, without actual knowledge that cattle have been confined nearly twenty-eight hours, and without making any effort to find out whether they have been or not, receives them from a common carrier, and with diligence hauls them a few miles to its stockyards, and there unloads them for rest, food, and water, when these stockyards are nearer to the place of the receipt of the cattle than any other place where they could be unloaded, fed, and watered, it is not guilty of "knowingly and wilfully" confining the cattle in violation of the twenty-eight-hour law. St. Joseph Stockyards Co. v. U. S., (1911) 187 Fed. 105.

Where defendant, a terminal railroad company, received cattle from a connecting car-

Where defendant, a terminal railroad company, received eathle from a connecting carrier for the sole purpose of transporting them to certain stockyards to feed, water, and rest them, and then to return them to the carrier from which they had been received, not knowing that such carrier had already confined them in the cars exceeding the time allowed by this Act, the terminal carrier, having used due diffigence in carrying the cattle to the stockyards and unloading them, was not guilty of itself "knowingly and wilfully" violating such Act; such words being intended to mean either an intentional violation of the statute or an indifferent disregard of its requirements. U. S. v. Stockyards Terminal R. Co., (1910) 178 Fed. 19, affirming (1909) 172 Fed. 452.

A carrier that delivers a shipment of cattile to a connecting carrier in time, according to the usual course of transportation, for their carriage to and unloading within the twenty-eight hours at pens suitably equipped for unloading, feeding, watering, and resting them, either at their destination or on their way, without notice or knowledge that they must be or will be delayed in their arrival beyond that time, cannot be held to have violated this Act of Congress knowingly and wilfully. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 15.

wilfully. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. U. D., (1910) 178 Fed. 15.

Penalty.—The number of the penalties recoverable under this Act is not measured by the number of shipments on the same train, nor is the train the unit of offense; but where the same train contains live stock loaded at different periods, one penalty accrues when the period of lawful confinement for the cattle first loaded expires, and other separate and distinct penalties accrute as the time for the phrase "contingencies hereinbefore stated" as used in this section includes both the case where the carrier was prevented from sinkeding by storm or other assidental or unaveidable causes and the contingency of the owners having filed a written request extending the time of confinement to thirty-six hours. U. S. v. Pere Marquetts R. Co., (1909) 171 Fed. 586.

lawful confinement of the cattle loaded at later periods successively expires. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1911) 220 U. S. 95, 31 S. Ct. 368.

But one penalty may be recovered against

But one penalty may be recovered against a carrier violating the provisions of the Act where the time for the required unloading of two shipments loaded at different times coincides, because one shipment was forwarded under the thirty-six-hour rule, and the other was made eight hours later, under the twenty-eight-hour rule, from a different station. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. r. U. S., (1911) 226 U. S. 98, 31 S. Ct. 388.

To the same effect as the original note, see U. S. v. Oregon R., etc., Co., (1968) 163 Fed. 642; Southern Pac. Co. v. U. S., (1969) 171 Fed. 360.

Fixing amount of penalty.—It is the prevince and duty of the court to fix the amounts of the recoveries in actions for violations of the twenty-eight-hour law, and that of the jury to determine whether or not the defendants have violated that law. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 12; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 15.

Sufficiency of evidence. — The greater weight of the evidence is sufficient to sustain an action by the United States for a violation of the twenty-eight-hour law, and it is not required to establish its case by proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 12; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 15.

not required to establish its case by proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 12; Messouri. etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 12; Messouri. etc., R. Co. v. U. S., (1910) 178 Fed. 15.

Failure to furnish water in patent cars.—Where cattle were transported in patent cattle cars, equipped with troughe affording an opportunity to water them without unloading, but the cattle were kept in the cars for a period longer than that authorized by statute, without water being introduced in the troughs, for at least a part of the cattle, the carrier was held to be liable for the penalty provided by the twenty-eight-hour law. U. S. v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., (1911) 188 Fed. 541.

Proviso. — Where, in the shipment of cattle from Chicago to New York, one of the cars, thirty-six feet long, contained twenty-one bulls, tied side by side in alternate sides of the cars, and in a number of other cars from eighteen to nineteen large cattle were carried, it was held that the cars were too heavily loaded, it appearing by uncontradicted proof that cattle under transportation should have at least two and one-half feet of space for each animal. ## Vol. I, p. 464, art. 8, cl. twenty-second.

Desertion by miner. — The civil courts should not interfere by habeas corpus to discharge a minor under eighteen years of age who has been enlisted in either the military or naval service without the consent of his parents or guardian, if at the time of the presentation of the petition for the writ the minor is under arrest and held for trial by court-martial on a charge of desertion of fraudulent enlistment or other charge cognizable by a military or naval court. U. S. v. Reaves, (1903) 126 Fed. 127; Dillingham v. Booker, (1908) 163 Fed. 696, 16 Ann. Cas. 127.

Enlistment by person under eightsen witheut consent of parent or guardian. — Where an infant, not eligible to enlistment in the navy, enlisted without the consent of his parents or guardian, it was held that he was not "a person belonging to the navy" and was not punishable as for fraudulent enlistment under this section. Ex p. Lisk, (1906) 145 Fed. 860.

Habeas cerpus. — In a habeas corpus proceeding to recover possession of a minor under eighteen years of age, who had enlisted in the navy without the consent of his parents or guardian, it was held to be no answer to the writ that the naval authorities were entitled to retain the custody of the minor for the purpose of having him tried by a naval court-martial for fraudulent enlistment. Exp. Lisk, (1906) 145 Fed. 860.

Vol. I, p. 472, art. 38.

"Waters of the United States." — The prohibition against the convocation of a general court-martial by the commander of a fleet or squadron without the previous authorization of the President, which is made by article 38, when such fleet or squadron is "in the waters of the United States," applies only to those waters which are within what is termed by the Act of March 3, 1901, 31 Stat. L. 1108, ch. 852, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 332, the continental limits of the United States. In other words, the provision in question does not take into view the dominion or sovereignty of the United States over territory beyond the seas and far removed from the seat of government, but contemplates waters within the United States in the stricter and popular sense of the term. The prohibition against the convocation by the commander of a flect or squadron of a general court-martial, without the previous authorization of the President, was intended to be operative only when the fleet or squadron is in a home port. U. S. v. Smith, (1905) 197 U. S. 336, 25 S. Ct. 489, 49 U. S. (Li. ed.) 801.

Time fer service of charges.—The arrest referred to in this article as the time when the person accused is to be furnished with a copy of the charges and specifications on which he is to be tried by a naval court-martial, is not the preliminary arrest or detention while awaiting the action of higher authority to frame charges and specifications and order the court-martial, but is the arrest resulting from the preferring of the charges by the proper authority and the convening of the court-martial. U. S. v. Smith, (1905) 197 U. S. 386, 25 S. Ct. 489, 49 U. S. (L. ed.) 801.

Vol. I, p. 475, art. 53.

Review by civil court. — Civil courts are not courts of error to review the proceedings and sentences of courts-martial, where they are legally organised and have jurisdiction of the offense and of the person of the accused, and have complied with the statutory requirements governing their proceedings. Mullan v. U. S., (1909) 212 U. S. 516, 29 S. Ct. 330, 53 U. S. (L. ed.) 632.

"Mitigation of sentence." — Reducing the sentence of a court-martial which dismissed a naval officer from the service, to suspension for five years on one-half sea pay, with a reduction in rank to the foot of the list of officers of his grade, is a mitigation of the sentence within the meaning of this article, that "every officer who is authorized to convene a general court-martial shall have power, on revision of its proceedings, to remit or mitigate, but not to commute, the sentence of any such court which he is authorized to approve and confirm." Mullan t. U. S., (1909) 212 U. S. 516, 29 S. Ct. 330, 53 U. S. (L. ed.) 632.

Waiver of objection to admission of record of court of inquiry.—A court-martial convened at the request of a naval officer to investigate charges against him is not without jurisdiction because such officer was required, as a condition precedent, to waive the protection of this article, by consenting to the admission in evidence of the record of the teatimony introduced before a prior court of inquiry, with the right to call additional witnesses. Mullan v. U. S., (1909) 212 U. S. 516, 29 S. Ct. 330, 53 U. S. (L. ed.) 632.

military law, for which he may be punished by a court-martial. U. S. v. Michael, (1907) 153 Fed. 609.

343, it was held that the enactment of this article was a distinct recognition by Congress of the general jurisdiction in time of peace of the civil courts of the state over persons in the United States military service accused of offenses against citizens of the state.

A District Court has jurisdiction to indict and try a person charged with having forged an obligation of the United States with intent to defraud, which is made an offense against the United States by R. S. sec. 5414, 2 Fed. Stat. Annot. 298, although he was at the time an officer of the army, and the alleged offense was committed at a military post, and with intent to defraud an enlisted soldier, where the accused has since been discharged from the army without any action against him having been taken by the military authorities; there being no provision, either constitutional or statutory, conferring exclusive jurisdiction on courts-martial to punish such offense. termination of his innocence of murder and of each lesser offense necessarily included therein, was no bar to his subsequent military arrest and trial by a general courtmartial, for conduct "to the prejudice of good order and military discipline," in vio-

Where a defendant on bail in a criminal case in a federal court voluntarily went into another state with knowledge that prior indictments were there pending against him, and he was arrested, tried, convicted, and imprisoned, it was held that his default of the bail bond was wilful and entitled him to no relief under this section. U. S. v. Marrin, (1909) 170 Fed. 476.

Determination of question as to solvency. -The definition of insolvency provided by section la (15) must be strictly adhered to in determining whether or not an alleged bank-rupt is solvent or otherwise. In re Rome Planing Mill, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 812, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Rome Planing-Mill Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1900) 99 Fed. 937, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766; Duncan v. Lan-dis, (3d Cir. 1901) 106 Fed. 839, 45 C. C. A. 666, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 649; In re Elmira Steel Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1901) 109 Fed. 456, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484; In re Gilbert, (D. C. Ore. 1902) 112 Fed. 951, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 101; In re Douglas Coal, etc., Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1904) 131 Fed. 769, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539; In re Pettingill, (D. C. Mass. 1905) 135 Fed. 218; In re Marine Iron Works, (E. D. N. Y. 1908) 159 Fed. 753, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 390; Stern v. Paper, (D. C. N. D. 1910) 183 Fed. 228; Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Morgan Jewelry Co., (1904) 123 Ia. 432, 99 N. W. 121; Hackney v. Raymond Bros. Clarke Co., (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822, 99 N. W. 675; National Bank, etc., Co. r. Spencer, (1900) 53 App. Div. 547, 65 N. Y. S. 1001; Levor v. Seiter, (1901) 34 Misc. 382, 69 N. Y. S. 987, reversed on other grounds (1902) 69 App. Div. 33, 74 N. Y. S. 499; Martin v. Bigelow, (1901) 36 Misc. 298, 73 N. Y. S. 443; Wilkinson v. Anderson-Taylor Co., (1904) 28 Utah 346, 79 Pac.

The term "insolvency," as understood in the administration of bankrupt and insolvent laws, is the inability of a person to pay his debts as they mature in the regular course of business; as understood in dealing with con-tracts challenged on the ground of fraud, ac-tual or constructive, it has reference to the insufficiency of the assets of the debtor to cover his liabilities. Marvin v. Anderson, (1901) 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 520, 111 Wis. 387, 87 N. W. 226.

The issue as to solvency or insolvency is to be determined at the date of the commission of the alleged act of bankruptcy. In re Rome Planing-Mill Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1900) 99 Fed. 937, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766.

As to partnership insolvency, see the annotation under section 5a, infra, p. 501.

Fair valuation. — The property should be taken at a fair valuation in determining the question of solvency, not at the amount it afterwards brings when sold at auction by a trustee in bankruptcy. Rutland County Nat. Bank v. Graves, (D. C. Vt. 1907) 156 Fed. 168, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446. "Fair valuation" means a value that can be made promptly effective by the owner of property to pay his debts. Such a value ex-cludes, on the one hand, the sacrifice price that would result from an execution or foreclosure sale; and, on the other hand, the retail price that could be realized in the slow process of trade. Stern v. Paper, (D. C. N. D. 1910) 183 Fed. 228.

"Fair valuation" means such a price as a capable and diligent business man could presently obtain for the property after conferring with those accustomed to buy such property. Such a value will depend upon many circumstances, such as the age and condition of the stock, the season of the year, and the state of trade. Stern v. Paper, (D. C. N. D. 1910) 183 Fed. 228.

The test of a "fair valuation" of property is its market value at the time legal proceedings were taken, where that can be fairly been affected by such proceedings. In re Hines, (D. C. Ore. 1906) 144 Fed. 142, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 295. The fair "market value" of a corporation's assets, for the purpose of determining its solvency when it commits an alleged act of bankruptcy, is the value which the corporation might have realized on them for itself. In re Marine Iron Works, (E. D. N. Y. 1968)

159 Fed. 753, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 390.
In Empire State Trust Co. v. William F. Fisher Co.. (1904) 67 N. J. Eq. 88, 57 Atl. 502. the following rule is given: "The authorities country to held the state of the state o thorities seem to hold the reasonable rule that the assets of the debtor must . valued as those of a going concern, if that be the actual condition, and that subsequent actual insolvency is not the true and only test."

Preferences considered. — Where the alleged act of bankruptcy consists in granting or permitting a preference to a creditor, the property thus transferred is to be considered in determining the question of solvency at that time. In re Doscher, (E. D. N. Y. 1992) 120 Fed. 408, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 547; In re Hines, (D. C. Ore. 1906) 144 Fed. 142, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 295; Acme Food Co. v. Meier, (6th Cir. 1907) 153 Fed. 77, 82 C. C. A. 208, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 550.

Exempt property included. -- In determining the issue as to the solvency or insolvency of an alleged bankrupt, all of the property which he owns is to be reckoned in computing the amount of his assets, except such as he may have transferred or concealed in fraud of creditors, but not excluding property which is exempt from execution by the laws of the state. In re Baumann, (W. D. Tenn. 1899) 96 Fed. 946, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 196; In re Hines, (D. C. Ore. 1906) 144 Fed. 142, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 295; In re Crenshaw, (S. D. Ala. 1907) 156 Fed. 638, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502.

Fraudulent transfers excluded. - Property transferred in fraud of creditors is not to be considered in determining the solvency of an alleged bankrupt. In re Shoesmith, (7th Cir. 1905) 135 Fed. 684, 68 C. C. A. 322, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 645; Acme Food Co. v. Meier. (6th Cir. 1907) 153 Fed. 74, 62 C. C. A. 208, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 550; In re Creashaw, (S. D. Ala. 1907) 156 Fed. 638, 19 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 502.

Other matters considered in determining solvency. — Outstanding bonds, though issued irregularly, should not be excluded from consideration in determining the question of a corporation's insolvency in bankruptcy proceedings against it. Wifkes Barre First Nat. Bank v. Wyoming Valley Ice Co., (M. D. Pa. 1905) 136 Fed. 466, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 448.

Interest of mortgagor in mortgaged property.—The interest of an alleged bankrupt in premises that he has mortgaged should be considered in determining whether he is solvent or insolvent within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act. Lansing Boiler, etc., Works Ryerson. (6th Cir. 1904) 128 Fed. 701, 63 C. C. A. 253, 11 Am, Bankr. Rep. 558; Acme Food Co. v. Meier, (6th Cir. 1907) 153 Fed. 74, 82 C. C. A. 208, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 550. Debt guaranteed by bankrupt.—In a suit

Debt guaranteed by bankrupt.— In a suit by a bankrupt's trustee to avoid a preference, it was held that a debt of a third person who was insolvent, and which the bankrupt had guaranteed, was properly considered as a debt of the bankrupt in determining his solvency at the time the alleged preference was given; and this though the guaranty was oral and within the statute of frauds, as that statute relates merely to the evidence required to prove the undertaking, and not to its validity. Huttig Mfg. Co. v. Edwards, (8th Cir. 1908) 160 Fed. 619, 87 C. C. A. 521, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 349.

Suspension of business. — Upon the question of the insolvency of a corporation at the time of the commission of an alleged act of bankruptcy, evidence of its suspension of business, and its inability to pay its debts, at a time within a few weeks or months therester is competent, and, in the absence of other evidence, is sufficient to warrant a finding of such insolvency. In re Elmira Steel Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1901) 109 Fed. 456, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484.

The verified schedules of a bankrupt are competent evidence on the question of his insolvency, not only when the petition was filed, but also when a conveyance claimed to have been preferential was made, if within a reasonable time prior thereto, In re Mandel, (8. D. N. Y. 1903) 127 Fed. 863, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 774, affirmed (2d Cir. 1905) 135 Fed. 1021, 68 C. C. A. 546.

Contingent assets.—Assets must have a present value, and be salable, in order to be considered in determining the question of the solvency of an alleged bankrupt; contingent assets are not within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act. In re Rome Planing-Mill Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1900) 99 Fed. 937, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766; In re Bloch, (2d Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 790, 48 C. C. A. 650, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300; In re Marine Iron Works, (E. D.

N. Y. 1908) 159 Fed. 753, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 390.

Prospective profits upon goods ordered, but not paid for and not delivered, which might arise from orders to be filled in the future if not canceled, and if paid for, are not property, and cannot be considered as a part of the alleged bankrupt's assets. In re Bloch, (2d Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 790, 48 C. C. A. 650, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300.

The liability of stockholders of a corporation for stock claimed to have been issued without payment, which claim is disputed, cannot be taken into account as an asset in determining the question of the corporation's solvency in bankruptcy proceedings against it. Wilkes Barre First Nat, Bank v. Wyoming Valley Ice Co., (M. D. Pa. 1905) 136 Fed. 466, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 448.

Accounts receivable. — In determining the solvency or insolvency of a person, his accounts receivable are to be taken at their actual value and not at their nominal value. While it might be that something could be realized out of them in the future, that does not satisfy the law. It is their value at the time of the bankruptcy that is to be taken into consideration. In re Coddington, (M. D. Pa. 1902) 118 Fed. 281, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 243.

Inference of insolvency.—No inference arises from an adjudication in bankruptcy that the bankrupt was insolvent within the meaning of the act four months before he was adjudicated such. In re Chappell, (E. D. Va. 1901) 113 Fed. 545, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608.

The fact that a man is pressed and cannot meet his debta as they fall due is no evidence that he is insolvent within the meaning of the Bankrupt Act. In re Chappell, (E. D. Va. 1901) 113 Fed. 545, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608.

Proof that a man was insolvent on a certain day does not justify an inference that he was insolvent on a day some time prior thereto. Many contingencies, such as unwise investments, losing contracts, misfortune, or accident, might happen to reduce a person from a state of solvency to one of insolvency within a short space of time. Kimball v. Dresser, (1904) 98 Me. 519, 57 Atl. 787; Halbert v. Pranke, (1904) 11 Am. Bankr. Rép. 620, 91 Minn. 204, 97 N. W. 976.

In In re Lange. (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 197, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 231, it was held, where the bankrupt sent a letter to his creditors stating his inability to pay his debts and calling a meeting for the purpose of inducing them to take in settlement a small percentage in unsecured notes, that he was insolvent.

CHAPTER II.

CREATION OF COURTS OF BANKRUPTCY AND THEIR JURISDICTION.

SEC. 2. [FEDERAL AND TERRITORIAL COURTS.] That the courts of bankruptcy as hereinbefore defined, viz, the district courts of the United States in the several States, the supreme court of the District of Columbia, the district courts of the several Territories, and the United States courts in the Indian Territory and the District of Alaska, are hereby made courts of bankruptcy, and are hereby invested, within their respective territorial limits as now established, or as they may be hereafter changed, with such jurisdiction at law and in equity as will enable them to exercise original jurisdiction in bankruptcy proceedings, in vacation in chambers and during their respective terms, as they are now or may be hereafter held, to [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 545.]

Right to exercise original jurisdiction. -The Bankruptcy Act confers on the District Courts, as courts of bankruptcy, such jurisdiction, at law and in equity, as enables them to exercise original jurisdiction in bankruptcy proceedings. Brumby v. Jones, (5th Cir. 1905) 141 Fed. 318, 72 C. C. A. 466, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 578; Horner-Gaylord Co. v. Miller, (N. D. W. Va. 1906) 147 Fed. 295, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 257. Not courts of limited jurisdiction.—Courts of bankruptcy, being vested exclusively with jurisdiction of all proceedings throughout the country, are not courts of limited jurisdiction. In re Marion Contract, etc., Co., (W. D. Ky. 1909) 166 Fed. 618, 22 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 81.

The jurisdiction of the court which makes an adjudication extends to all property of the bankrupt situated anywhere in the United States, and it may make such orders with respect thereto as are necessary for the preservation, collection, and administration of auch property. In re Dempster, (8th Cir. 1909) 172 Fed. 353, 97 C. C. A. 51, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751; Staunton v. Wooden, (9th Cir. 1910) 179 Fed. 61, 102 C. C. A. 355, 24

Am. Bankr. Rep. 736.

Territorial jurisdiction. — The fact that the court of bankruptcy, in which a petition has been filed, has jurisdiction, coextensive with that of the United States, to order and control the disposition of the bankrupt's estate, does not mean that such court may issue its process to run into another district. court may not extend its process beyond the territorial limits of the district within which its ordinary jurisdiction may be exercised. In re Waukesha Water Co., (E. D. Wis. 1902) 116 Fed. 1009, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715; In re Alphin, etc., Cotton Co., (E. D. Ark. 1904) 131 Fed. 824, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 653; In re Steele, (N. D. Ala. 1908) 161 Fed. 886, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446; Staunton v. Wooden, (9th Cir. 1910) 179 Fed. 61, 102 C. C. A. 355, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 736.

Equitable jurisdiction. — A court of bankruptcy is, in a strict sense, a court of equity, and is guided and controlled by equitable doctrines and principles. In re Siegel-Hillman Dry Goods Co., (E. D. Mo. 1901) 111 Fed. 983, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; In re Waukesha Water Co., (E. D. Wis. 1902) 116 Fed. 1009, Rep. 446; Westall v. Avery, (4th Cir. 1909) 171 Fed. 626, 96 C. C. A. 428, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; Clay v. Waters, (8th Cir. 1910) 178 Fed. 385, 101 C. C. A. 645, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 293: In re Stewart, (N. D. N. Y. 1910) 178 Fed. 463, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474; In re Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co., (W. D. Mo. 1910) 180 Fed. 549; In re Coffey, (W. D. N. Y. 1907) 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148.

The equitable jurisdiction conferred on the bankruptcy courts by section 2 is that adopted by the Constitution from the English High Court of Chancery, as administered generally by the federal courts. In re Waukesha Water Co., (E. D. Wis. 1902) 116 Fed. 1009, 8 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 715.

Bankruptcy court always open. - For the purposes of bankruptcy jurisdiction a District Court is always open. It has no separate terms. Mahoney v. Ward, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 278, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770; In re Ives, (6th Cir. 1902) 113 Fed. 911, 51 C. C. A. 541, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 692; In re Henschel. (S. D. N. Y. 1902) 114 Fed. 968, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 201.

The proceedings in a pending suit are therefore continuous from the filing of the petition to the closing of the estate, and at all times open for re-examination. In re Ives, (6th Cir. 1902) 113 Fed. 911, 51 C. C. A. 541, 7

Am. Bankr. Rep. 692.

Right to enjoin interference with jurisdiction. - The bankruptcy law gives to courts of bankruptcy full power to enjoin all persons within their jurisdiction from doing any act that will interfere with or prevent its due administration, whether such persons are parties to the proceedings or not; and where they are litigants in a state court, no rule of comity requires the court of bankruptcy to compel persons whose rights under the bankruptcy law are jeopardized by such litigation to resort to the state court for protection. In re Hornstein, (N. D. N. Y. 1903) 122 Fed. 286, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 308. And see generally sections 11a and 23b, and the annotation thereunder, infra, pp. 531, 595.

(1) [To adjudge bankrupt.] adjudge persons bankrupt who have had their principal place of business, resided, or had their domicile within their respective territorial jurisdictions for the preceding six months, or the greater portion thereof, or who do not have their principal place of business, reside, or have their domicile within the United States, but have property within their jurisdictions, or who have been adjudged bankrupts by courts of competent jurisdiction without the United States and have property within their jurisdictions; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 545.]

Jurisdiction as dependent on residence within the district. - A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to adjudge persons bankrupt who have resided, or have had their domicile, within its territorial jurisdiction for the six months preceding the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, or the greater portion thereof. In re Murray, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 96 Fed. 600, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; In re Waxelbaum, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 562, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267; In re Blair, (S. D. N. Y. 1900) 99 Fed. 76, 3 Am. Bankr. The phrase "the greater portion thereof," as used in section 2 (1), means the greater portion of the six months preceding the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In re Plotke, (7th Cir. 1900) 104 Fed. 964, 44 C. C. A.

282, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 171.

A domicile once acquired is presumed to continue until it is shown to have been changed; and, where a change of domicile is alleged, the burden of proving it rests upon the person making the allegation. In re Waxelbaum, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 562, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267; In re Filer, (S. D. N. Y. 1900) 108 Fed. 209, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 332; In re Oldstein, (D. C. Ore. 1910) 182 Fed. 409.

Residence must be bona fide. — Residence within the district, to give a court jurisdiction of the proceedings in bankruptcy, must be bona fide; and the removal of a person from one district to another for the express purpose of filing a petition in bankruptcy therein, and with the intention of leaving the district as soon as he obtains a discharge, does not make him a resident so as to confer jurisdiction on the court. In re Garneau, (7th Cir. 1904) 127 Fed. 677, 62 C. C. A. 403, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 679. See also In re Stokes, (D. C. Wash. 1899) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 35.

Removal prior to filing petition. — Proof that an alleged bankrupt, whose residence and domicile had for years been in another state, had her principal place of business in the district where the petition was filed, up to a time four months prior to the filing of such petition, after which she had no place of business, is not sufficient to give the court jurisdiction of the proceedings. In re Plotke, (7th Cir. 1900) 104 Fed. 964, 44 C. C. A. 282, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 171.

Temporary residence abroad immaterial.—A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction of a voluntary petition for adjudication in bankruptcy, filed by a debtor who has had his domicile within the district for the preceding six months, although, during the greater portion of that time, he has resided abroad, provided there was no abandonment of the original domicile, nor acquisition of a new one, and the debtor returned to the district, before the filing of the petition, with the intention of making his permanent home there. In rewilliams, (D. C. Wash. 1900) 99 Fed. 544, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 677.

Where a traveler resided in a particular district for only two months prior to the filing of a petition to have him declared a bankrupt, it was held that the court of that district had no jurisdiction thereof. In re Williams, (E. D. Ark. 1903) 120 Fed. 34, 9

Am. Bankr. Rep. 736.

A corporation organized under the laws of a state cannot be a "resident" of another state so as to confer jurisdiction on a court of bankruptcy in the latter state of proceedings against it. In re Mathews Consol, Slate Co., (D. C. Mass, 1905) 144 Fed. 724, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 350.

Residence as dependent on place of business.

— A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction, for the purposes of adjudication, over persons who have had their principal place of business within the territorial jurisdiction of the court for the six months preceding the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, or the greater portion thereof. Guinn v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., (S. D. Ia. 1882) 14 Fed. 323; In re Marine Mach., etc., Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 91 Fed. 630, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 421; In re Brice, (S. D. Ia. 1899) 93 Fed. 942, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 197; In re Blair, (S. D. N. Rep. 413; In re Duplex Radiator Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1966) 142 Fed. 906, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324; Burdick v. Dillon, (1st Cir. 1906) 144 Fed. 737, 75 C. C. A. 603, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 407; In re Munger Vehicle Tire Co., (2d Cir. 1908) 159 Fed. 991, 87 C. C. A. 81, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 785; In re Alaska American Fish Co., (W. D. Wash. 1908) 162 Fed. 498, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712; In re Pennsylvania Consol. Coal Co., (E. D. Pa. 1906) 163 Fed. 579, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872; In re Perry Aldrich Co., (D. C. Masa. 1908) 165 Fed. 249, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244.

Residence in one district, business place in another. — Where a petitioner in voluntary bankruptcy resides in one district, and is there employed as clerk in a store, but is engaged in trade on his own account, as a general merchant in another district, the court of bankruptcy in the latter district has jurisdiction of the petition, the bankrupt's principal place of business being within its territorial limits. In re Brice, (S. D. Ia. 1899) 93 Fed. 942, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 197.

Residence continued for winding up business sufficient.—Where a partnership has had its only place of business within a given judicial district for a period of more than three months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against it in such district, the court therein will have jurisdiction of the petition, although during a part of that time the only business carried on was in the way of winding up the affairs of the firm by two of the partners, the other partners having retired. In re Blair, (S. D. N. Y. 1900) 99 Fed. 76, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

Corporation's principal place of business.—Where a corporation operating factories, mills, or mines in various states has a principal office, from which supreme direction and control are exercised over all its business and property and its selling and collecting are done, where its directors meet, its books of account are kept, and its correspondence consciously such office will be held to be its principal place of business. Burdick #. Dillon, (1st Cir. 1906) 144 Fed. 737, 75 C. C. A. 603, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 407.

Where a New Jersey corporation, having been proclaimed against in that state for non-payment of taxes, maintained its principal of-fiee in New York City, it was held that bankruptry proceedings were properly instituted against it in New York. In re Munger Vehicle Tire Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1908) 159 Fed. 901, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 785.

Where the defendant corporation shut down its works and ceased all business at Warren, R. I., in June, 1908, but continued its business in New York, where all its executive and banking business had been done, until the petition was filed in November following, it was held that New York was its principal place of business during the preceding six months, and that the petition was properly filed in that district. In re Marine Mach., etc., Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 91 Fed. 630, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 421.

Neither charter, nor place of incorporation, is controlling.— The question where a corporation had its principal place of basiness for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of proceedings in bankruptey against it is one of fact; and neither its place of incorporation, nor its charter, is controlling. Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., (E. D. N. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 255, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 744; In re Pennsylvania Consol. Coal Co., (E. D. Pa. 1908) 163 Fed. 579, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872.

Foreign corporation's noncompliance with local law immaterial.— In determining whether a corporation has had its principal place of business in another state, so as to give the court in that district jurisdiction to adjudicate it a bankrupt, it is immaterial whether or not it complied with the laws of that state, so as entitle it to do business therein as a foreign corporation. In re Duplex Radiator Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1906) 142 Fed. 906, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324; In re Perry Aldrich Co., (D. C. Mass. 1908) 165 Fed. 249, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244.

Commingled business relations in different districts. - Where a manufacturing corporation was organized under the laws of Washington, having its home office and principal place of business at Tacoma, and subsequently a second corporation was organized in California, apparently for the purpose of succeeding and taking over the business of the first, its home office being in Oakland, but its business being transacted in Tacoma by a manager who was also the manager of the first corporation, the business of which was continued by such joint manager without change and in such manner that the transactions and liabilities of the two corporations could not be separated, it was held that the Washington District Court had jurisdiction to entertain a petition in bankruptcy against both corporations as joint parties; it not appearing that any prior proceedings had been elsewhere instituted. In re Alaska Ameri-can Fish Co., (W. D. Wash. 1908) 162 Fed. 498, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712.

Concurrent jurisdiction. — Where a bank-rupt corporation has its domicile in one judicial district, and its principal place of business in another, the courts of bankruptcy of both districts have concurrent jurisdiction of involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against it. In re United Button Co., (D. C. Del. 1904) 137 Fed. 666, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454.

(2) [Allow and disallow claims.] allow claims, disallow claims, reconsider allowed or disallowed claims, and allow or disallow them against bankrupt estates; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 545.]

Cross-references: As to

Allowance, proof, and reconsideration of claims, see the several subdivisions of section 57. What are provable claims, see the several subdivisions of section 63.

(3) [Appoint receivers, etc.] appoint receivers or the marshals, upon application of parties in interest, in case the courts shall find it absolutely necessary, for the preservation of estates, to take charge of the property of bankrupts after the filing of the petition and until it is dismissed or the trustee is qualified; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 545.]

Cross-reference: As to Seizure and possession of property, see section 69.

Appointment of receivers, or marshals, for preservation of estate. — Under section 2 (3) the court of bankruptcy has authority to appoint receivers, or the marshals, to take charge of the property of bankrupts, after the filing of the petition, and until it is dismissed or the trustee is qualified, when that is absolutely necessary for the preservation of estate. Bryan v. Bernheimer, (1901) 181 U. S. 188, 21 S. Ct. 557, 45 U. S. (L. ed.) 814, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re John A. Etheridge Furniture Co., (D. C. Ky. 1899) 92 Fed. 329, 1 Am. Bankr. A. 263, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73.

Bond required.—A court of bankruptcy is authorized to appoint a receiver to take possession of the property of one against whom a petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed, and is pending, only upon the giving of a bond by the petitioners therefor, as required by section 3e. Beach v. Macon Grocery Co., (5th Cir. 1902) 116 Fed. 143, 53 C. C. A. 463, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751; In re McKane, (E. D. N. Y. 1907) 152 Fed. 733, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594. And see section 3e, and the annotation thereunder, infra, p. 494.

Appointment not subject to collateral attack.— Where claimants instituted proceedings, in the nature of a replevin suit, against a bankrupt's receiver to recover personal property, their only claim to relief depending on their ownership or right of possession of the property which the receiver had seized, it was held that they could not in such proceeding collaterally attack the official status of the receiver or the regularity of the proceedings leading to his appointment. Receiver entitled to possession of property.

— Bankruptcy proceedings properly instituted vest the court of bankruptcy with exclusive jurisdiction to administer the estate of the bankrupt, and oust the jurisdiction of a state court which has appointed a receiver in insolvency proceedings; and the receiver appointed by the court of bankruptcy is entitled to possession of the property. In relating the Lengert Wagon Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1901) 110 Fed. 927, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535.

But under the rule of comity between federal and state courts; a receiver appointed by a court of bankruptcy will be required to apply to a state court for an order requiring its receiver to turn over the property of the bankrupt. In re Lengert Wagon Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1901) 110 Fed. 927, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535. And see generally the annotation under section 23b, infra, p. 638.

Effect of collusion in appointment of receiver. — Where receivers, the appointment of whom is prayed for in a petition in bankruptcy against a corporation, were in fact selected by the alleged bankrupt and named at its instance, they will not be appointed; or, if such facts are shown after their appointment, they will be removed; but the court is not required, because of such unsucessful collusion, to dismiss the petition in favor of one filed by other creditors; and, where it is otherwise sufficient, the adjudication may be made thereon. Birmingham Coal, etc., Co. v. Southern Steel Co., (N. D. Ala. 1908) 160 Fed. 212, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151.

Attorney for receiver. — Where a debtor is declared a bankrupt at the instance of a creditor, and a receiver is appointed, the attorney for such petitioning creditor should not be employed as attorney for the receiver. In re Strobel, (2d Cir. 1908) 160 Fed. 916, 88 C. C. A. 98, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22.

Appointment must be necessary for preservation of estate. — Receivers in bankruptcy are necessary, and should be appointed, only when the preservation of the estate demands their intervention. Guaranty Title, etc., Co. r. Pearlman, (W. D. Pa. 1906) 144 Fed. 550, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; Faulk v. Steiner, (5th Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 861, 91 C. C. A. 547, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; Dunlander Co. r. Huddleston, (5th Cir. 1909) 167 Fed. 433, 93 C. C. A. 69, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 731; In re Oakland Lumber Co., (2d)

Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 634, 98 C. C. A. 388, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 181; In re Desrochers, (N. D. N. Y. 1911) 183 Fed. 991; In re Standard Cordage Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 184 Fed. 156; In re Desrochers, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 703.

The words "absolutely necessary," as used in section 2 (3), require clear, positive, and certain proof of necessity. In re Oakland Lumber Co., (2d Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 634, 98 C. C. A. 388, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 181.

Danger of waste, despoilment, or misappropriation necessary. — The property of a bankrupt should not be taken out of his control before adjudication unless it clearly appears either that the property is perishable, or that it is apt to become wasted, despoiled, or misappropriated. In re Standard Cordage Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 184 Fed. 156.

Thus it has been held that where a bank-rupt's property was in the hands of an assignee for the benefit of creditors, and it was not claimed that it was being dissipated or improvidently cared for, or that the assignee was not careful, prudent, or responsible, an ex parts order appointing a receiver was erroneous. In re Oakland Lumber Co., (2d Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 634, 98 C. C. A. 388, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 181.

Consent of an alleged bankrupt to the appointment of a receiver does not authorize such appointment where it is not absolutely necessary for the preservation of the estate. Faulk v. Steiner, (5th Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 861, 91 C. C. A. 547, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623

Notice. — The statute does not provide for the giving of notice of the appointment, or application for the appointment, of a receiver to take charge of the bankrupt's property, when necessary for its preservation; therefore it has been held that such appointment is valid whether notice be given or not. But, in accordance with the general tenor of the bankruptcy law, it has also been held that notice of the appointment, or of the application for the appointment, should be given in all cases if possible. Ross-Meeham Foundry Co. v. Southern Car, etc., Co., (W. D. Tenn. 1903) 124 Fed. 403, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 624; In re Francis, (E. D. Pa. 1905) 136 Fed. 912, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 676; Latimer v. McNeal, (3d Cir. 1906) 142 Fed. 451, 73 C. C. A. 567, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 43; Faulk v. Steiner, (5th Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 861, 91 C. C. A. 547, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re Abrahamson, (D. C. N. Y. 1898) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 44.

The appointment of a receiver for the property of an alleged bankrupt, either with or without notice, is not in violation of the constitution, as depriving the defendant of his property without due process of law. Latimer v. McNeal, (3d Cir. 1906) 142 Fed. 451, 73 C. C. A. 567, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep.

As a general rule, however, it is necessary that notice shall be given the alleged bankrupt, before the appointment of a receiver shall be made, except (1) where the defendants or parties in interest have absonded, or are beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or cannot be found; (2) where there is imminent danger of loss or great damage, or irreparable injury, or the gravest emergency, or when by notice the very purpose of a receiver may be rendered wholly nugatory, as where the property may be removed without the jurisdiction of the court, or it is being collected, and the proceeds wrongfully appropriated. In such cases the court will lay its hand upon the property, through the appointment of a receiver, for the purpose of maintaining the status quo until the issues may be determined as to the right of ownership. In re Francis, (E. D. Pa. 1905) 136 Fed. 912, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 676.

Notice of appointment in another district.

— A district court will not appoint a receiver for the property of an alleged bankrupt on a summary application therefor, by parties to a petition in bankruptcy filed in another district, without such notice to the persons in possession, and those otherwise interested, as will answer the requirement of due process of law of the Constitution of the United States; such a proceeding is not authorized by the Bankruptcy Act, and if it were, the provision would be of doubtful constitutionality. Ross-Meeham Foundry Co. v. Southern Car, etc., Co., (W. D. Tenn. 1903) 124 Fed. 403, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 624.

Receiver's powers and duties — Custodian of property. — A temporary receiver of a bankrupt is merely a custodian of the estate, with authority to inventory and receive and retain all of the bankrupt's assets; the purpose of his appointment being only to protect the property from dissipation and loss until it is ascertained that there is a bankrupt's estate to be administered. Boonville Nat. Bank v. Blakey, (7th Cir. 1901) 107 Fed. 891, 47 C. C. A. 43, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 13; In re Kolin, (7th Cir. 1905) 134 Fed. 557, 67 C. C. A. 481, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; Guaranty Title, etc., Co. v. Pearlman, (W. D. Pa. 1906) 144 Fed. 550, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; In re Rubel, (E. D. Wis. 1908) 166 Fed. 131, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 566; In re Leonard, (D. C. Nev. 1910) 177 Fed. 503, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97.

Power to adjust claims. — Receivers, prior to adjudication, are in no condition to adjust claims, liquidated or unliquidated, and have no power to do so. They may not compromise claims or admit or reject them. They cannot properly defend, or, if they do, cannot act intelligently, as their office is of short duration, and their province is to care for and protect or preserve the property, not to defend suits. In re Heim Milk Product Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1910) 183 Fed. 787.

Sales by receivers are justified only when property is perishable or is rapidly depreciating in value on a falling market or for other reasons. No bankrupt estate should be charged with the expense of such a proceeding except in case of plain necessity. In re Desrochers, (N. D. N. Y. 1911) 183 Fed. 991.

Authority to act outside of district. — Section 2 (3) contains nothing which authorizes the court to confer upon a receiver, appointed thereunder, who is not vested with title to the bankrupt's property, the power to exercise his official functions in respect to such property in any other district; and, under the general rule governing courts of equity and their receivers appointed in creditors' suits, such receiver has no authority to act officially outside of the district of his appointment. In re Benedict, (E. D. Wis. 1905) 140 Fed. 55, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 232. See also In re Dunseath, etc., Co., (W. D. Pa. 1909) 168 Fed. 973, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 75, following In re National Mercantile Agency, (E. D. Pa. 1904) 128 Fed. 639, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 189.

But see In re Dempster, (8th Cir. 1909) 172 Fed. 353, 97 C. C. A. 51, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751, wherein it was held that a receiver might maintain an action for the protection of assets in a district other than that of his appointment.

Bec. 2 (3).

Right to examine books and papers. Where it is alleged that the bankrupt's stock of goods has been sold by him to a certain corporation without any adequate consideration, the sale being induced by the fraud of the vendee, a receiver of the bankrupt's estate has the right, under process from the court of bankruptcy, to examine any books or documents of such corporation showing or tending to show its receipt or disposition of said stock, or in any other way relating thereto. In re Fixen, (S. D. Cal. 1899) 96 Fed. 748, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 822. See also the annotation under sections 7a (9) and 21a, infra, pp. 524, 589.

Duty to furnish statements from bankrupt's accounts. - Where a corporation defendant, in a suit for infringement of a patent, was adjudged a bankrupt, and a reeeiver appointed for its property, after an interlocutory decree against it and a refere ee for an accounting as to damages and profits, it was held that the receiver could not be required to prepare a statement of profits for use before the master from the company's books, or to render any other active assistance to the complainant at the expense of the estate, unless he elected to become a party to the suit: but that he might be required by subposna to produce the books before a master. American Graphophone Co. v. Leeds, etc., Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1909) 174 Fed. 158, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 337

Right to maintain suits. -- It has been held that a receiver, appointed under section 2 (3) for the preservation of the bankrupt's prop-erty, has no authority to maintain a suit to set aside a preferential or fraudlent transfer. Boonville Nat. Bank v. Blakey, (7th Cir. 1901) 107 Fed. 891, 47 C. C. A. 43, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 13; Guaranty Title, etc., Co. v. Pearlman, (W. D. Pa. 1906) 144

Fed. 550, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461.

But in In re Fixen, (S. D. Cal. 1899) 96 Fed. 748, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 822, it was held that the court has jurisdiction, in appointing such receiver, to authorize him to institute all necessary actions at law or in equity for the recovery of the bankrupt's property.

Suits outside of district. — It has been held that a receiver in bankruptcy, under an order to collect and take possession of all the assets of an alleged bankrupt, is not authorized to bring suits in a district other than the one in which he was appointed. In re Dunseath, etc., Co., (W. D. Pa. 1909) 168 Fed. 973, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 75, following In re National Mercantile Agency, (E. D. Pa. 1904) 128 Fed. 639, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 189,

But see Is re Dempster, (8th Cir. 1909) 172 Fed. 353, 97 C. C. A. 51, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751, wherein it was held that a reseiver in bankruptcy, appointed under section 2 (3), is charged with the duty of preserving the property of the bankrupt, and to that end, where property is situated at a distance from the court of his appointment, and is in danger of being dissipated through sales by judgment creditors, which would sause irreparable damage to the estate before he can apply to that court, he may maintain any plenary suit or action necessary for its protection in the district where the property is situated. And see sec. 2 (20), infre, p. 480.

Liability of receiver. - A receiver who contracts beyond his powers makes himself individually liable. In rc Kalb, etc., Mfg. Co., (2d Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 895, 97 C. C.

A. 573, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 393.

A receiver in bankruptey for a railroad contractor, who continues the work under a contract, by paying the employees of a subcontractor who has abandoned the work the wages due them, less the amounts they owe for supplies, which it was the custom of the subcontractor to withhold and pay to the petitioner, does not incur any liability to the petitioner for the amounts due him, where the receiver is not indebted to the subcontractor, but pays the men to avoid delay in the work, and the filing of lieus. In re Ferguson Contracting Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1911) 187 Fed. 940.

Mecessity of leave to sue receiver. - The Act of March 3, 1887, e. 373, sec. 3, 24 Stat. L. 554, and Act of Aug. 13, 1889, e. 866. sec. 3, 25 Stat. L. 436, 4 Fed. Stat. Annot. 387, which authorize a receiver appointed by a federal court to be sued without previous leave of such court "in respect of any act or transaction of his in carrying on the business connected with" the property in his charge apply to receivers in bankruptcy, but do not authorize a suit without leave against such receiver unless he is carrying on the business of the bankrupt, or in respect to his acts relating merely to the care and preservation of the property of the estate. In re Kalb, etc., Mfg. Co., (2d Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 895, 91 C. C. A. 573, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 393.

Restraining suits against receivers.—Where a receiver in bankruptcy acts as an officer of the court in the administration of the estate, the bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to determine the validity of his acts, even to the extent of preventing an action at law by one who is raising no question and relying on no right which is not within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court in the bankruptcy proceeding, the parties being the same; but such court has no jurisdiction to prevent maintenance of an action against the receiver to enforce a liability in personam against him for acts done beyond the scope of his authority. In re Spechler, (E. D. N. Y. 1911) 185 Fed. 311.

Compensation. — The compensation of receivers or marshals, appointed under section 2 (3), is regulated, since the enactment of the amendment of June 25, 1910, by section 48d.

Receiver entitled to protection as to expenses and services. — The receiver, upon appointment and acceptance, becomes the officer and hand of the court in the performance of his duties, neither subject to the wishes or directions of the parties, nor dependent upon the result of the controversy for the payment of his expenses or services; and he is clearly entitled to protection by the court, in the exercise of such jurisdiction, for all expenses rightly incurred and services rendered under its orders, either in allowances out of the funds committed to his charge, or through provision otherwise made by the court to that end. In re T. E. Hill Co., (7th Cir. 1907) 159 Fed. 73, 86 C. C. A. 263, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73.

A court of bankruptcy may enforce an order requiring petitioning creditors to pay the expenses of a receivership, procured by them, by proceedings in contempt. In retakov, (2d Cir. 1905) 142 Fed. 960, 74 C. C. A. 130, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 290.

(4) [Try and punish bankrupts, etc.] arraign, try, and punish bankrupts, officers, and other persons, and the agents, officers, members of the board of directors or trustees, or other similar controlling bodies, of corporations for violations of this Act, in accordance with the laws of procedure of the United States now in force, or such as may be hereafter enacted, regulating trials for the alleged violation of laws of the United States; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 545.]

Offenses generally, see the several subdivisions of section 29, infra, p. 646.

(5) [Permit temporary transaction of business.] authorize the business of bankrupts to be conducted for limited periods by receivers, the marshals, or trustees, if necessary in the best interests of the estates, and allow such officers additional compensation for such services, as provided in section forty-eight of this Act; [(amended 1903 and 1910) 32 Stat. L. 797 and 36 Stat. L. 838.]

Order to continue business. — An order authorizing a receiver in bankruptcy to continue the business of the bankrupt for a limited time is largely discretionary, and cannot be collaterally attacked. In re Isaacson, (2d Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 406, 98 C. C. A. 614, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98.

A referee should obtain the sanction of the judge before authorizing the continuance of a bankrupt's business, where such business is of considerable magnitude. Bray v. Johnson, (4th Cir. 1908) 166 Fed. 57, 91 C. C. A. 643, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383.

Power to borrow money to continue business.—A receiver who is authorized to conduct a business, for the successful conduct of which the extension of credit and borrowing of money is necessary and customary, has the implied power to purchase on credit, and even to borrow money. Such a power will be implied, however, only in the absence of an express power to borrow conferred by the court. In re Burkhalter, (N. D. Ala. 1910) 182 Fed. 353.

To continue the business of bankrupts by receivers, courts of bankruptcy have implied power to authorize the issuance of receivers' certificates to provide the funds necessary for operating expenses. In re Erie Lumber Co., (S. D. Ga. 1906) 150 Fed. 817, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689; In re Restein, (E. D. Pa. 1908) 162 Fed. 986, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 832.

But the referee should not, in any case, issue trustees' certificates to raise money for the purpose of transacting the bankrupt's business. Bray v. Johnson, (4th Cir. 1908) 166 Fed. 57, 91 C. C. A. 643, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383.

Compensation.—Since the enactment of the amendment of June 25, 1910, the compensation of trustees, marshals, or receivers, where the business of the bankrupt has been conducted by them, under section 2 (5), is regulated by section 48c.

Section 2 (5) does not vest the court with power to fix the compensation of a trustee in advance for services to be rendered in the future. In re Willis W. Russell Card Co., (D. C. N. J. 1909) 174 Fed. 202, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300.

(6) [Substitute additional parties.] bring in and substitute additional persons or parties in proceedings in bankruptcy when necessary for the complete determination of a matter in controversy; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 546.]

Section 2 (6) does not confer plenary jurisdiction of civil actions, at law and in equity, to determine title to and reduce to possession alleged assets of a bankrupt, since section 23 of the act is intended to define the jurisdiction of such courts over suits of that character. Bardes v. Hawarden First Nat. Bank, (1900) 178 U. S. 524, 20 S. Ct. 1000, 44 U. S. (L. ed.) 1175, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 163.

The test of jurisdiction to determine matters in controversy between third persons is the necessity of doing so in order to administer the estate. In re Hobbs, (N. D. W. Va. 1906) 145 Fed. 211, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544.

(7) [Collect and distribute assets.] cause the estates of bankrupts to be collected, reduced to money and distributed, and determine controversies in relation thereto, except as herein otherwise provided; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 546.]

The jurisdiction conferred by section 2 (7) depends on, first, whether the controversy has reference to property actually in the possession of the bankruptcy court or belonging to the bankrupt estate; second, whether it arises in the bankruptcy proceedings, and the property becomes, therefore, subject to distribution to creditors; or, third, whether, by the nature of the controversy, power is conferred on the court to determine conflicting liens and apportion assets. In re Kellogg, (W. D. N. Y. 1902) 113 Fed. 120, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623.

(8) [Close estates.] close estates, whenever it appears that they have been fully administered, by approving the final accounts and discharging the trustees, and reopen them whenever it appears they were closed before being fully administered; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 546.]

See section 47a (2), infra, p. 682.

Reopening of estate. — Under section 2 (8) a court of bankruptcy may, upon a proper showing, reopen estates whenever it appears that they were closed before they were fully administered; thus estates may be reopened on the discovery of additional assets, or for the purpose of correcting schedules, or where the interest of justice requires it. In re Shaffer, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 982, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728; In re Paine, (W. D. Ky. 1904) 127 Fed. 246, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; Clark v. Pideock, (3d Cir. 1904) 129 Fed. 745, 64 C. C. Existence of unadministered assets necessary. - To authorize the court to reopen the estate of a bankrupt, it should appear by some satisfactory evidence that there are assets unadministered, although no formal or technical procdure is required. An unverified petition filed by a creditor, stating on information and belief that the wife of the bankrupt has "money or property" belonging to him, without stating its character or amount, and which is unsupported by affidavits or other evidence, is insufficient to warrant action by the court. In re Newton, (8th Cir. 1901) 107 Fed. 429, 46 C. C. A. 399, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52.

Reopening to recover assets.-Where bankrupt partners were refused a discharge after the estate in bankruptcy had been closed, on the ground that they had in their possession several thousand dollars in money which the did not schedule, and there is evidence tending to show that they have since invested such money in property in the names of other persons, creditors are entitled to have the estate reopened, to the end that proceedings may be instituted to recover such property for their benefit. In re Barton, (W. D. Ark. 1906) 144 Fed. 540, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 569.

Where it appears that certain property had been transferred by the bankrupt, prior to his adjudication; that it was omitted from his schedules and had no part in the settlement of his estate; and that since such settlement facts have been discovered which lead creditors to believe that the transfer was fraudulent, an order reopening the estate is warranted. In re Ryburn, (D. C. Conn. 1906) 145 Fed. 662, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 514.

Reopening to amend schedules. - Where the members of a partnership were adjudged bankrupts on a voluntary petition and obtained a discharge, having scheduled no as-sets; and at the time of the adjudication an action on promissory notes was pending against them in a state court, in which they had pleaded a counterclaim, but through inadvertence or mistake neither the notes nor the counterclaim were scheduled, it was held, that on their application, made before the expiration of the time for filing claims, the bankrupts were entitled to have the discharge set aside, and to amend their schedules by including both the creditors' claim and their counterclaim. In re McKee, (E. D. N. Y. 1908) 165 Fed. 269, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306.

Effect of reopening with respect to discharge, and proof of claims. — Under section 2 (8) a court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to entertain a supplemental petition filed by a voluntary bankrupt after the estate has been closed and the bankrupt discharged, setting out additional schedules of property, with the reasons for their former omission; and the court may reopen the proceedings for the purpose of administering the new assets for the benefit of creditors who proved their claims in accordance with the statute in the original proceedings. But such supplementary proceedings cannot affect the discharge of the bankrupt, where more than a year has elapsed since it was granted, nor has a creditor who failed to prove his claim in the original proceedings any standing in such supplementary proceedings, or the right to examine the bankrupt therein. In ro Shaffer, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 982, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728.

The pendency of a petition to set uside a composition does not operate to prohibit the referee from exercising his right independently of, or in conjunction with, such application, to reopen an estate; and such reopening is not an interference with the administration of the estate. Matter of Sonnabend, (D. C. Mass. 1906) 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117.

Who may apply for reopening. - The application or petition to reopen estates in bankruptcy must be made by some party interested in the estate, and who would be benefited by such reopening. In re Chandler, (7th Cir. 1905) 138 Fed. 637, 71 C. C. A. 87, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 512; In re Meyer, (D. C. Ore. 1910) 181 Fed. 904.

Thus it has been held that where a bankrupt's estate has been closed and the bankrupt discharged, the office of trustee is thereby terminated, and the former trustee of the estate has no standing to apply to have the estate reopened for the reason that it was not fully administered. Extent of jurisdiction — Generally. — The only question to be determined on a bankrupt's application for his exemptions is whether he is entitled to such exemptions as against the general creditors; and when that question has been disposed of, and the property set apart to the bankrupt, the jurisdiction of the federal court thereover ceases. The court will not retain jurisdiction for the purpose of enforcing the rights of creditors holding claims wherein the exemption has been waived by the bankrupt, nor will it entertain proceedings to subject the exempt property to liens, or adjudicate the rights of claimants with respect thereto. Ancillary jurisdiction. — Under section 2 (20), which was added by the amendment of June 25, 1910, the courts of bankruptcy are authorized to exercise ancillary jurisdiction over persons and property, within their respective territorial limits, in aid of a receiver or trustee appointed in any bankruptcy proceedings pending in any other court of bankruptcy. Prior to this amendment, however, the decisions were conflicting as to the authority to exercise such jurisdiction. In the following cases it was decided that ancillary jurisdiction might be exercised for certain purposes: Babbitt v. Dutcher, (1910) 216 U. S. 102, 17 Ann. Cas. 969, 30 S. Ct. 372, 23 Am. Bankr. The reason for the enactment of the amendment providing for the exercise of ancillary jurisdiction is found in the fact that some courts insisted that such jurisdiction did not exist. Common-law fraud. — It has been held that a conveyance or transfer of property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, which is made an act of bankruptcy by section 3a (1), is the same as that made voidable by the common law; and its fraudulent character is to be determined by the same tests. In determining the question whether a transfer was made in good faith, or with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, so as to constitute an act of bankruptcy, the court or the jury may properly take into consideration the natural and necessary result of the transfer, and may infer the intent therefrom. A conveyance without consideration can have no other purpose than that of hindrance and delay, and if it has that purpose, even though no fraudulent intention is proven or suspected, this is enough to render it obnoxious to the Bankruptcy Act. In re Hughes, (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 183 Fed. 872; In re Leland, (W. D. Mich. 1910) 185 Fed. 830.

A voluntary conveyance of all his property by an insolvent debtor to a trustee, to be converted into money and distributed to the creditors of the grantor, though it is made for the equal benefit of all the creditors, without preferences and without actual fraud, and although it would be good at common law, is nevertheless an act of bankruptcy, as being a transfer of property with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud creditors, since its necessary operation is to deprive the creditors of the rights, advantages, and safeguards provided for them by the bankruptcy law. Rumsey, etc., Co. r. Novelty, etc., Mfg. Co., (E. D. Mo. 1899) 99 Fed. 699, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704.

Absence of fraudulent intention. — Where the intention to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors is absent, and the transaction itself is not such as to inevitably result in the hindrance, delay, or defrauding of creditors, it will not be held to constitute an act of bankruptcy within the language of the statute. Am. Bankr. Rep. 558.

An intent to prefer is not to be confounded with an intent to defraud, nor a preferential transfer with a fraudulent one. While, therefore, a man may not connive with others to get his property out of the way by sale or otherwise, yet a fair and open disposition of it on a full consideration cannot be given a fraudulent character, although it may inci-dentally have the effect of leaving nothing which creditors can get hold of, and even though the debtor do this to meet some of his obligations rather than others. Githens v. Shimer, (M. D. Pa. 1902) 112 Fed. 505, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 453.

Giving security for loan. - Where a debtor while solvent made an equitable assignment of insurance policies to be issued as security for certain loans then made to him, but failed to make an actual delivery and assignment of the policies to the creditor until after loss, when he was insolvent, it was held that the assignment thereof at that time did not constitute an act of bankruptcy. Intent to avoid bankruptcy. - The Bankruptcy Act nowhere denounces a mere intent on the part of an insolvent debtor not to become a bankrupt. Nor does section 3a (1) provide that the commission or permission of any of the acts therein specified with intent not to become bankrupt shall constitute an act of bankruptcy. While such intent involves a purpose that the debtor's property shall not be distributed under the provisions of the act, and that his creditors shall not enjoy its benefits, it is not in all cases equivalent to an "intent to hinder, delay, or de-fraud his creditors, or any of them," within the meaning of the statute. As to what constitutes insolvency, see the annotation under section la (15), supra, p. 465. Insolvency at time of transfer unnecessary. — But it is not necessary that the debtor should be insolvent at the time the conveyance or transfer of property is made, in order to constitute an act of bankruptcy under section 3a (1); and if a solvent person conveys, conceals, or removes, or permits the conveyance, concealment, or removal of any part of his property, with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or any of them, he commits an act of bankruptcy; and if within the ensuing four months he becomes insolvent, and a petition in bankruptcy is thereupon filed against him, he may be adjudged a bankrupt. Payment as preference. — The payment of an existing indebtedness by an insolvent debtor, with the intention of preferring the creditor so paid over the other creditors of such debtor, constitutes a preference; and is, therefore, an act of bankruptcy within the meaning of section 3a (2). Thus it has been held that a merchant, hopelessly insolvent, who within four months prior to the filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against him, and with knowledge of such condition of insolvency, pays substantial sums of money to certain of his creditors in full satisfaction of their claims, while refusing payment to others whose claims are due and equally entitled to payment, commits an act of bankruptcy. Rex Buggy Co. v. Hearick, (8th Cir. 1904) 132 Fed. 310, 65 C. C. A. 676, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 726.

And it is an act of bankruptcy for an insolvent debtor to sell all of his property to one not a creditor, and then to apply the proceeds to the full payment of a part of his creditors, leaving others unpaid; such transaction being a transfer of property with intent to prefer certain creditors, within the intent and meaning of section 3a (2). Boyd v. Lemon, etc., Co., (5th Cir. 1902) 114 Fed. 647, 52 C. C. A. 343, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep.

So, also, it has been held that the payment and discharge of a debt, by an insolvent debtor, by a conveyance to the creditor of personal property of greater value than the debt, the debtor receiving the difference in cash, is a preference of such creditor, and, as such, an act of bankruptcy. Johnson r. Wald, (5th Cir. 1899) 93 Fed. 640, 35 C, C. A. 522, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84.

Payment of rent, taxes, and incidental expenses under renting agreement. — Where a debtor, being the owner of a leasehold interest in real property having a term of years to run, but not assignable without the consent of the landlord, sells the same, and applies part of the proceeds in paying the arrears of rent due, taxes on the property, and the incidental expenses of the sale, such payment does not constitute a preference of the creditors paid, but merely a means of realizing the value of the leasehold, and therefore is not an act of bankruptcy. In re Pearson, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 95 Fed. 425, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 482.

Payment of salaries. - If the salary of the chief officer of a corporation has accumus lated and thus become an existing debt, and the corporation, being insolvent, and in contemplation of such insolvency, pays the debt with intent to prefer it over their other creditors, this constitutes an act of bank-ruptcy. But it is a very different case when a corporation carrying on the business of a manufacturer, at a time when it is unable to pay all of its debts, uses a part of its assets to pay current expenses; and the current salary of the president of a corporation, if confined within a reasonable amount, is a part of the necessary running expenses, and it has to be paid in order to keep the establishment in operation. Payments of comparatively small sums of money by an insolvent corporation to each of a number of its creditors, made in the usual course of business, do not raise a presumption of an intent to prefer such creditors over its other creditors, so as to establish an act of bankruptcy by a transfer of property with intent to prefer. Must be other creditors.—A conveyance of property by a debtor to creditors cannot be charged as an act of hankruptcy where he had at the time no other creditors. Brake v. Callison, (5th Cir. 1904) 129 Fed. 201, 63 C. C. A. 359, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 797.

The giving of a chattel mortgage to secure an antecedent debt is not a preferential transfer which constitutes an act of bankruptcy, where it is given in good faith in renewal of a prior mortgage and covering the same property; and in such case the fact of the mortgagor's insolvency is immaterial, where the partgagor receives a further present consideration sufficient to warrant the additional security. In re Cutting, (W. D. N. Y. 1906) 145 Fed. 388, 16 Am. Hankr. Rep. 751.

Intent inferred. --- A debtor will, however, be presumed to have intended the necessary and natural consequences of his acts; and where, during insolvency, he makes a transfer to a creditor, the necessary result of which is to prefer such creditor over other creditors, it will be presumed to have been so intended. Thus where an insolvent after the return of a verdict against him in an action at law, but before the entry of judgment, sent for a creditor and executed a mortgage to him to seeure the debt, it was held that the preference thus given to the mortgagee over the judgment creditor must be presumed to have heen intentional and, therefore, an act of bankruptcy. Fed. 426, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 864.

Amount of transfer considered. — The presumption of an intent to prefer creditors, arising from a transfer of property by an insolvent, is affected by the amount of such transfer; and it is not as strong where the transfer is of a comparatively small part of the debtor's property. Insolvency. — A transfer, in order to come within the language of section 3a (2) as an act of bankruptcy, must have been made while the debtor was insolvent. Troy Wagna Works v. Vastbinder, (M. D. Pa. 1904) 130 Fed. 232, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 353; Blue

The purpose of the law is that no one creditor shall be preferred over the others by an insolvent person, but that all creditors shall share equally except as to honest liens created more than four months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy. It was not intended that a creditor should obtain a lien on the property of an insolvent person by a judgment filed and docketed, and then lie still, without issuing execution or making a levy and advertising the property for sale for four months and until such judgment had become unimpeachable under the Bankruptcy Act or otherwise, thereby gaining a preference, an absolute security for the debt, and it might be to the extent of the entire property of the insolvent person, and thus excluding other creditors from any share in the estate. In re Tupper, (N. D. N. Y. 1908) 163 Fed. 766, 20 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 824.

The failure of an insolvent debtor to file a voluntary petition in bankruptcy at least five days before a sale of his property under a judgment entered against him upon an irrevocable power of attorney, given years before, constitutes the suffering or permitting of the creditor to obtain a preference which amounts to an act of bankruptcy, though the judgment is entered without the knowledge or consent of the debtor, and he is unable to prevent its enforcement in any other way than by filing his petition in bankruptcy. Wilson t. Nelson, (1901) 183 U. S. 191, 22 S. Ct. 74, 46 U. S. (L. ed.) 147, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 142; In re Moyer, (E. D. Pal899) 93 Fed. 188, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577.

Where a partnership was insolvent at the date of its dissolution, and thereafter an execution was levied on the firm's property for a partnership debt, the duty devolved on the retiring partner to discharge such levy, as well as on any other members of the firm, and a failure so to do constituted an act of bankruptcy, justifying an adjudication against the firm, and also against its members, including such retiring partner. Holmes v. Baker, (9th Cir. 1908) 160 Fed. 922, 88 C. C. A. 104, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252.

the petitioning creditors must assume the burden of proving that a preference was obtained by a creditor through legal proceedings; that the debtor suffered or permitted the preference, and did not vacate or discharge it at least five days before a sale or final disposition of the property affected; and that he was insolvent at the time the preference was obtained. Proof that he was insolvent at the time of filing the petition is insufficient. In re Rome Planing Mill, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 812, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123.

A debtor who does not pay a lawful debt uchen due, upon which the creditor obtains a judgment against him and levies on his property, "suffers and permits" the creditor to obtain a preference through legal proceed-ings which, if he is insolvent, and unless he discharges the preference at least five days before the time for sale under the levy, constitutes an act of bankruptcy. Bogen v. Protter, (6th Cir. 1904) 129 Fed. 533, 64 C. C. A. 63, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 288.

Where a creditor of a bankrupt removed certain goods from the bankrupt's store during his absence, and retained possession thereof over the bankrupt's protest, it was held that the failure to take legal proceedings to recover possession of the goods, in the absence of evidence of collusion, did not constitute an act of bankruptcy. In re Belknap, (E. D. Pa. 1904) 129 Fed. 646, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 326.

Obtaining of preference essential. — It does not necessarily follow, because a lien has been obtained through legal proceedings, and the debtor has failed to vacate or discharge the same, that a preference has been acquired. In order to commit the act of bankruptcy specified in section 3a (3), it is essential that the proceeding actually result in a preference; that is, that it shall enable some one or more of the creditors of an insolvent debtor to obtain a greater percentage of his debt than other creditors. re Rome Planing Mill, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 812, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Chapman, (N. D. Ga. 1900) 99 Fed. 395, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 607; In re Kersten, (E. D. Wis. 1901) 110 Fed. 929, 6 Am. Bankr. Failure to discharge. — While the failure to discharge a levy five days before sale is an act of bankruptcy, an independent act of bankruptcy is also committed by a failure to discharge the levy on each succeeding day including the day of the sale. In re Nusbaum, (N. D. N. Y. 1907) 152 Fed. 835, 18 Am.

It is not the mere obtaining of a judgment and levying execution on the property of the debtor while insolvent that makes him liable as a bankrupt, but the failure on his part, within five days before a sale or final disposition of the property levied on, to have the same vacated or discharged. In re Vastbinder, (M. D. Pa. 1903) 126 Fed. 417, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 118; In re Tupper, (N. D. N. Y. 1908) 163 Fed. 766, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 824.

Resistance immaterial. — That an insolvent resists legal proceedings by a creditor to obtain a preference does not prevent such preference constituting an act of bankruptcy, if the bankrupt fails to discharge the preference within the time provided. Bradley Timber Co. v. White, (5th Cir. 1903) 121 Fed. 779, 58 C. C. A. 55, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep.

"Final disposition" is not a gift of the property to some third person, or a voluntary transfer to the creditor in satisfaction of the preferential judgment, as that would be merely a sale in payment. There are different ways or modes of disposing of property, of enforcing execution, judgments, and liens, and the words "or final disposition" cover every other method of passing the control and dominion of the property from the debtor to another, either absolutely or as security. In re Tupper, (N. D. N. Y. 1908) 163 Fed. 766, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 824.

Computation of time. — Where property of a bankrupt was advertised for sale under an execution on Aug. 22, 1906, the bankrupt has the entire day of the 17th in which to vacate or discharge the execution before he will be guilty of an act of bankruptcy. Pittsburgh Laundry Supply Co. c. Imperial Laundry Co., (3d Cir. 1907) 154 Fed. 662, 83 C. C. A. 486, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 756. And see section 31, and the annotation thereunder, infra, p. 653, as to computation of time generally.

But where a person, while insolvent, voluntarily confessed judgment in favor of certain creditors, and permitted them to levy executions on and to sell the property thereunder without having vacated such sale, it was held that such proceedings constituted a "transfer" within clauses 1 and 2 of section 3, independent of clause 3; and, therefore, that the limitations against the creditor's right to file a bankruptcy petition ran from the day of the sale, and not from a period five days prior thereto. In re Nusbaum, (N. D. N. Y. 1907) 152 Fed. 835, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

Creditors are not required to wait until a sale has actually taken place, but may file a petition, and, on the proper showing, have the sale enjoined. In re Elmira Steel Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1901) 109 Fed. 456, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484. And see to the same effect In re Rome Planing Mill, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 812, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Miller, (W. D. N. Debter's participation unnecessary.—The suffering or permitting a preference through legal proceedings, by the failure to vacate or discharge the same, does not imply anything more than the mere passive nonresistance of an insolvent debtor to regular judicial proceedings directed against him. It is not necessary that the debtor should procure, or actively participate in, the proceedings. In re Reichman, (E. D. Mo. 1899) 91 Fed. 624, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 17; In re Moyer, (E. D. Pa. 1899) 93 Fed. 188, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577; In re Rome Planing Mill, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 812, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122; Scheuer v. Intent to prefer immaterial. - It is not necessary, under section 3a (3), that there should be an intention to give a preference; the fact that a creditor has actually obtained a preference over other creditors through legal proceedings, and that the debtor has failed to vacate or discharge the same at least five days before the sale or final disposition of the property affected thereby, is sufficient to constitute an act of bankruptcy under this section. The "general assignment," contemplated by section 3a (4), is to be taken in its generic sense, and embraces any conveyance, at common law or by statute, by which the parties intend to make an absolute and unconditional appropriation of the property conveyed, to raise funds to pay the debts of the vendor, share and share alike. In re Thomlinson Co., (8th Cir. 1907) 154 Fed. 834, 83 C. C. A. 550, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 691.

A valid assignment for all purposes is not necessary, under section 3a (4), in order to constitute the act of bankruptcy therein specified; but it is sufficient that the debtor assigns all of his property for the benefit of his creditors, and that the assignment was so i..tended. Canner v. Webster Tapper Co., (1st Cir. 1909) 168 Fed. 519, 93 C. C. A. 541, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872; In the Hersey, (N. D. Ia. 1909) 171 Fed. 998, 22 Am. Bankr. A direct transfer to vreditors, without the intervention of a trustee, is not an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Additional Iron, etc., Co. b. Anniston Rolling Mill Co., (N. D. Ala. 1903) 125 Fed. 974, 11 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 200.

Assignment by corporation. — Where the officers of a corporation, acting under the authority of a resolution of the board of di-rectors, and in pursuance of a vote taken at a meeting of the stockholders, though against the objection of a minority of the stockholders, make a general assignment of all its property to trustees for distribution among its creditors, this constitutes an act of bankruptey. Clark v. American Mfg., etc., Co., (4th Cir. 1900) 101 Fed. 962, 42 C. C. A. 120, 4 Am. Bankt. Rep. 351. See also In re C. Moench, etc., Co., (2d Cir. 1904) 130 Fed. 685, 66 C. C. A. 37, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 240. But it has been held that a corporation's adoption of resolutions authorizing the treasurer to convert the corporate assets into cash, to be deposited with a trust company for the ereditors' benefit, does not constitute an act of bankruptcy as a general assignment for creditors where the plan is not executed. In re Federal Lumber Co., (D. C. Mass. 1910) 185 Fed. 926.

Partnerships, and the individual members thereof, may be adjudicated bankrupt as a result of the making of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Meyer, (E. D. N. Y. 1899) 92 Fed. 896, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565; In re Meyer, (2d Cir. 1899) 98 Fed. 976, 39 C. C. A. 368, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559; Green River Deposit Bank v. Craig, (W. D. Ky. 1901) 110 Fed. 137, 6 Antl. Where a partnership and the individuals composing it make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the act of bankruptcy is committed by all. Green River Deposit Bank v. Craig, (W. D. Ky. 1901) 110 Fed. 137, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 381.

But a stipulation, made in good faith by one partner, for the appointment of a receiver for the firm, and the subsequent transfer of its assets by him to such receiver, is not a general assignment within the Bankruptcy Act, and is not an act of bankruptey. In re Gilbert, (D. C. Ore. 1902) 112 Fed. 951, 8

Am. Bankr. Rep. 101.

Preferential or fraudulent intention unnecessary. - A general assignment for the benefit of creditors is an act of bankruptcy, although made without preferences, and without actually intending to defraud creditors. In re Meyer, (2d Cir. 1899) 98 Fed. 976, 39 C. C. A. 368, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559. See also Wilson v. Nelson, (1901) 183 U. S. 191, 22 S. Ct. 74, 46 U. S. (L. ed.) 147, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 142.

Insolvency unnecessary. — In order to constitute an act of bankruptcy, the making of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors need not be because of insolvency, nor is there any necessity that the assignor should be actually insolvent, as such an assignment will of itself, without the element of insolvency, warrant an adjudication of bankruptcy. George M. West Co. v. Lea, (1899) 174 U. S. 590, 19 S. Ct. 836, 43 U. S. (L. ed.) 1098, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 463, af-firming (E. D. Va. 1899) 91 Fed. 237, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 261; Bray v. Cobb, (E. D. N. # II. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER OR TRUSTEE.

Appointment of receiver or trustee.—Where an insolvent debtor applies for the appointment of a receiver or trustee for his property, or where because of insolvency a receiver or trustee has been put in charge of his property, under the laws of the state or territory, or of the United States, the debtor becomes amenable to adjudication as a bankrupt under section 3a (4). Receivers are "put in charge" of the property of a defendant when the decree appointing them is entered, although they do not qualify nor take actual possession of the property until later; and the four months period within which a petition in bankruptcy based on such appointment as an act of bankruptcy must be filed, runs from the date of such decree. In re Perry Aldrich Co., (D. C. Mass. 1908) 165 Fed. 249, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244.

Appointment of temporary receiver. -Bankruptcy Act draws no distinction between temporary and permanent receivers; but it makes the simple fact of a receiver having been placed in charge of the defendant's property, on the ground of insolvency, an act of Blue Mountain Iron, etc., Co. bankruptcy. v. Portner, (4th Cir. 1904) 131 Fed. 57, 65 C. C. A. 295, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559; In re Kennedy Tailoring Co., (E. D. Tenn. 1909) 175 Fed. 871, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 656.

It is only where a receiver has been appointed in another court because of insolvency, as that term is defined in the bankruptcy law, or where the debtor on his own initiative has applied for the appointment of a receiver or custodian of his property, that an act of bankruptcy under section 3a (4) has been committed. In re Edward Ellsworth Co., (W. D. N. Y. 1909) 173 Fed. 699, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 284.

Liquidating trustees. — Section 3a (4) does not mean exclusively that a trustee must have been put in charge by order of a court; but it embraces as well a case where liquidating trustees have been elected by an insolvent company or corporation, as provided by the statute under which it is organized. In re Hercules Atkin Co., (E. D. Pa. 1904) 133 Fed. 813, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369. See also In re C. H. Bennett Shoe Co., (D. C. Conn.

Where, under a state statute, the property of an insolvent is placed in the hands of the sheriff who was required to distribute the net proceeds thereof among the creditors according to the rules established in insolvency cases, it was said that the sheriff, in such case, was merely a substitute for the receiver or trustee specified in the bankruptcy law. In re International Coal Min. Co., (E. D. Pa. 1906) 143 Fed. 665, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 309.

Bankr. Rep. 142.

Insolvency essential. - The mere appointment of a receiver or trustee does not of itself constitute an act of bankruptcy. order to come within the meaning of section 3a (4) it is necessary that the appointment of a receiver or trustee be made because of the debtor's insolvency, or that such receiver or trustee was applied for by the debtor while insolvent. Insolvency need not be sole reason for appointment of receiver. — If insolvency, either as a distinct ground of proceeding, or as coupled with others, was one of the substantial reasons for the appointment of a receiver, the case comes within the reasonable construction of the statute. Beatty v. Andersen Coal Min. Co., (1st Cir. 1906) 150 Fed. 293, 80 C. C. A. 181, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. Admission must be in writing. - An averment that "the debtor admitted his inability to pay his debts" has been held to be insufficient; it being necessary, under section 3a (5), that the admission of inability to pay should be in writing, together with a written acknowledgment of willingness to be adjudged bankrupt on that ground. Qualified admission insufficient. — Where a corporation authorized one of its officers to appear on behalf of the company in the federal court, and make the admission of insolvency contemplated by the statute, "in the event of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy being filed against said company," it was held that this was not such an unqualified admission as is required by the act, and therefore not an act of bankruptcy on the part of the corporation. In ro Baker-Ricketson Co., (D. C. Mass. 1899) 97 Fed. 489, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 605.

Authority to make admission. - In order to warrant an adjudication, under section 3a (5), it must appear that the necessary admission was made by one having ample authority for that purpose; thus where the admission has been made by a partner, or by an officer of a corporation, in excess of his officer of a corporation, in excess of his powers, an adjudication cannot be based thereon. (1) [Date of recording transfer.] the date of the recording or registering of the transfer or assignment when the act consists in having made a transfer of any of his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors or for the purpose of giving a preference as hereinbefore provided, or a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, if by law such recording or registering is required or permitted, or, if it is not, from the date when the beneficiary takes notorious, exclusive, or continuous possession of the property unless the petitioning creditors have received actual notice of such transfer or assignment. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 546.]

The provisions of sections 3 and 60 are to be read together. When so read there can be no permissible question but that the date of the preference referred to in section 60, subdivisions a and b, is the same as that referred to in section 3b. Long v. Farmers' State Bank, (8th Cir. 1906) 147 Fed. 860, 77 C. C. A. 538, 9 L. R. A. N. S. 585, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 103; In re Bird, (D. C. Minn. 1910) 180 Fed. 229.

The words "takes notorious, exclusive, or continuous possession" must be construed to mean such possession as the property is susceptible of, and such as is usual and ordinary, unaccompanied by acts or conduct tending to conceal its ownership. Any construction which would place intangible forms of personal property on a plane with tangible property would lead to mischievous and sarious interference with business and commercial transactions, which it cannot be assumed was contemplated by Congress. In re Bogen, (S. D. Ohio 1904) 134 Fed. 1019, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529.

Whether recording or registering is required depends on the law of the state. See the cases cited to this effect under section 60s.

Rep. 640. annotation under section 14b (5), infra, p. 547, as to the effect of a previous discharge within six years.

But creditors who have proved their claims in bankruptcy are not entitled, while the estate is still in process of administration, but after the bankrupt has been refused a discharge, to maintain proceedings to have him adjudged a bankrupt a second time on account of the same debts, on the ground that he acquired property after the first adjudication, which he is alleged to have conveyed in fraud of his creditors. In re Barton, (W. B. Ark. 1906) 144 Fed. 540, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 560.

And see the annotation under section 70a as to the ownership of property acquired after adjudication: and as to the effect of a former discharge as res judicata, see section

II. STATUTORY EXCEPTIONS.

Wage carners are expressly excepted from the operation of section 4b, and cannot be adjudged bankrupt in involuntary proceedings. In re Pilger, (E. D. Wis. 1902) 11a Fed. 306, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244; In re Yoder, (E. D. Pa. 1904) 127 Fed. 394, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 445.

When status of wage earner must have coisted. - The status of wage earner, in order to be available as a defense to an involuntary petition in bankruptcy, must have existed at the time of the contracting of the indebtedness for which an adjudication is sought. It is well settled that one cannot render himself immune from hankruptcy praceedings by changing his status subsequent to the creation of his indebtedness and the acquisition of or nis inceptedness and the acquisition of property. Flickinger v. Vandalia First Nat. Bank, (6th Cir. 1906) 145 Fed. 162, 76 C. C. A. 132, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 678; In re Crenshaw, (S. D. Ala. 1907) 156 Fed. 638, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502; In re Narema Chocolate Co., (D. C. R. F. 1910) 178 Fed. 838, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 154, In 1910 178 Fed. 383, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 154; In re Wakefield, (N. D. Cal. 1910) 182 Fed. 247.

A music teacher giving lessons at so much an hour is not a wage carner. Wilkes-Barre First Nat. Bank v. Barnum, (M. D. Pa. 1908) 160 Fed. 245, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439.

The test in determining whether a person is a wage earner or not is: Does the person claiming to be a wage earner depend upon the return from his personal service for his maintenance and support? Matter of Rema-ley, (E. D. Pa. 1909) 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22. In Carpenter v. Cudd, (4th Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 603, 20 Ann. Cas. 977, 98 C. C. A. 449, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 463, it appeared that an alleged involuntary bankrupt nominally drew $990 a year as salary, but owned two-thirds of the stock of the corporation, and drew more than $2,000 a year preceding the institution of bankruptcy proceedings against him, and was also in the business of buying and selling real estate, his holdings ontside the corporation being worth nearly $90,000. and it was held that he was not a wage earner.

Persons engaged chiefly in farming, or the tillage of the soil, are not amenable to involuntary bankruptcy proceedings. In re Thompson, (N. D. Ia. 1906) 102 Fed. 287, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340; In re Mackey, (D. C. Del. 1901) 110 Fed. 355, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577; In re Drake, (D. C. S. C. 1992) 114 Fed. 229, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137; Wulbern r. Drake, (4th Cir. 1903) 120 Fed. 493, 56 C. C. A. 643, 9 Am. Banks. Rep. 695; Cauta v. Townsend, (W. D. Ky. 1903) 126 Fed. 249, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; In re Hoy. (N. D. Ia. 1905) 137 Fad. 175, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648; Rise r. Boxdner, (M. D. Pa. 1905) 140 Fed. 566, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 297; Gregg a. Mitchell, (6th Cir. 1902) 166 Fed. 125, 16 Ann. Cas. 510, 92 C. C. A. 415, 20 L. R. A. N. S. 148, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650; Olive s. Armour. (5th Cir. 1909) 167 Fed. 517, 93 C. C. A. 153, 21 L. R. A. N. S. 109, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 901; Robertson s. Dwyer, (C. C. 22 Am, Bankr. Rep. 85.

When status must exist. — It has been held that the question whether a person is exempt from involuntary bankruptcy proceedings by reason of being a person engaged chiefly in farming is to be determined by the status of the person at the time of the commission of the alleged acts of bankruptcy by him. In re Luckhardt, (D. C. Kan. 1900) 101 Fed. 807, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 307; Flick-inger v. Vandalia First Nat. Bank, (6th Cir. 1906) 145 Fed. 162, 76 C. C. A. 132, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 678; In re Leland, (W. D. Mieb. 1910) 185 Fed. 820.

Ga. 1909) 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 85.

A private banker, it has been held, is not subject to involuntary bankruptcy where his principal occupation is farming. Couts v. principal occupation is farming. Couts v. Townsend, (W. D. Ky. 1903) 126 Fed. 249, 11 Am, Bankr. Rep. 126.

But corporations are not within the exception of persons "engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil." In re Lake Jackson Sugar Co. (S. D. Tex. 1904) 120 Fed. 640, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 458.

What is farming or tillage of soil. — It is impracticable, if not impossible, to define with precision the facts which will in all cases determine whether one is engaged chiefly in farming; and each case must be decided on its own circumstances. In re-Mackey, (D. C. Del. 1901) 110 Fed. 355, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577.
In In re Drake, (D. C. S. C. 1992) 114

Fed. 229, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137, the court said: "Within the purview of this statute it [farming] is understood to mean the business of cultivating land or employing it for the purpose of husbandry; and a farm is a the purpose of husbandry; and a farm is a tract devoted to cultivation, under a single control, whether it be large or small, isolated, or made up of many parcels."

Conducting a "stock farm," as well as conducting a "grain farm," is farming. In re Dwyer, (C. C. A. 7th Cir. 1911), 184 Fed. 880. See also In re Thompson, (N. D. Ia. 1900) 102 Fed. 287, 4 Am, Bankr. Rep. 340. In In re Drake, (D. C. S. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 229, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137, it appeared

Fed. 220, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137, it appeared that the alleged bankrupt, who owned 1,100 acres of land, cultivated one-third of the land with hired labor, and rented another third on shares, and the remaining third at a stipulated rental, but that he maintained supervision of all of the land; he also kept a store where he sold goods to his laborers and tenants, and some goods to outsiders, but his chief income was from his lands; and it was held that he was within the exception. In Rise r. Bordner, (M. D. Pa. 1905) 140

Fed. 566, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 297, the defendant kept a small store, and owned a farm of 240 agree which he cultivated with the aid of his son and one laborer. His income from his business outside of farming amounted to sixty or seventy dollars a year, and the farm furnished most of his livelibood. The court held that the defendant was within the exception, as being chiefly engaged in farming, etc.

A farmer does not cease to be "engaged chiefly in farming," because he establishes a dairy, as one of the branches of his industry, to utilize the products of his farm and convert them to profitable uses, nor besause he may sell the products of his dairy at retail. Gregg v. Mitchell, (6th Cir. 1904) 166 Fed. 725, 16 Ann. Cas. 510, 92 C. C. A. 415, 20 L. R. A. N. S. 148, 21 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 659.

What is not farming or tillage of soil.—
In In re Mackey, (D. C. Del. 1901) 110 Fed.
355, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577, the court held that a person keeping a stall at a public market, where during a year he sold products raised by him of the value of $850, and other products worth over $5,000, was not a person engaged chiefly in farming.

A person who buys and sells cattle, using his farm merely as a feeding place for the cattle, and purchasing most of the feed for them, is not engaged chiefly in farming if his income is mostly derived from such buying and selling of cattle. Dearborn Bank v. Matney, (W. D. Mo. 1984) 132 Fed. 75, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 482; In no Brown, (S. D. Ia. 1904) 132 Fed. 706, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Where a husband deeds a farm upon which he resides with his family to his wife to defraud his creditors, but continues to operate the farm as before, the wife merely attend-ing to the ordinary duties of a farmer's wife, the wife dees not thereby become a person engaged chiefly in farming, and is not exempt from involuntary proceedings in bankruptcy. In re Johnson, (N. D. N. Y. 1907) 149 Fed. 864, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 74.

The owner of a farm upon which he resides, but who has leased the same for a year for a money rental, is not engaged in farming, and may be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt. In re Matson, (M. D. Pa. 1403) 123 Fed. 743, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 473.

Determination of status of statutory exceptions. - Whether an alleged bankrupt is within the exceptions specified in section 4b, and therefore not amenable to involuntary bankruptcy, is to be determined as of the date of the commission of the alleged act of bankruptcy. If the debtor belonged to a nonexempt class when the act of bankruptcy was committed he may be adjudged bankrupt, notwithstanding the fact that he came to belong to a class which the statute exempts from adjudication before the petition in bankruptcy was filed. # III. NATURAL PERSONS.

A natural person may be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt. Cleage v. Laidley, (8th Cir. 1906) 149 Fed. 346, 79 C. C. A. 284, 17

Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

Private bankers are amenable to involuntary bankruptcy. Burkhart v. German-American Bank, (S. D. Ohio 1904) 137 Fed. 958, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 222. See also Davis v. Stevens, (D. C. S. D. 1900) 104 Fed. 235, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 763.

But a private banker who was chiefly engaged in farming was held to be exempt from involuntary bankruptcy proceedings because of such chief occupation. Couts v. Townsend, (W. D. Ky. 1903) 126 Fed. 249, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126. And see the preceding subdivision of this annotation, II. Statutory Exceptions.

Married women. - The statute authorizes the adjudication of a married woman as an involuntary bankrupt, where she is engaged in business on her own account, and owes business obligations of the amount required by the statute, for which her separate prop-erty is liable. MacDonald v. Tefft-Weller erty is liable. Co., (5th Cir. 1904) 128 Fed. 381, 63 C. C. A. 123, 65 L. R. A. 106, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 800; In re Johnson, (N. D. N. Y. 1907) 149 Fed. 864, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 74; Matter of Remaley, (E. D. Pa. 1909) 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29.

An alien, domiciled within the United States, may be adjudged bankrupt. In re Clisdell, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 2 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 424.

Indians. — In the following cases it appears that Indians were adjudged bankrupts: In re Russie, (D. C. Ore. 1899) 96 Fed. 609, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6; In re Rennie, (S. D. Ind.

Ter.) 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 182.

Infants. — It has been held that the creditors of an infant, whose debts he is entitled to repudiate at majority, cannot have him adjudged an involuntary bankrupt, since they are not creditors in the sense of the Bankruptcy Act. In re Eidemiller, (N. D. Ill. 1900) 105 Fed. 595, 53 L. R. A. 118, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 570. See also In re Pensansky, (D. C. Mass. 1902) 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 99.

And in In re Duguid, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 274, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794, it was said that an infant cannot be adjudged bankrupt in either voluntary or involuntary proceedings.

An infant partner, though he may not be adjudicated himselt, does not prevent an adjudication of the firm of which he is a member as a bankrupt. In re Dunnigan, (D. C. Mass, 1899) 95 Fed. 428, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 628; In re Duguid, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 274, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794.

But the infant partner cannot join in a voluntary petition by the firm, nor be included in an adjudication made thereon. re Duguid, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 274.

3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794.

The test as to whether an infant may be adjudicated an involuntary bankrupt seems to be whether the debts from which he seeks to be discharged are based upon contracts or obligations which he can disaffirm upon coming of age, or upon such as render him absolutely liable. In re Penzansky, (D. C. Mass. 1902) 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 99.

Thus it has been held that if a minor engages in business as a merchant, and parties consequently assume that he is of full age, and deal with him in that belief, no inquiry or representation being made as to his minority, he becomes absolutely liable for the debts contracted in such business, and may be adjudged bankrupt on his own petition, though still an infant. In re Brice, (S. D. Ia. 1899) 93 Fed. 942, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Insane persons cannot be adjudged bankrupt. See In re Funk, (N. D. Ia. 1900) 101 Fed. 244, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 96; In re Burks, (W. D. Tenn. 1901) 107 Fed. 674, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 843; In re Eisenberg, (S. D. N. Y. 1902) 117 Fed. 786, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551; In re Ward, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 161 Fed. 755, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 482; In re Kehler, (2d Cir. 1908) 162 Fed. 674, 89 C. C. A. 466, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669, reversing (2d. Cir. 1908) 159 Fed. 55, 86 C. C. A. 245, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 513; In re Ward, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 482.

But the insanity of a partner does not prevent the adjudication of the copartnership of which he was a member. In re Stein, (7th Cir. 1904) 127 Fed. 547, 62 C. C. A.

272, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536.

Subsequent insanity. - Insanity occurring after an adjudication of bankruptcy does not abate the proceeding. See the annotation under section 8, infra, p. 527.

IV. CORPORATIONS AND UNINCORPORATED COMPANIES

Corporations. — All moneyed, business, or commercial corporations, excepting municipal, railroad, insurance, or banking corporations, are, since the enactment of the amendment of June 25, 1910, amenable to involuntary bankruptcy proceedings. The amendment is not retroactive. In re New Amsterdam Motor Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 180 Fed. 943, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 757; In re U. S. Restaurant, etc., Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1911) 187 Fed. 118.

What is a moneyed corporation. - Section 37 of the Act of 1867 provided that it should apply to all moneyed, business, or commercial corporations, and in discussing this provision it was said that such language was intended to include all corporations of a private nature organized for pecuniary profit. See Winter v. Iowa, etc., R. Co., (1873) 2 Dill. 487, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,890. See also Rankin v. Florida, etc., R. Co., (1868) 1 Nat. Bankr. Reg. 647, 20 Fed. Cas. No. 11,567; In re Lady Bryan Min. Co., (1870) 4 Nat. Bankr. Reg. 394, 1 Sawy. 349, 14 Fed. Cas. No. 7,978; In re Jefferson Ins. Co., (1877) 11 Nat. Bankr. Reg. 287, 2 Hughes 255, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,253; Davis v. Alabama, etc., R. Co., (1873) 13 Nat. Bankr. Reg. 258, 1 Woods 661, 7 Fed. Cas. No. 3,648; In re Detroit Car Works, (1876) 14 Nat. Bankr. Reg. 243, 7 Fed. Cas. No. 3,833; Freeman's Nat. Bank v. Smith, (1875) 13 Blatchf. 220, 9 Fed. Cas. No. 5,089; In re Collateral Loan, etc., Bank, (1878) 5 Sawy. 331, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 2,997; Jones v. Watkins, (1827) 1 Stew. (Ala.) 81.

In discussing what constituted a moneyed corporation under the Kansas Crimes Act, it was held that a company incorporated for the purpose of pecuniary profit, although having no power to engage in banking, or in loaning money, or in writing insurance, is a moneyed corporation. State v. Chance, (1910) 82 Kan. 392, 20 Ann. Cas. 134 (see also note at p. 136), 108 Pac. 791.

In State v. Fidelity, etc., Co., (1904) 35

Tex. Civ. App. 214, 80 S. W. 544, a statute providing for the taxation of "moneyed corporations," was held to mean all classes of corporations organized and created for business purposes, as distinguished from public, or charitable, or other corporations which were exempted by law from taxation.

Corporate name not conclusive as to business. — There is no judicial presumption that the corporate name denotes the business in which the corporation is engaged. U. S. v. Freed, (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 179 Fed. 236.

Corporations engaged in farming. — A corporation is not exempt from the operation of the bankruptcy law, under the provision relating to the exemption of persons engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil, although its chief business may be farming. In re Lake Jackson Sugar Co., (S. D. Tex. 1904) 129 Fed. 640, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 458.

Banking corporations. — Prior to the amendment of 1910 the provision of section 4b. relative to bankers, read: "Private bankers, but not national banks or banks incorporated under state or territorial laws, may be adjudged involuntary bankrupts." Under that provision it was held that banks organized under the laws of the state were not subject to involuntary bankruptcy. In re Surety Guarantee, etc., Co., (7th Cir. 1902) 121 Fed. 73, 56 C. C. A. 654, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129; In re Oregon Trust, etc., Bank, (D. C. Ore. 1907) 156 Fed. 319, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484.

Private bankers, however, were held to be subject to involuntary proceedings. Burkhart v. German-American Bank, (S. D. Ohio 1904) 137 Fed. 958, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 222. See also Davis v. Stevens. (D. C. S. D. 1900) 104 Fed. 235, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 763.

But in Couts v. Townsend, (W. D. Kv. 1903) 126 Fed. 249, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126, it was held that a private banker was exempted from involuntary bankruptcy because his chief occupation was that of farming.

Municipal, railroad, insurance, and banking corporations are expressly excepted from the operation of section 4b, and therefore are not subject to adjudication as involuntary bankrupts. To be entitled to such immunity, however, it would seem that, as under the law prior to the amendment of 1910, it is essential that the alleged bankrupt shall have been within the statutory exceptions at the time of the commission of the alleged act of bankruptcy. See the cases cited to this effect in subdivision II. of this annotation, paragraph Determination of Status of Statutory Excep-

Winding-up or dissolution proceedings. A corporation does not cease to exist from the fact that proceedings for winding up its affairs, or for its dissolution, have been instituted in a state court; and, notwithstanding such proceedings, a corporation still remains amenable to involuntary bankruptcy under section 4b. Lea v. George M. West Co., (E. D. Va. 1899) 91 Fed. 237, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 261; In re Empire Metallic Bedstead Co., (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 95 Fed. 957, Am. Bankr. Rep. 136; In re Storm, (E. D. N. Y. 1900) 103 Fed. 618, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; White Mountain Paper Co. v. Morse, (1st Cir. 1904) 127 Fed. 643, 62 C. C. A. 369, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 633; In re Hercules Atkin Co., (E. D. Pa. 1904) 133 Fed. 813, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369; In re International Coal Min. Co., (E. D. Pa. 1906) 143 Fed. 665, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 309, affirmed (3d Cir. 1906) 148 Fed. 981, 78 C. C. A. 609, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573; In re Adams, etc., Co., (N. D. Ga. 1908) 164 Fed. 489, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 161; Matter of Edward G. Milbury Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1904) 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 523.

The fact that the property of a corporation is in the possession of receivers appointed by a state court does not affect the jurisdiction of a court of bankruptcy to adjudicate such corporation a bankrupt. In re C. Moench, etc., Co., (2d Cir. 1904) 130 Fed. 685, 66 C. C. A. 37, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 240; In re Sterlingworth R. Supply Co., (E. D. Pa. 1908) 164 Fed. 591, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 341.

Unincorporated companies or associations may, under the express provision of the statute, be adjudged bankrupt. In re Hercules Atkin Co.. (E. D. Pa. 1904) 133 Fed. 813, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369; In re Seaboard Fire Underwriters, (S. D. N. Y. 1905) 137 Fed. 987, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 722.

Prior to the enactment of the amendment of June 25, 1910, section 4b, with respect to the amenability of corporations thereto, read that "any corporation engaged principally in manufacturing, trading, printing, publishing, mining, or mercantile pursuits," might be adjudged bankrupt. As to what constituted any one of the various classes of corporations mentioned there was not, and probably could not have been, any fixed rule; so that, under the old law, there existed a wide difference of opinion. These decisions, however, are now only of value with respect to cases commenced prior to the time of the passage of the amendment, and are appended without comment.

Existence of partnership necessary.—As required by the statute, a partnership, as such, may be adjudged bankrupt only "during the continuation of the partnership business, or after its dissolution and before the final settlement thereof;" and, in accordance with this language, it has been held that in order to warrant the adjudication as a bankrupt of the partnership entity, it is necessary to show the actual existence of such partnership at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy against it. The burden of proof in an issue to determine whether or not the respondent is a partnership, rests upon the petitioners. Jones v. Burnham, (3d Cir. 1905) 138 Fed. 986, 71 C. C. A. 240, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 85.

There is no final settlement of the affairs of a partnership until its debts are paid, or in some other way extinguished; and in the absence of a showing to that effect, the other elements being present, a partnership may be adjudged bankrupt. If a partnership has been dissolved by the partners, inter sees, before the filing of the petition, it is not thereafter an existing partnership, and proceedings in bankruptcy cannot be maintained against it. In re Pinson, (N. D. Ala. 1910) 180 Fed. 787, 24 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 804.

Adjudication after dissolution by death.—A partnership, after its dissolution by the death of one partner, may be adjudged a bankrupt; and in such case the proceedings are not invalidated by the fact that the petition does not refer to the deceased partner, nor disclose that the partners named were surviving partners, where the business was being continued as provided for in the partnership articles. In re Coe. (S. D. N. Y. 1907) 157 Fed. 308, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 618. See also In re Pierce, (D. C. Wash. 1900) 102 Fed. 977, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 489.

But where, on an application for an adjudication of bankruptcy against a firm, it appeared that both of the original partners had died, leaving their interests to certain others, some of whom were minors, and it did not appear by whom or under what arrangement the firm was subsequently conducted, except that two persons conducted the business and committed the acts of bankruptcy alleged, and the continuance of the partnership was denied by the alleged infant members, an adjudication was denied until the parties, by a proper proceeding or pleading, removed the uncertainties of the situation. In re McLaren, (N. D. N. Y. 1903) 125 Fed. 835, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 141.

Necessity of showing insolvency of individuals composing firm.—It has been held that where the act of bankruptcy charged against a partnership entity is one involving insolvency, it is necessary, in order to warrant an adjudication, to allege and prove that the assets of the partnership, plus the assets of its members in excess of their individual debts, are insufficient to pay the partnership debts. In re Blair, (S. D. N. Y. 1900) 99 Fed. 76, 79, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 588; Vaccaro v. Security Bank, (6th Cir. 1900) 103 Fed. 436, 43 C. C. A. 279, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474; Davis v. Stevens, (D. C. But it has also been held that a partnership is insolvent and subject to adjudication as a bankrupt when the partnership property is insufficient to pay its debts, regardless of the individual property of the partners. In re McMurtrey, (W. D. Tex. 1905) 142 Fed. 853, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 427.

Sufficient evidence of insolvency. — The inability of a partnership to meet its matured obligations, together with its dissolution, and the transfer of practically all of its property to creditors, either by way of payment or security, leaving other debts unpaid, are facts sufficient to establish its insolvency. In re-Miller, (W. D. N. Y. 1900) 104 Fed. 764, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 140.

Petition - Form. - No official form having been prescribed for a petition in involuntary bankruptcy against a partnership, form No. 3 (the general form of a creditors' petition) is to be used for that purpose, with such changes as are necessary to meet the exigencies of the particular case. Mather v. Coe, (N. D. Ohio 1899) 92 Fed. 333, 1 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 504.

A partnership is a distinct entity, which requires a petition specifically directed against it, alleging an act of bankruptcy in which it is expressly involved, and resulting in an adjudication against the partnership itself, irrespective of and in addition to any that may be made against the individual members; and simultaneous proceedings against the individual members of a partnership do not necessarily bring the partnership into court, so as to authorize an amendment calling for an adjudication against it. In re Mercur, (3d Cir. 1903) 122 Fed. 384, 58 C. C. A. 472, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505.

Only one petition need be filed upon the voluntary application of a partnership for the benefit of the Bankruptcy Act, and all that is done thereupon constitutes but one proceeding, although it includes granting a discharge to each of the partners. In re Langslow, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 98 Fed. 869, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258; In re Gay, (D. C. N. H. 1899) 98 Fed. 870, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Who may file petition. — A member of the partnership may file a petition seeking the adjudication of his firm as a bankrupt. In re Murray, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 96 Fed. 600, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; In re Russell, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 97 Fed. 32, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 91; In re Duguid, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 274, 3 Am. Bankr. But a single partner cannot maintain a petition to have his partnership adjudged a voluntary or an involuntary bankrupt, in the sense in which these terms are generally used. In re Ceballos, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 161 Fed. 445, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459.

Necessity of notice to nonassenting partner. - Members of a partnership who do not join in, or assent to, the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the partnership, and who have not been notified thereof, cannot be adjudicated bankrupt. In re Murray, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 96 Fed. 600, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; In re Russell, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 97 Fed. 32, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 91; In re Junck, (E. D. Wis. 1909) 169 Fed. 481, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 298.

Where some, but not all, of the members of a partnership file a petition in bankruptcy asking for the adjudication of the firm, the proceeding is a voluntary one as to the firm and the petitioners, but it is involuntary as to nonassenting partners. In re Murray, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 96 Fed. 600, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; In re Carleton, (D. C. Mass. 1902) 115 Fed. 246, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 270; In re Ceballos, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 161 Fed. 445, 20 Am. Rep. 298.

But such nonconsenting partner does not hold a veto on the jurisdiction of the court over the partnership as an entity. In re Junck, (E. D. Wis. 1909) 169 Fed. 481, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 298.

Thus while the objecting partner may prevent his own adjudication, he cannot escape an accounting which is necessary to facilitate the jurisdiction of the court over the partnership case. In re Junck, (E. D. Wis. 1909) 169 Fed. 481, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 298.

The firm creditors may also file a petition in bankruptcy against the partnership entity, as well as against the individual members thereof. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Meyer, (E. D. N. Individual petition seeking discharge from partnership debts.—Where a member of a partnership files a petition in bankruptcy, and seeks thereby to obtain a discharge from his liability for the payment of partnership obligations, as well as his individual debts, the petition, schedules, and notices to creditors should contain the averments and information necessary to lay a foundation for discharge effectual as against firm creditors. Discharge.—As to the effect of a discharge with respect to partnership debts, see the annotation under the first subdivision of sec-

b [Administration of estate.] The creditors of the partnership shall appoint the trustee; in other respects so far as possible the estate shall be administered as herein provided for other estates. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 547.]

Trustee of partnership estate.— The statute contemplates that the trustee elected for a partnership snall also be the trustee of the individual partners; and there is no authority for the election of separate trustees for the partners. But see In re Bertenshaw, (8th Cir. 1907) 157 Fed. 363, 13 Ann. Cas. 986, 85 C. C. A. 61, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577, wherein it was said that where a partnership is adjudged bankrupt, and the members of the partnership are not, the trustee takes title to the partnership property and to that only, and his full duty is discharged and all the power which he has is exercised when he collects and converts the partnership property into money and distributes its proceeds among the creditors. The creditors of the partnership may subject the individual property of the unadjudicated partners to the payment of their debts before, during, or after the bankruptcy proceedings, just as they may the property of indorsers upon the commercial paper of the firm or the property of sureties for its obligations. But the trustee of the estate of the partnership is neither the assignee or the trustee of the claims of its creditors, nor their attorney nor agent to collect their claims out of the individual property of the unadjudicated partners, and he has no more right or authority at law or in equity to seize their individual property and to apply it to the payment of the partnership creditors than he has to take the property of indorsers of the firm paper or the property of sureties for its obligations and apply such property to that purpose. He is merely the trustee of the property of the partnership, not of the individual property of the partnership, not of the individual property of the partnership, and he is without power to take or to administer such property. Nor may he maintain any action or proceeding to enforce the liability of the individual partners to the partnership creditors, because he is not the assignee of the claims of the creditors of the partnership and he has no more right or authority than a stranger to enforce these claims, against persons other than the bankrupt partnership, or against property other than the property of the partnership.

c [Jurisdiction over one partner sufficient.] The court of bankruptcy which has jurisdiction of one of the partners may have jurisdiction of all the partners and of the administration of the partnership and individual property. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 547.]

Entity doctrine.—It has been held that a partnership is a "person" or entity which may be adjudged bankrupt upon its voluntary petition, or in involuntary proceedings, if it has committed an act of bankruptcy, irrespective of any adjudication of the individual partners as bankrupts. Where one of the partners is adjudged bankrupt and the court thus acquires jurisdiction of him, the partnership is dissolved; and if the partnership also is adjudged bankrupt, the bankruptcy court is given jurisdiction by clause c of the partnership and of all its members, because it then becomes necessary to marshal the properties and the liabilities of the partnership and its mem-bers, and to distribute the proceeds of the properties among the creditors in accordance with the equitable rule recited in clause f. In re Bertenshaw, (8th Cir. 1907) 157 Fed. 363, 13 Ann. Cas. 986, 85 C. C. A. 61, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577.

Jurisdiction as to estate of deceased partner. — Upon the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by one individually, and as surviving partner of a late copartnership, the bank-ruptcy court has complete jurisdiction over the partnership estate, although such estate, together with the personal estate of the deceased partner, was in course of administration in a state court before the petition in bankruptcy was filed, provided possession of the partnership assets can be obtained by the referee without forcibly interfering with the custody of the administrator. In re Pierce, (D. C. Wash, 1900) 102 Fed. 977, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 489.

On an adjudication of bankruptey against a firm, the firm property vests in the trustee in bankruptcy, and the surviving partner thereafter has no power to consent to an allowance to the widow and children of the deceased partner out of the assets of the firm, prior to the payment of the firm's debts. In rc Dobert, (W. D. Tex. 1908) 165 Fed. 749, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 634.

Necessity of partnership being adjudged bankrupt. — The uniform current of authority is that a partnership is a distinct entity separate from the individuals who compose it; that it owns its property and owes its debts, which are respectively separate and distinct from the individual property and the individual debts of its partners; and that an adjudication of the partnership as a bank-rupt, apart from or in addition to the adjudication of its partners as bankrupts, is indispensable to the jurisdiction of a court of bankruptcy to administer the partmership property. Where all the members of a firm are adjudicated bankrupts, but there has been no adjudication against the firm, the trustee appointed in the individual cases has no authority to interfere with firm assets, though all the cases were instituted simultaneously by the same creditor, and the same trustee appointed for all the partners. In re Mercur, (3d Cir. 1903) 122 Fed. 384, 58 C. C. A.

472, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505.

Necessity of partner being adjudged bankrupt. — The plain provisions of the Bank-ruptey Act forbid the court of bankruptey to draw to itself and administer the individual property of unadjudicated partners upon a mere adjudication of the bankruptcy of their partnership. In re Bertenshaw, (8th Cir. 1907) 157 Fed. 363, 13 Ann. Cas. 986, 85 C. C. A. 61, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577.

The provision of clause c simply gives to a court of bankruptcy, which has jurisdiction of one of the members of a partnership adjudged bankrupt, the same jurisdiction to administer the estate of the partnership and of its members which a court of equity would have in similar circumstances. A court of equity in such circumstances would not take the partnership property from the solvent partners, and clause h imposes upon the pankruptev court this salutary rule of equity practice. In re Bertenshaw, (8th Cir. 1907) 157 Fed. 363, 13 Ann. Cas. 986, 85 C. C. A. 61, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577.

- e [Distribution of expenses.] The expenses shall be paid from the partnership property and the individual property in such proportions as the court shall determine. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 547.]

Filing face. -- It has been held that a deposit of the statutory filing fee of $25 must he made not only for the partnership, but also for each member of the firm who seeks an adjudication. In re Barden, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 653, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 31: In re Farley, (W. D. Va. 1902) 115 Fed. 359, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266.

But it has also been held that only one deposit of the filing fee is necessary, and that it cannot be demanded of the partners, as a prerequisite to discharging them, that they should each separately deposit a like fee. In re Langslow, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 98 Fed. 869, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258; In re Gay, (D. C. N. H. 1899) 98 Fed. 870.

Should any surplus of the partnership property remain after paying the partnership debts, such surplus shall be added to the assets of the individual partners in the proportion of their respective interests in the partnership. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548. 7

Officers' fees. — So, also, it has been held that the clerk, referee, and trustee, respectively, are entitled to separate fees, as though there were separate and distinct cases as to each partner in addition to the partnership case, although no individual petitions were filed. In re Farley, (W. D. Va. 1902) 115 Fed. 359, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266, following In re Barden, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 101 Fed.

Distribution. — The net proceeds of the partnership property must be appropriated by the trustee first to the payment of partnership debts, and the net proceeds of the individual estate of each partner to the payment of his individual debts, and any surplus in either fund may then be applied to the other. Distribution equitable. — Subsection 5f is declaratory of an established equity rule. In re Telfer, (6th Cir. 1910) 184 Fed. 224, 106 C. C. A. 366.

The rule of distribution prescribed by section 5f is not to be varied by anything permissible under section 5g, where the partnership and the individual members are all adjudged bankrupts and the estates of all are before the court and are unaffected by preference or fraud. This is but applying the general rule, that where all the partners become bankrupt the separate estate of one partner shall not claim against the joint estate of the partnership in competition with the joint creditors, nor shall the joint estate claim against the separate estate in competition with the separate creditors. In re Telfer, (6th Cir. 1910) 184 Fed. 224, 106 C. C. A.

marshaled. The language is plain, explicit, and unambiguous; its phraseology conveys no intimation that any exception is contemplated. In re Janes, (2d Cir. 1904) 133 Fed. 912, 67 C. C. A. 216, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 341.

Firm creditors are entitled to be first paid out of firm assets before the individual creditors have any right to share therein. If a surplus should remain, however, after the payment of partnership debts, creditors of the individual partners may share therein.

A dissolution of, and transfer by one of two partners to the other of all of his interest in, an insolvent partnership, although with-out actual fraudulent intent, is fraudulent in law as against partnership creditors, and does not debar them from the right to be first paid from the partnership property, and for that purpose to have a marshaling of assets between the partnership and individual estates in bankruptcy. In re Terens, (E. D. Wis. 1910) 175 Fed. 495.

The creditors of the individual partners are entitled to be first paid out of the assets of the separate estates, and such assets cannot be distributed to firm creditors excepting where there is a surplus remaining after such payment has been made. Existence of assets immaterial. - A partnership debt, on which a bankrupt partner remains liable, is none the less provable against his estate because there may be no surplus of his individual assets over his separate debts. The provability of a debt depends on the nature of the liability, not on the existence or the prospect of assets for its satisfaction. In re Bates, (D. C. Vt. 1900) 100 Fed. 263, 4 Am. Bankr. Set-off of partnership debt.—A solvent partnership which is indebted to a bank-rupt cannot set off against such indebtedness a claim due from the bankrupt estate to one of the partners. In re Shults, (W. D. N. Y. 1904) 132 Fed. 573, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84.

h [Administration where all partners not bankrupt.] In the event of one or more but not all of the members of a partnership being adjudged bankrupt, the partnership property shall not be administered in bankruptcy, unless by consent of the partner or partners not adjudged bankrupt; but such partner or partners not adjudged bankrupt shall settle the partnership business as expeditiously as its nature will permit, and account for the interest of the partner or partners adjudged bankrupt. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

When section 5h applies. — Section 5h contemplates a case where one or more but not all of the members of a partnership are adjudged bankrupt, while the partnership as such is not before the court. In re Bertenshaw, (8th Cir. 1907) 157 Fed. 363, 13 Ann. Cas. 986, 85 C. C. A. 61, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577; In re Ceballos, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 161 Fed. 445, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459; In re Junek, (E. D. But in In re Everybody's Grocery, etc., Market, (D. C. Okla. 1908) 173 Fed. 492. 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 925, it was said that section 5h has reference to cases where one or more but not all of the members of a partnership are adjudged bankrupts either with or without the adjudication of the partnership; and that it is the administration of the partnership assets, rather than the adjudication, that is made to depend upon the consent of the solvent members of the partnership.

Section 5h, being exceptional and negative, cannot be construed into affirmative authority for the administration of the firm assets in individual proceedings against all the partners; but it rather recognizes the absence of any inherent necessity for throwing a firm into bankruptcy merely because its members have been adjudicated. In re Mercur, (3d Cir. 1903) 122 Fed. 384, 58 C. C. A. 472, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505; In re Ceballos, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 161 Fed. 445, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 450

Section 5h does not apply to a case where the infancy of the partner not adjudged bankrupt was the only ground for dismissing the petition as to him. In re Dunnigan, (D. C. Mass. 1899) 95 Fed. 428, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 628; In re Duguid, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 274, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794.

Right of unadjudicated partner to settle partnership business. — Where a partner and his partnership have not been adjudged bankrupts, but his copartners have, subdivision h reserves to him the right to close up the partnership business. Francis v. McNeal, (C. C. A. 3d Cir. 1911) 186 Fed. 481.

The inherent right of a solvent partner to close up the affairs of the firm must be recognized by the court of bankruptcy. This right was not conferred by the Bankruptcy Act, neither can it be abridged or taken away by it. In re Junck, (E. D. Wis. 1909) 169 Fed. 481, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 298.

Mecessity of claiming. — The exemptions to which a bankrupt is entitled under the laws of the state, in accordance with the provisions of section 6 of the Bankruptcy Act, must be claimed in the schedule which an involuntary bankrupt is required to file, under section 7a (8), within ten days after his adjudication, unless further time has been granted therefor, and which a voluntary bankrupt must file with his petition in bankruptcy. Thus it has been held that where a bankrupt neglected to file a claim for exemptions until after a sale of his assets, his claim thereto was not saved by his having appeared and objected to the order of sale on the ground that his exemptions had not been allowed. In re Wunder, (E. D. Pa. 1905) 133 Fed. 821, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 701.

Time and manner of claiming. - While the exemptions which a bankrupt may claim, under section 6, are those provided for by the statutes of the several states, the time and manner of claiming such exemptions, and of awarding them, are regulated by the Bank-ruptcy Act; thus the exemptions must be claimed in accordance with section 7a (8), and set apart by the trustee in accordance with section 47a (11). Where the exemption is personal to the debtor, it can only be demanded by him. Mitchell v. Mitchell, (E. D. N. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 280, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382.

Allowance of exemption claim after filing of schedules. - Although section 7a (8) is the guide as to the strictly regular time and manner of asserting in the bankruptcy court the claim for exemptions, nevertheless it has been held that such section is directory; and that, taken in connection with the express right to allow amendments, there is some discretion in the bankruptcy court to allow claims of exemption to be made after the original schedules have been filed. In re Fisher, (W. D. Va. 1905) 142 Fed. 205, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 652. See also In re Bean, (D. C. Vt. 1900) 100 Fed. 262, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53. And see the cases cited, infra, p. 510, under the heading, Amendment of schedules.

Agreement that mortgagee shall select exempt property for debtor. - A bankrupt who mortgages his exempt property may, if permitted by the state law, agree that the mortgagee may select the property which shall be set aside as exempt; and such authority, given upon a valuable consideration and coupled with an interest, cannot be revoked by the failure of the bankrupt to claim the exemptions in his own name, or even by his express waiver thereof. In re National Grocer Co., (6th Cir. 1910) 181 Fed. 33, 104 C. C.

Necessity of claiming specific property. -It has been held that the bankrupt should claim the specific property which he desires to have set apart to him as exempt; and that his failure to do so, unless his schedules are subsequently amended in this respect, will preclude him from the recovery of such exemption thereafter. But in Burke v. Guarantee Title, etc., Co., (3d Cir. 1905) 134 Fed. 562, 67 C. C. A. 486, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 31, it was said that there is not a word in the statute to warrant the conjecture that Congress intended that the bankrupt himself should make an itemization and estimate which the trustee, in performing the function expressly assigned to him, might wholly disregard; and that while it is true that among the forms promulgated by the Supreme Court is "Schedule B (5)," in which is contained the words, "Property claimed to be exempted by the state laws, its valuation," etc., that is nothing more than a Amendment of schedules. - The bankrupt may, upon proper application, be permitted to amend his schedules so as to remedy defects therein with respect to the claiming of his exemptions. Insertion of exemption claim by amendment. - The statute does not preclude the court, in its discretion, from allowing claims of exemption to be made by amendment after the original schedule has been filed. Rep. 53.

Amendment on discovery of additional assets. - Where, after the trustees were discharged, the bankrupts, acting in good faith, assisted by their counsel, found additional assets of which they had hitherto been ignorant, it was held that the bankrupts, not having received the full amount of their exemptions under the state statute, were entitled within a reasonable time to leave to amend the schedule of exempt property, and to an allow-ance out of the fund so obtained of an amount necessary to complete the exemption. In re Irwin, (W. D. Pa. 1909) 177 Fed. 284, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 165, reversing (3d Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 642, 98 C. C. A. 396, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 487.

So also it has been held that the bankrupt may amend his schedules so as to include a sum of money subsequently surrendered to the trustee by a creditor, as the proceeds of property transferred to him by the bankrupt and constituting a preference, and may at the same time claim the remainder of his exemption therefrom. Mistake of counsel. - A bankrupt does not lose his right to claim the exemptions, by his failure, through the mistake of his attorney, to specifically claim them in his schedule; and, on application at any seasonable time while the property remains in the hands of the trustee unaffected by adverse rights, he should be permitted to amend his schedule in that respect. Goodman v. Curtis, (5th Cir.

1909) 174 Fed. 644, 98 C. C. A. 398, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 504.

So also it has been held that where a debtor, shortly before filing his petition in bankruptcy, acting in good faith on the advice of his attorney, voluntarily conveyed his homestead to his wife, and afterwards, before his examination, receiving different advice, secured a reconveyance to himself, and on obtaining leave amended his schedule by including the homestead therein, such homestead should be set aside to the bankrupt in the bankruptcy proceedings, since the conveyance to his wife was not fraudulent in fact; and as his creditors had no interest in or claim on his homestead interest in the land, the conveyance of such interest could not injure, or be fraudulent, as to them. In re Tollett, (6th Cir. 1901) 106 Fed. 866, 46 C. C. A. 11, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 404.

Oversight. — The failure of a bankrupt through oversight to make a claim to a home stead exemption in his schedule does not deprive him of the exemption allowed to himself and his family by the laws of the state. where timely application is otherwise made to the court of bankruptcy therefor, and such application, although not such in form, may properly be treated as an amendment of the schedule. In re Maxson, (N. D. Ia. 1909) 170 Fed. 356, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 424.

Matters of form. - Where a bankrupt undertook in good faith to claim his exemption, but failed to make the claim in the form required by the statute, in consequence of which it was all sold by the trustee, it was held that he might be permitted to amend his schedules thereafter, so as to claim the exemption from its proceeds. In re Duffy, (M. D. Pa. 1902) 118 Fed. 926, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 358; In re Berman, (N. D. Ohio 1905) 140 Fed. 761, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 463; In re Culwell, (D. C. Mont. 1908) 165 Fed. 828, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 614.

But a bankrupt cannot amend his schedules relating to exemptions so as to claim something which he could not have claimed at the time his petition was filed. Matter of Neal, (N. D. Ohio 1905) 14 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Nor will an amendment be allowed for the purpose of preferring certain creditors to whom the bankrupt has given notes, in which he waived his exemption privilege. Moran t. King, (4th Cir. 1901) 111 Fed. 730, 49 C. C. A. 578, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 176, affirming (W. D. Va. 1900) 105 Fed. 901, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472. See also In re Garner, (W. D. Va. 1902) 115 Fed. 200, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 263.

But see In re Batten, (E. D. Va. 1909) 170 Fed. 688, wherein it was held that the fact that a creditor had waived his exemption did not authorize the refusal of its allowance.

II. MATTERS AFFECTING RIGHT TO EXEMPTION.

Death. -- On the death of a debtor, property which would have been set apart to him wder his exemption, had he lived, remains a part of his estate, and goes to his administrator. In re Seabolt, (W. D. N. C. 1962) 113 Fed, 766, 8 Am. Bankr, Rep. 57.

Residence. — The bankrupt must be a resident of the state the benefit of whose exemption laws are claimed by him. In re Dinglehoef, (E. D. N. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 866, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242; In re Owings, (E. D. N. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 739, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; In re O'Hara, (M. D. Pa. 1908) 162 Fed. 325, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 714; In re Donahey, (M. D. Pa. 1910) 176 Fed. 458, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 796.

Land located outside the district. - A court of bankruptcy is without jurisdiction to allot to a bankrupt, domiciled within its district, a homestead in lands situated in another district. In re Owings, (E. D. N. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 739, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472.

Removal from state after right to exemption accrues. - The right of a bankrupt to his exemption is to be determined as of the date when it is claimed; and his removal from the state after the claim has been made is immaterial, although the right is only given to residents by the state law. In re Donahey, (M. D. Pa. 1910) 176 Fed. 458, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 796.

Sale of property. - Where the trustee erroneously sells exempt property, the bankrupt may claim the amount of his exemptions from the proceeds of the sale. In re Brown, (W. D. Pa. 1899) 100 Fed. 441, 4 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 46.

Bale of exempt property for benefit of estate. - Where a bankrupt, by agreement with the trustee, allowed exempt property to be sold for the benefit of the estate, it was held that the trustee should allow the exemption out of the proceeds of the sale. In re Richard, (E. D. N. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 633, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 506; In re Sloan, (E. D. Pa. 1905) 135 Fed. 873, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435; In re Renda, (M. D. Pa. 1906) 149 Fed. 614, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 521. See also In re Park, (W. D. Ark. 1900) 102 Fed. 602, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 432.

Sale of perishable property. - The mere fact that exempt property has been sold by a receiver, under the direction of the court, as perishable, will not deprive the bankrupt of the right to his exemption out of the proceeds; notwithstanding that, under the state law, a debtor is not entitled to his exemption out of the proceeds of a sale, but must elect the goods he wishes to retain and have them set aside to him. In re Le Vay, (M. D. Pa. 1903) 125 Fed. 990, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 114; In re Coddington, (M. D. Pa. 1904) 126 Fed. 891, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122; In re Stein, (E. D. Pa. 1904) 130 Fed. 629, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 384, affirmed (3d Cir. 1905) 134 Fed. 235, 67 C. C. A. 17.

Sale without prejudice to claim exemption. - Where exempt property was sold by order of the court, but without prejudice to the rights of the bankrupt to apply for the proceeds of the sale, the court will surrender such proceeds in lieu of the exemption. In re Bolinger, (W. D. Pa. 1901) 108 Fed. 374, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 171.

Sale to avoid loss of exemption. - Where a bankrupt's exemption, allowed by the state for the benefit of the family, would be defeated unless its allowance is made in cash out of the proceeds of a sale, it will, if practicable, be ordered paid out of such proceeds. In re Luby, (S. D. Ohio 1907) 155 Fed. 659, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 801 (sale of stock of liquors).

Thus it has been held that where all the land of a bankrupt is so encumbered by mortgages, under which the mortgagees have the right to sell the homestead, the court may sell the land and make the allotment of the homestead out of the proceeds. In re Paramore, (E. D. N. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 208, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 130.

Creditors with notice, who make no objection to a sale of all of the property for the purpose of permitting the bankrupt to take his exemption from the proceeds, cannot afterward object to its allowance therefrom. Dunlap Hardware Co. v. Huddleston, (5th Cir. 1909) 167 Fed. 433, 93 C. C. A. 69.

Rights of creditors as to exemptions allowed out of proceeds of sale. - Where a bankrupt elects to take his exemption out of the proceeds of a sale of real estate, the amount thereof while in the hands of the trustee is subject to seizure under a judgment containing a waiver of exemption. In re MacKissic, (E. D. Pa. 1909) 171 Fed. 259, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 817.

Money allowed a bankrupt "in lieu of his exemption," may be attached in the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy on a judgment rendered against a bankrupt, on a note wherein the bankrupt waived the benefits of the exemption law. Zumpfe v. Schultz, (1907) 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 916, 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 106.

Where the exemption is claimed from the proceeds of a sale, the court may consider and determine any claim made by others to the fund while it remains in the hands of the trustee. In re Renda, (M. D. Pa. 1906) 149 Fed. 614, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 521. And see annotation under section 2 (11).

Preferential transfer.—The right of a bankrupt to claim his exemption from property which he has preferentially transferred in violation of the provisions of section 60b, where such property has been subsequently recovered by the trustee, presents a conflict of opinion; in the following cases it has been held that he is not entitled to his exemption in such cases. In re Tollett, (E. D. Tenn. 1900) 105 Fed. 425, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305; In re White, (W. D. Mo. 1901) 109 Fed. 635, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451; In re Long, (E. D. Pa. 1902) 116 Fed. 113, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 591; In re Evans, (E. D. N. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 909; In re Coddington, (M. D. Pa. 1904) 126 Fed. 891, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122; In re Wishnefsky, (D. C. N. J. 1910) 181 Fed. 896; Matter of Neal, (N. D. Ohio 1905) 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 550.

On the other hand it has also been held that where property preferentially transferred has been recovered back by the trustee, it then forms a part of the estate in bankruptcy from which the bankrupt may claim his exemption. In re Falconer, (8th Cir. 1901) 110 Fed. 111, 49 C. C. A. 50, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 557; Bashinski v. Talbott, (5th Cir. 1902) 119 Fed. 337, 56 C. C. A. 241, 9 Am, Bankr, Rep. 513; In re Soper, (D. C. Neb. 1909) 173 Fed. 116, 22 Am.

Frand. — In several jurisdictions it has been held that a bankrupt who has been guilty of fraud is not entitled to the exemption provided for by the laws of the state; and in such cases the bankrupt will also be denied the exemption in a court of bankdenied the exemption in a court of bank-ruptcy. In re Waxelbaum, (N. D. Ga. 1900) 101 Fed. 228, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 120; In re White, (W. D. Mo. 1901) 109 Fed. 635, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451; In re Williamson, (N. D. Ga. 1901) 114 Fed. 190, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 43; In re Taylor, (D. C. Colo. 1901) 114 Fed. 607, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 410; In re Boorstin, (N. D. Ga. 1902) 114 Fed. 696, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 40; In re Long (F. D. Re Am. Bankr. Rep. 89; In re Long, (E. D. Pa. 1902) 116 Fed. 113, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 591; In re Yost. (M. D. Pa. 1902) 117 Fed. 792, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 153; In re Duffy, (M. D. Pa. 1902) 118 Fed. 926, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 358; In re Woolloott, (E. D. N. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 460, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 386; In re Alex, (E. D. Pa. 1905) 141 Fed. 483, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 450; In re Leverton, (M. D. Pa. 1907) 155 Fed. 925, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 434; In re Dobbs, (N. D. Ga. 1909) 172 Fed. 682, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 801; In re Wishnefsky, (D. C. N. J. 1910) 181 Fed. 896; In re Sussman, (M. D. Pa. 1910) 183 Fed. 331.

Courts of bankruptcy proceed on equitable principles and will not sustain a positive fraud committed by the bankrupt, in an endeavor to extend his exemptions, any more than it would be sustained by a court of equity. In re Gerber, (C. C. A. 9th Cir.

But the foregoing rule as to the effect of fraud is not general; thus it has been held that where a conveyance in fraud of creditors has been set aside, the property is administered as that of the debtor; and, as a matter of general law, he is not precluded by the void conveyance from asserting his right to a homestead exemption therein as against his creditors. In re Thompson, (E. D. Wash. 1905) 140 Fed. 257, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 283.

So, also, in this connection, it has been said that a debtor may claim his exemptions out of fraudulently conveyed property, re-covered back by a trustee, for the reason that he never in fact parted with the title. Matter of Neal, (N. D. Ohio 1905) 14 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 550.

And in In re Park, (W. D. Ark. 1900) 102 Fed. 602, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 432, it was held that a bankrupt cannot be denied his exemptions because he has not accounted for all his assets or has fraudulently transferred his property.

Fraudulent intention necessary. - Even in those states wherein the bankrupt's fraud constitutes a bar to the allowance of his exemptions, it is necessary, in order to warrant a refusal of the exemption, that there be a fraudulent intention on the part of the bankrupt; and where fraud has been made a statutory bar, the facts must be brought within the terms of the statute. In re Thompson, (S. D. Ga. 1902) 115 Fed. 924, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 283; Fields v. Karter, (5th Cir. 1902) 115 Fed. 950, 53 C. C. A.

432, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; In re West, (N. D. Ga. 1902) 116 Fed. 767, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 564; In re Castleberry, (N. D. Ga. 1005) 143 Fed. 1018, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 159; In re Diamond, (N. D. Ala. 1908) 158 Fed. 370, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 811; In re Cotton, (S. D. Ga. 1910) 183 Fed. 190; In re Rothschild, (S. D. Ga. 1901) 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 43; Matter of Cotton, (S. D. Ga. 1909) 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 586.

Failure to pay for property claimed as exempt. — In some jurisdictions, under statutes prevailing therein, a debtor is not entitled to the exemption out of property for which he has not paid. Cannon v. Dexter Broom, etc., Co., (4th Cir. 1903) 120 Fed. 657, 57 C. C. A. 327, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 724.

It has also been held that the exemption will not be allowed as against an execution issued for the purchase money of property claimed to be exempt. In re Boyd, (N. D. Ia. 1903) 120 Fed. 999, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 337.

See also In re Butler, (N. D. Ga. 1902) 120 Fed. 100, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539. In this case, however, it was held that the exemption could not be denied where the creditor's claim had not been reduced to judgment, and no steps had been taken to fix a lien on the property for the purchase money.

But the fact that the purchase price of the goods claimed as exempt has not been paid gives the seller no right to enforce his vendor's lien in a court of bankruptcy. In re

Wells, (W. D. Ark. 1900) 105 Fed. 762, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 308. Annulment of liens. — Whatever benefit results from the annulment of attachment liens, under the provisions of section 67c and f, extends to exempt property as well as to that which is not exempt. It is the policy of the law to allow the bankrupt, as well as creditors, the benefit of the changed status. In re Tune, (N. D. Ala. 1902) 115 Fed. 906, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285.

Thus it has been held that where a garnishee has knowledge that the property or credits in his hands are exempt, it is his duty to interpose such defense; otherwise a judgment rendered against him, or his payment of the money into court, will not discharge his liability to the defendant, where the defendant had no actual knowledge of the proceeding. In re Beals, (D. C. Ind. 1902) 116 Fed. 530, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639. And see also the annotation under section 67 e and f.

Abandonment. - It has been held that where, under the law of the state, a bank-rupt's exemption is personal to him, it is nonassignable, and that in such case an assignment thereof operates as an abandonment. In re Sloan, (E. D. Pa. 1905) 135 Fed. 873,

14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435.

Effect of abandonment. - Where a claim for exemption has been abandoned, the property goes to the bankrupt's creditors generally, even though some creditors claim under an execution wherein the right of exemption has been waived. In re Baughman. (M. D. Pa. 1910) 183 Fed. 668. See also In re Pfeiffer, (W. D. Pa. 1907) 155 Fed. 892, 19 Am. Bankr, Rep. 230, Waiver - Effect generally. - Where the bankrupt has waived his right of exemption, he will not be entitled, as against such debt, to have property set apart to him under section 6 of the Bankruptcy Act. In re Garden, (N. D. Ala. 1899) 93 Fed. 423, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 582.

A trustee in bankruptcy is not entitled to the bankrupt's exemption, as against a creditor who has attached the same by an attachment execution, issued and served within four months prior to the bankruptcy, on a judgment waiving exemption. Sharp v. Woolslare, (1904) 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 251.

The waiver of a homestead exemption in a mortgage given by a bankrupt is in favor of the mortgage creditor alone, and does not inure to the benefit of others. If the mortgage is valid, the exemption, as against the mortgage creditor, is restricted to the equity of redemption; and the rights of other creditors are subordinate to both the mortgage lien and the payment of the bankrupt's exemption allowance, given him by statute, in case of a sale. In re Nye, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1904) 133 Fed. 33, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 142.

But a waiver of exemptions in a promissory note, proved against the estate of the maker in bankruptcy, but which had not been reduced to judgment prior to the bankruptcy, is ineffective, and does not defeat the right of the bankrupt to claim his exemptions or give the court of bankruptcy jurisdiction to administer the exempt property. In re Moore, (M. D. Ala. 1901) 112 Fed. 289, 7

Waiver as warranting refusal of evemption. - The fact that a bankrupt has waived his right of homestead in favor of certain creditors, as authorized by the laws of the state, does not warrant the court of bankruptcy in refusing to allow and set aside the homestead. In re Batten, (E. D. Va. 1909) 170 Fed. 688.

But see In re Garner, (W. D. Va. 1902) 115 Fed. 200, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 263, wherein it was held that the homestead exemption will not be allowed where the homestead waiver creditors, and not the bankrupt's family, will secure the benefit thereof.

Refusal to give trustee indemnity does not amount to waiver of exemption. — Where a voluntary bankrupt demanded the exemption allowed him by the law of the state, and the property was appraised, and the claim allowed by the referee, but the bankrupt refused to accede to the trustee's demand for a bond of indemnity, as the condition upon which he would deliver the property to him, and agreed that the property might be sold by the trustee, stating that he would claim the amount of the exemptions from the proceeds, it was held that there was no waiver or forfeiture by the bankrupt of his right to claim the exemption. In re Brown, (W. D. Pa. 1899) 100 Fed. 441, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 46.

Withdrawal of waiver. — A waiver of exemption, inserted by accident or mistake, may be withdrawn by amendment. In re White. (E. D. Pa. 1904) 128 Fed, 513, 11

Am. Bankr, Rep. 556.

But a bankrupt who has filed a formal waiver of his exemption will not be permitted to withdraw it for the benefit of a single creditor to whom he has made an assignment of his claim. In re Pfeiffer, (W. D. Pa. 1907) 155 Fed. 892, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 230. See also In re Baughman, (M. D. Pa. 1910) 183 Fed. 668.

III. RECOGNITION OF STATE AND FEDERAL EXEMPTION LAWS.

Constitutionality. - The constitutional requirement that bankruptcy laws be uniform throughout the United States is not violated by the Bankruptcy Act because by the sixth section thereof bankrupts are allowed the exemptions prescribed by the state law in force at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Hanover Nat. Bank v. Moyses, (1902) 186 U. S. 181, 22 S. Ct. 857, 46 U. S. (L. ed.) 1113, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1.

Construction.—Courts of bankruptcy should enforce the provisions of the law relating to exemptions liberally, to effectuate their purpose, both in construing the state statutes, and in the manner of allowing the exemption. In re Tilden, (S. D. Ia. 1899) 91 Fed. 500, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300; In re Kane, (7th Cir. 1904) 127 Fed. 552, 62 C. C. A.

616, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 533.

Section 6 must be construed with section 70a, in so far as exempt property is concerned, so that both provisions may be given effect. Lockwood v. Exchange Bank, (1903) 190 U. S. 294, 23 S. Ct. 751, 47 U. S. (L. ed.) 1061, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107. See also the annotation under section 70a (5) (second paragraph) with respect to exempt insurance policies.

Section 6 does not enlarge the exemptions available to the bankrupt under the state laws. In re Manning, (E. D. Pa. 1902) 112 Fed. 948, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 571; In re Boyd, (N. D. Ia. 1903) 120 Fed. 999, 10 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 337.

Exemption provided for by insolvent law not allowable. — A bankrupt is not entitled to an allowance for the support of his family provided by the state insolvency law, pending a proceeding under such law; since such allowance is not an exemption, but relates to that part of the insolvency law which is suspended in its operation by the Bankruptcy Act. In re Anderson, (D. C. Mass. 1901) 110 Fed. 141.

Federal exemption laws recognized. - The Bankruptcy Act recognizes all exemptions, whether state or federal, as they existed at the time of the passage of the act. In re Russie, (D. C. Ore. 1899) 96 Fed. 609, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6 (exemption of Indian lands); In re Cohn, (D. C. N. D. 1909) 171 Fed. 568, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 761 (homestead exemption).

Pensions. - Money received United States as a pension, and remaining unchanged in the pensioner's hands at the time of filing his petition in bankruptcy, is exempt from liability for his debts under Rev. Stat., $ 4747, 5 Fed. Stat. Annot. 667. In re Bean, (D. C. Vt. 1900) 100 Fed. 262, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53, Where pension money has been invested to provide for either the present or the future welfare of the pensioner and his family, it will be protected as exempt. In re Ellithorpe, (W. D. N. Y. 1901) 111 Fed. 163, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 18.

But pension money in the hands of a bankrupt at the time of the adjudication, which is neither invested nor mingled with other funds, is not exempt. In re Jones, (D. C. Me. 1909) 166 Fed. 337, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep.

State law adopted.—Section 6 of the bankruptcy law is clearly an adoption of the exemption laws of the several states; and, therefore, the bankrupt can only be allowed such exemptions as are provided for by the state exemption laws; and in determining the rights of bankrupts to their exemptions, the courts of bankrupts will follow the construction placed upon the local statutes by the highest courts of the state. Some of the cases wherein this proposition has been announced, or acted upon, are arranged under the following state classification.

Alabama. — Sellers v. Bell, (1899) 94 Fed. 801, 36 C. C. A. 502, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Moore, (1901) 112 Fed. 289, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285, overruling In re Garden, (1899) 93 Fed. 423, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 582; In re Tune, (1902) 115 Fed. 906, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285; In re Diamond, (1908) 158 Fed. 370, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 811; In re McCrary, (1909) 169 Fed. 485, 22 Am. Bankr.

Arkansas. — In re Park, (1900) 102 Fed. 602, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 432; In re Durham, (1900) 104 Fed. 231, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760; In re Wells, (1900) 105 Fed. 762, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 308; In re Meriwether, (1901) 107 Fed. 102, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435; In re Falconer, (1901) 110 Fed. 111, 49 C. C. A. 50, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 557; In re Morrison, (1901) 110 Fed. 734, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 488; In re Stone, (1902) 116 Fed. 35, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 418.

California. — In re Petersen, (1899) 95 Fed. 417, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 630; In re Diller, (1900) 100 Fed. 931, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 45; In re Hindman, (1900) 104 Fed. 331, 43 C. C. A. 558, 5 Am. Bankr. Where a bankrupt engaged in mercantile business made an assignment of all his property, and left his place of business, and went reside on the farm of his mother, and devoted his subsequent time and attention to his mother's farming interests, and testified that his only hope of being able to resume business was the remote contingency of his being able to compromise with his creditors, it was held that there was no fixed, definite intent to resume the business, sufficient to entitle him to have the place where he formerly carried on his business exempted to him as a business homestead. In re Flannagan, (1902) 117 Fed. 695, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 140.

Partnership exemptions. - The right to claim exemptions from partnership property is, similarly to the allowance of all other exemptions, governed by the law of the state. In the following cases the right to such exemption has been recognized: In re Camp, (N. D. Ga. 1899) 91 Fed. 745, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 165; In re Stevenson, (E. D. N. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 789, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 580; In re Novak, (D. C. S. D. 1907) 150 Fed. 602, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236.

But where the laws of the state do not recognize the right to exemptions out of the partnership property, such an allowance will not be made in the court of bankruptcy. In re Beauchamp, (D. C. Md. 1900) 101 Fed. 106, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151; In re Demarest, (D. C. N. J. 1901) 110 Fed. 638, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 232; In re Mosier, (D. C. Vt. 1901) 112 Fed. 138, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 268; In re Prince, (M. D. Pa. 1904) 131 Fed. 546.

12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 680.

Individual partners cannot claim exemptions from the partnership property as against partnership debts in bankruptcy, though the other partner or partners may have consented thereto. In re Scheier, (E. D.

Wash. 1911) 188 Fed. 744.

In the absence of any decision of the state courts allowing partners to claim exemptions out of the firm property, it has been held that in case of the bankruptcy of a partnership, where there is partnership property, but no individual assets, the members of the firm are not entitled to have any portion of the firm property set apart to them as their individual exemptions, unless there should remain a surplus of such property after the payment of all firm debts. In re Beauchamp, (D. C. Md. 1900) 101 Fed. 106, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151.

Nominal partner. - Where a minor, though having contributed to the capital of a firm, did not participate in the assignment which constituted the act of bankruptcy, nor take any part in any of the firm's transactions, and was not a partner as to creditors, it was held that he was not entitled to an exemption allowance out of the personal property of the estate. In re Floyd. (E. D. N. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 757, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 827.

Use of partnership name by individual. -Even though the state law does not permit the exemption to be claimed by partners from partnership property, still a bankrupt is entitled to the exemption out of the merchandise in a store conducted in the name of a partnership, but which is shown to have been in fact owned by him exclusively for some years prior to his bankruptcy. In re Meriwether, (W. D. Ark. 1901) 107 Fed. 102, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435; In re Carpenter, (5th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 558, 48 C. C. A. 545, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465.

Wearing apparel. — The state exemption laws with respect to wearing apparel have been recognized in the following cases: Sellers v. Bell, (5th Cir. 1899) 94 Fed. 801, 36 C. C. A. 502, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Vt. 1904) 129 Fed. 620, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236; In re Evans, (D. C. Del. 1907) 158 Fed. 153, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 752; In re Leech, (6th Cir. 1909) 171 Fed. 622, 96 C. C. A. 424, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599; In re Caswell, (D. C. R. I. 1901) 6 Am. Bankr. Rep.
 Smith, (W. D. Tex. 1899) 96 Fed. 832, 3 Am.

Jewelry. - It has been held that the words "all the wearing apparel," being without restriction or qualification, included a gold watch, a watch chain, a set of cuff links, two watch fobs, a gold ring, a gold ring with diamond setting, a gold ring with sapphire setting, a pearl scarf pin, a ruby scarf pin, and a set of shirt studs, of the aggregate value of $444.50. In re Evans, (D. C. Del. 1907) 158 Fed. 153, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 752. See also In re Smith, (W. D. Tex. 1899) 96 Fed. 832, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 140; In re Jones, (E. D. Wis. 1899) 97 Fed. 773, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259; In re Caswell, (D. C. R. I. 1901) 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 718.

But it has also been held that a watch is not "necessary wearing apparel." In re Turnbull, (D. C. Mass. 1901) 106 Fed. 667, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 549; In re Everleth, (D. C. Vt. 1904) 129 Fed. 620, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236.

"Regalia." - It has been held that neither a watch and chain, nor a sword and belt, constituting a part of the Masonic regalia, are exempt to a bankrupt as wearing apparel under the Vermont statute. In re Everleth, (D. C. Vt. 1904) 129 Fed. 620, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236.

But see In re Jones, (E. D. Wis. 1899) 97 Fed. 773, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259, wherein it was held that, under a state statute exempting from execution "all wearing apparel of the debtor," a bankrupt is entitled to claim as exempt a Masonic uniform, although he does not wear it as an ordinary and usual dress, but on special occasions only.

And a hat, although also a part of such regalia, has been held to be exempt. In re Everleth, (D. C. Vt. 1904) 129-Fed. 620, 12

Am. Bankr. Rep. 236.

Tools, implements of trade, etc. - The state exemption laws have been recognized in the following cases with respect to the allowance of exemptions in the case of tools, implements of trade, etc. In re Petersen, (N. D. Cal. 1899) 95 Fed. 417, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 630; In re Osborn, (W. D. N. Y. 1900) 104 Fed. 780, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111; In re Coller, (D. C. Mass. 1901) 111 Fed. 503, 7 Am. Bankr. Marshall, (4th Cir. 1905) 140 Fed. 710, 72 C. C. A. 103, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 486; In rc Conley, (D. C. Neb. 1907) 162 Fed. 806, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 200; In rc Trombly, (D. C. Vt. 1906) 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

A watch has been held to be exempt as one of the tools, implements, and fixtures necessary for carrying on a trade or business. In re Coller, (D. C. Mass. 1901) 111 Fed. 503, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 131.

But see In re Everleth, (D. C. Vt. 1904) 129 Fed. 620, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236, wherein it was held that a watch and chain were not exempt as a timepiece, constituting a part of the tools of his trade used by a barber, where among such tools there was also a clock.

A "candy store" and a "marble-top table" used by the bankrupt in his business of making candy have been held to be exempt as suitable tools necessary for sustaining life. In re Trombly, (D. C. Vt. 1906) 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

Canoe used by guide.—A bankrupt who is a professional guide for hunters and fishermen, and as such registered under the laws of the state, is entitled to the exemption of a canoe as a tool of his trade or occupation. In re Mullen, (D. C. Me. 1905) 140 Fed. 206, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 275.

But a rifle does not come within the exemption allowed to such a guide. In re Mullen, (D. C. Me. 1905) 140 Fed. 206, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 275.

A bankrupt who is an undertaker is entitled to hold as exempt such tools, instruments, and appliances as are found by the court to be necessary to the practice of his profession, and used by him therein. Steiner v. Marshall, (4th Cir. 1905) 140 Fed. 710,

SEC. 7. DUTIES OF BANKRUPTS. — a The bankrupt shall

(1) [Attend meetings and hearings.] attend the first meeting of his creditors, if directed by the court or a judge thereof to do so, and the hearing upon his application for a discharge, if filed; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

Attendance at meetings.—The bankrupt must, when so directed by the judge, attend the first creditors' meeting, and the hearing on his application for a discharge. In re Eagles, (E. D. N. Discretion as to ordering attendance. — The statute does not give to the bankrupt or his creditors the right, as a matter of law, to a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum to secure the bankrupt's presence and testimony at a first meeting of creditors, the issuance of such writ being discretionary. In re Thaw, (3d Cir. 1908) 166 Fed. 71, 91 C. C. A. 657, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 687.

Ordering attendance of bankrupt confined in state institution. — In In re Thaw, (3d Cir. 1908) 166 Fed. 71, 91 C. C. A. 657, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 687, it appears that a bankrupt, while in the custody of the proper state authorities as an insane person, instituted voluntary proceedings in bankruptcy in a federal court in another state, and that, in such bankruptcy proceeding, a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum was issued to obtain his presence and testimony at a first meeting of his creditors, and it was held that, no issue having been raised as to the bankrupt's sanity, an order quashing the writ of habeas corpus was a proper exercise of discretion.

(2) [Comply with orders.] comply with all lawful orders of the court; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

sistance, to trustee. — Up to the time of his discharge, the bankrupt can be compelled, by summary order of court, to give the receiver any information he may possess, or render him any assistance he can in the transfer of possession of property belonging to the bankrupt estate. In re Wiesel, (E. D. Pa. 1909) 173 Fed. 718, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 59.

(3) [Examine proofs of claims.] examine the correctness of all proofs of claims filed against his estate; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

Cross-reference: As to Proof of claims generally, see the several subdivisions of section 57.

(4) [Execute and deliver papers.] execute and deliver such papers as shall be ordered by the court; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

Books and papers tending to incriminate.—
It has been held that the books and papers taken from the possession of the bankrupt cannot be used as evidence against him. People v. Swarts, (Ill. 1902) 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 487. See generally the annotation under subdivision (9) of this section, infra, p. 524, and also under section 21a. infra, p. 589.

Order regulating use of books proper. — In Matter of Harris, (1911) 221 U. S. 274, 31 S. Ct. 557, it was held that an order requiring the bankrupt to deposit his books of account in the custody of the bankrupt, who is to afford the receiver free opportunity to inspect them, the receiver to use and permit them to be used only for the purpose of the civil administration of the bankrupt estate, and not for any criminal proceeding, is a proper exercise of the authority of the bankruptcy court, and does not compel the bankrupt to be a witness against himself in a criminal case in the constitutional sense, although the knowledge gained from the books may be used to procure other evidence for use against him in a criminal prosecution.

Waiver of privilege. — Where a bankrupt, on the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings, surrendered his books to the receiver without raising the question of privilege as to their use against him, it was held that so far as it was a proper use of the books by the trustee in bankruptcy to allow prosecuting authorities to use them, the bankrupt was chargeable with knowledge of that right, and his surrender of the books waived his privilege. In re Tracy, (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 177 Fed. 532, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 438.

A voluntary bankrupt cannot refuse to deliver the books of account kept by him in his business, and necessary to an investigation of his affairs, to his trustee, on the ground that matter contained therein might tend to criminate him. If the constitutional privilege extends to civil proceedings, the filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy operates both as a waiver of such privilege, in relation to the bankrupt's books, and as a transfer of the right of custody of the same to the court and its officers. In re Sapiro, (E. D. Wis. 1899) 92 Fed. 340, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 296.

- (5) [Execute transfers.] execute to his trustee transfers of all his property in foreign countries; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]
- (6) [Inform trustee of evasions of law.] immediately inform his trustee of any attempt, by his creditors or other persons, to evade the provisions of this Act, coming to his knowledge; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]
- (7) [Disclose false claims.] in case of any person having to his knowledge proved a false claim against his estate, disclose that fact immediately to his trustee; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

Bankrupt should object to proof of false claims.—The fact that a trustee has not been appointed will not relieve the bankrupt from the duty, nor deprive him of the right, of objecting to the allowance of any false or unjust claim against his estate, or of moving for its expunction. In re Ankeny, (N. D. Ia. 1900) 100 Fed. 614, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72. And see generally as to proof of claims, the several subdivisions of section 57 and the annotation thereunder.

(8) [File schedules.] prepare, make oath to, and file in court within ten days, unless further time is granted, after the adjudication, if an involuntary bankrupt, and with the petition if a voluntary bankrupt, a schedule of his property, showing the amount and kind of property, the location thereof, its money value in detail, and a list of his creditors, showing their residences, if known, if unknown, that fact to be stated, the amounts due each of them, the consideration thereof, the security held by them, if any, and a claim for such exemptions as he may be entitled to, all in triplicate, one copy of each for the clerk, one for the referee, and one for the trustee; and [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

Duty to schedule assets. - It is the duty of the bankrupt, in involuntary proceedings, to prepare, make oath to, and file in court, within ten days after his adjudication, unless further time has been granted therefor, a schedule of his property, showing the amount and kind of property, the location thereof, and its money value in detail. In cases of voluntary bankruptcy such a schedule must be filed with the petition in bankule must be filed with the petition in bank-ruptcy. Sellers v. Bell, (C. C. Good faith required. — A bankrupt is required to show the utmost good faith, and to make the fullest disclosures of his assets. In re Breitling, (7th Cir. 1904) 133 Fed. 146, 66 C. C. A. 212, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Every known asset must be scheduled. discharge in bankruptcy upon any other condition than the complete appropriation of every known asset legally available to creditors would be not only a glaring wrong to creditors, but contrary to every conception of a just system of bankruptcy. In re Baudouine, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 536, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 55.

An equitable interest in land must be scheduled. In re Gailey, (7th Cir. 1904) 127 Fed. 538, 62 C. C. A. 336, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539.

A vested interest, which the bankrupt has in the estate of another, must be scheduled. Woods v. Little, (3d Cir. 1905) 134 Fed. 229, 67 C. C. A. 157, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 742.

Commingled property. - Where the bankrupt, previous to the adjudication, had acted as administratrix of her husband's estate, and had mingled property of her own with the property of such estate, it is her duty, in the bankruptcy proceedings, to present a correct and intelligible statement of her affairs, showing clearly what property her husband left, what she added thereto, and the disposition made of each class of property, and thereupon to account for the property that should inure to the benefit of her creditors. In re Walther, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 95 Fed. 941, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 702.

Failure to schedule property cannot inure to bankrupt's benefit. — Where a bankrupt fails to schedule certain property, all knowledge of which he withholds from his trustee, he cannot assert title to such property after the estate has been closed, on the ground that the trustee has abandoned it. Jacksboro First Nat. Bank r. Lasater, (1905) 196 U. S. 115, 25 S. Ct. 206, 49 U. S. (L. ed.)

Advice of counsel as justifying omissions. -To justify the omission, by a bankrupt, of property from his schedule on the ground that he acted on the advice of counsel, it must be shown that he fully and fairly stated the facts to his counsel, and acted on his opinion on a matter of law only. Remmers v. Merchants' Laclede Nat. Bank, (8th Cir. 1909) 173 Fed. 484, 97 C. C. A. 490, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78.

Use as evidence. — The schedule cannot be used as evidence against the bankrupt in a criminal prosecution in the federal courts. Johnson v. U. S., (1st Cir. 1908) 163 Fed. 30, 89 C. C. A. 508, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 724; Cohen v. U. S., (4th Cir. 1909) 170 Fed. 715, 96 C. C. A. 35, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 333.

But it has been held that such schedules are admissible in evidence in a prosecution in a state court, under a state statute, against the bankrupt. Com. v. Ensign, (1909) 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 797, 40 Pa. Super. Ct. 157.

II. SCHEDULE OF CREDITORS AND LIABILITIES.

Duty to schedule creditors and liabilities. --The bankrupt must, under section 7a (8), file a list of his creditors, showing their residences, if known; and if such residence should be unknown, that fact must be stated. Such schedule must also contain the amount due to each creditor, the consideration thereof. and the security held by them, if any. In re Lipman, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 94 Fed. 353, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 46; Sellers v. Bell, (5th Cir. 1899) 94 Fed. 811, 36 C. C. A. 502, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Resler, (D. C. Minn. 1899) 95 Fed. 804, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602; In re Brumelkamp, (N. D. N. S. 56, affirmed 87 App. Div. 633, 84 N. Y. S. 1148; Westheimer v. Howard, (1905) 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 547, 47 Misc. 145, 93 N. Y. S. 518; Schiller v. Weinstein, (1905) 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183, 47 Misc. 622, 94 N. Y. S. 763; Haack v. Theise, (1906) 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699, 51 Misc. 3, 99 N. Y. S. 905; Custard v. Wigger. sen, (Wis. 1907) 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 337; Weindenfield v. Tillinghast, (N. Y. 1907) 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; Murphy v. Blumen-reich, (1908) 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 910, 123 App. Div. 645, 108 N. Y. S. 175; Matter of David, (1904) 44 Misc. 516, 90 N. Y. S. 85; Feldmark v. Weinstein, (1904) 45 Misc. 329, 90 N. Y. S. 478.

The purpose of requiring a disclosure of the amount and the consideration of the debt, and the security held by the creditor, is to give to the other creditors and to the trustee accurate information as to the condition of the estate and to enable them to discover preferred or fraudulent debts. See Birkett v. Columbia Bank, (1904) 195 U. S. 345, 25 S. Ct. 38, 49 U. S. (L. ed.) 231; Fifth Ave. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Goldberg, (1903) 22 Pa.

Super. Ct. 197.

The schedule of debts furnishes the basis for the notices which, under section 58a, are to be sent out to creditors; thus the bankrupt appears to be responsible for the correctness of the addresses of his creditors, and for their failure to receive notice in the event of a wrong address. Haack v. Theise, (1906) 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699, 51 Misc. 3, 99 N. Y. S. 905.

A debt barred by the statute of limitations may be omitted. In re Lipman, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 94 Fed. 353; In re Resler, (D. C. Minn.

Giving out list in advance of filing, improper. — The giving out of a list of creditors, by a bankrupt, to attorneys, before the filing of his schedule, is a practice to be severely condemned. In re Lloyd, (E. D. Wis. 1906) 148 Fed. 92, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 96.

The effect of improper scheduling, on the release of a bankrupt's debts by his discharge in bankruptcy, has been considered under sec-

Sufficiency of schedule as to name of creditor. - In the following cases slight alterations in the spelling of names, obviously due to clerical errors, have been held to invalidate the schedule. Marshall v. English-American L. & T. Co., (1907) 127 Ga. 376, 56 S. E. 449 (wherein the English-American Loan & Trust Co. was listed as "The English-American Trust Co."); Armstrong v. Sweeney, (1905) 73 Neb. 775, 103 N. W. 436, (wherein Swen Morrine was listed as "Swan Morise"); Liesum v. Kraus, (1901) 35 Misc. 376, 71 N. Y. S. 1022 (wherein George Liesum was listed 1. S. 1022 (wherein George Liesman"); Grosso v. Marx, (1904) 45 Misc. 500, 92 N. Y. S. 773 (wherein the firm of Jacob Ringle & Son was listed as "Jacob Ringler & Son," and Welwood Murray as "Murray and Walter Stewart");

Haack v. Theise, (1906) 51 Misc. 3, 99 N. Y. S. 905 (wherein James J. Haack was listed as "James Haack and wife").

Listing in name of actual creditor sufficient. -The listing of a debt in the name of the actual instead of that of the nominal creditor is, however, sufficient. It has been so held in a case in which a bank, the actual owner of a note containing the name of the cashier of the bank as payee, was scheduled as the creditor. Ross-Lewin v. Goold, (1904) 211 Ill. 384, 71 N. E. 1028. See also Longfield v. Minnesota Sav. Bank, (1905) 95 Minn. 54, 103 N. W. 706.

The name of the transferee of a note or a mortgage, rather than that of the payee or mortgagee, must be inserted in the schedule as the creditor, provided the debtor has knowledge of the transfer. Birkett v. Columbia Bank, (1904) 195 U. S. 345, 25 S. Ct. 38, 49 U.S. (L. ed.) 231, affirming (1903) 174 N. Y. 112, 66 N. E. 652; Fider v. Mannheim, (1899) 78 Minn. 309, 81 N. W. 2; Armstrong v. Sweeney, (1905) 73 Neb. 775, 103 N. W. 436; Broadway Trust Co. v. Manheim, (1905) 34 Civ. Pro. 310, 95 N. Y. S. 310, 47 Misc. 415, 95 N. Y. S. 93; Mueller v. Goerlitz, (1907) 53 Misc. 53, 103 N. Y. S. 1037.

But see Sellers v. Bell, (5th Cir. 1899) 94 Fed. 801, 36 C. C. A. 502, wherein it was held that a judgment was properly listed in the name of the original creditor, even though the debtor knew that the judgment had been sold.

The Christian name, as well as the surname, of the creditor, should appear in the schedule. In re Mackey, (N. D. N. Y. 1898) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 593.

Schedule of partnership debts. - If the bankrupt is a member of a firm and wishes to be released from his firm as well as from his individual debts, the names of the creditors of the firm should also be inserted in the schedule. In re Laughlin, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 96 Fed. 589; Loomis v. Wallblom, (1905) 94 Minn. 392, 102 N. W. 1114; New York Inst., etc., v. Crockett, (1907) 117 App. Div. 269, 102 N. Y. S. 412. See also the annotation under section 5a, supra, p. 501.

It has been held that the name of the surviving partner of a firm holding a judgment may be inserted as the creditor. Kaufman v. Schreier, (1905) 108 App. Div. 298, 95 N. Y.

8. 729.

Correct addresses must be given when possible. — The referee should require the addresses to be furnished, or satisfactory proof to be made that the same cannot be accertained after due search. In re Dvorak, (N. D. Ia. 1901) 107 Fed. 76, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 66. See also Schiller v. Weinstein, (1905) 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183, 47 Misc. 622, 94 N. Y. S. 763; Weidenfeld v. Tillinghast, (1907) 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531, 54 Misc. 90, 104 N. Y. S. 712.

Presumption as to receipt of notice incorrectly addressed. - There is no presumption, in the face of positive evidence to the contrary, that the postal authorities will deliver a letter addressed "Mulberry Street," to the person to whom it is addressed; though in the absence of such evidence there might possibly be a presumption to that effect. Cagliostro v. Indelle, (1907) 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 685, 53 Misc. 44, 102 N. Y. S. 918.

Use of abbreviations. - While the ordinary and common abbreviations of the names of states may be used in stating the addresses of creditors, it is not proper to abbreviate such names of cities, towns, and villages as are not in common use. In re Mackey, (N. D. N. Y. 1898) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 593.

Ditto marks should not be used in stating the creditors' addresses. In re Mackey, (N. D. N. Y. 1898) 1 Am Bankr. Rep. 593.

Sufficiency of schedule as to addresses. Ordinarily a statement that the residence of a particular creditor is unknown is sufficient. But if it appears that the residence was ascertainable by inquiry, the schedule becomes defective, as the presumption arises that the address was omitted for the purpose of evading the duty of giving notice to such creditor. Feldmark v. Weinstein, (1904) 45 Misc. 329, 90 N. Y. S. 478; Schiller v. Weinstein, (1905)

Thus it has been held that a schedule containing an erroneous address, particularly if the correct address can be ascertained, is inthe correct address can be ascertained, is insufficient. Marshall v. English-American L. & T. Co., (1907) 127 Ga. 376, 56 S. E. 449; Sutherland v. Lasher, (1903) 41 Misc. 249, 84 N. Y. S. 56, affirmed (1903) 87 App. Div. 633, 84 N. Y. S. 1148; Westheimer v. Howard, (1905) 47 Misc. 145, 93 N. Y. S. 518; Kauften v. Schreier (1908) 102 man v. Schreier, (1905) 108 App. Div. 298, 95 N. Y. S. 729; Matter of Quackenbush, (1907) 122 App. Div. 456, 106 N. Y. S. 773; Murphy v. Blumenreich, (1908) 123 App. Div. 645, 108 N. Y. S. 175.

But the mere fact that the bankrupt knew the creditor's address more than two years before the commencement of the proceeding has been held to be insufficient evidence that he knew the creditor's residence when he prepared the schedule. Matter of Mollner, (1902) 75 App. Div. 441, 78 N. Y. S. 281. If the residence inserted is indefinite, the schedule is usually defective. In re Brumel-kamp, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 95 Fed. 814.

The address of a creditor residing at No. 141 Mulberry street, New York city, is not sufficiently shown by a statement that it is "Mulberry street, New York city." Cagliostro v. Indelli, (1907) 53 Misc. 44, 102 N. Y. S. 918.

The words "residence, 135 Bway," are not a sufficient designation of any residence. Sutherland v. Lasher, (1903) 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 780, 41 Misc. 249, 84 N. Y. S. 56.

A statement that the creditor's address is "care of New York Clipper, New York city, is too indefinite. Haack v. Theise, (1906) 51 Misc. 3, 99 N. Y. S. 905.

It has been held, however, that the address of the creditor's attorney, who has informed the bankrupt that communications to the creditor may be so addressed, is sufficient. Matter of David, (1904) 44 Misc. 516, 90 N. Y. S. 85; Vaughn v. Irwin, (1905) 49 Misc. 611, 96 N. Y. S. 742.

In Weidenfeld v. Tillinghast, (1907) 54 Misc. 90, 104 N. Y. S. 712, 104 N. Y. S. 902, it was doubted whether the word "residence" includes the creditor's business address.

also Grosso v. Marx, (1904) 45 Misc. 500, 92 N. Y. S. 773.

It has been held, however, that this view is too narrow, especially as a large percentage of creditors is usually composed of firms and corporations. See Sutherland v. Lasher, (1903). 41 Misc. 249, 84 N. Y. S. 56.
Sufficiency of description of debts.—A schedule which contains merely the names and addresses of the creditors is insufficient. In re Schiller, (W. D. Va. 1899) 96 Fed. 400.

But as the chief purpose of the statute is that the creditors shall receive notice of the proceedings, the strict accuracy which is required in the statement of the names and addresses is relaxed in the description of the debt, though it has been held that the amount and consideration must be stated correctly. Steele v. Thalheimer, (1905) 74 Ark. 516, 86 S. W. 305; Armstrong v. Sweeney, (1905) 73 Neb. 775, 103 N. W. 436; Matter of David, (1904) 44 Misc. 518, 90 N. Y. S. 85; Bernheim v. Bloch, (1904) 45 Misc. 581, 91 N. Y. S. 40; Delta County Bank v. McGranahan, (1905) 37 Wash. 307, 79 Pac. 796.

Where the bankrupt and his wife were joint obligors in a mortgage and bond, it was held that a statement in the schedule that the mortgage and bond had been given by the wife, omitting any reference to the indebtedness of the husband, was misleading. Fifth Ave. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Goldberg, (1903) 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 197.

III. FORM, VERIFICATION, AND AMENDMENT.

Form. - The official forms, prescribed by the Supreme Court, should be observed and used in the preparation of the schedules, with such alterations as may be necessary to suit the circumstances of any particular case.

Mahoney v. Ward, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 100

Fed. 278, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770; Burke v.

Verification: — The schedule should be verified. But the oaths to the schedules, attached to a voluntary petition, need not be signed by the bankrupt where the petition itself is properly verified by him. Matter of McConnell, (W. D. N. Y. 1904) 11 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 418.

Amendment of schedules. — The court may, under general order in bankruptcy No. 11, allow the amendment of schedules on the application of the petitioner. In re Brumel-kamp, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 95 Fed. 814, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 318: In re Ankeny, (N. D. Ia. 1900) 100 Fed. 614, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72; In re Morgan, (W. D. Va. 1900) 105 Fed. 901, 5 Am. Bankr. Curtis, (5th Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 644, 98 C. C. A. 398, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 504.

39a (2), infra, p. 664.

The right of a bankrupt to amend his schedule to supply an omission, through mis-take, to claim his exemptions is a valuable legal right; and the action of the District Court in refusing such an amendment may be reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals on a petition to revise. Goodman v. Curtis, (5th Cir. 1909) 174 Fed. 644, 98 C. C. A. 398, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 504.

On reopening of estate. - The court may permit the reopening of an estate for the purpose of setting out additional property in the schedules. In re Shaffer, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 982, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728; In re McKee, (E. D. N. Y. 1908) 165 Fed.

269, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306.

But after a discharge, it is too late for the bankrupt to come in and include creditors not named by him in his schedules, or brought in and made parties prior to the granting of the discharge. In re Spicer, (W. D. N. Y. 1906) 145 Fed. 431, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 802.

(9) [Submit to examination.] when present at the first meeting of his creditors, and at such other times as the court shall order, submit to an examination concerning the conducting of his business, the cause of his bankruptev. his dealings with his creditors and other persons, the amount, kind, and whereabouts of his property, and, in addition, all matters which may affect the administration and settlement of his estate; but no testimony given by him shall be offered in evidence against him in any criminal proceeding.

Provided, however, That he shall not be required to attend a meeting of his creditors, or at or for an examination at a place more than one hundred and fifty miles distant from his home or principal place of business, or to examine claims except when presented to him, unless ordered by the court, or a judge thereof, for cause shown, and the bankrupt shall be paid his actual expenses from the estate when examined or required to attend at any place other than the city, town, or village of his residence. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 548.]

Duty to submit to examination. - The bankrupt must, when present at a first meeting of his creditors, and at such other times as the court shall order, submit to an examination for the purposes specified in section 7a (9). Examination to establish objection to discharge. - A bankrupt may be ordered before the referee for examination whenever reasonably required by creditors for the purpose of establishing their objections to his discharge. In re Price, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 91 Fed. 635, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419; In re Mellen, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 326, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226; In re Peters, (D. C. Mass. 1898) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 248.

Previous examination immaterial. - The fact that the bankrupt attended and was examined on the return of the order to show cause why his discharge should not be granted will not excuse him from undergoing a further examination, on the application of objecting creditors, if the referee shall deem it reasonable and necessary. In re Mellen, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 32, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226. See also In re McCormick, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 566, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340; In re Bryant, (M. D. Pa. 1911) 188

The fact that an adjournment at an examination was without day does not prevent the granting of an application for a further examination. In re Bryant, (M. D. Pa. 1911) 188 Fed. 530.

Testimony forms part of record. - Testimony of a bankrupt, taken as authorized by the referee, is a part of the record; and creditors generally are entitled to access thereto, while it remains in the custody of the referee. In re Samuelsohn, (W. D. N. Y. 1909) 174
Fed. 911, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528.

Expense. - The examination should be at the expense of the creditors, as respects any clerical or stenographic aid in taking notes. In re Price, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 91 Fed. 635,

The bankrupt is not entitled to reimbursement for his expenses in returning for examination, where he has voluntarily removed his residence from the district after bankruptcy. In re Groves, (N. D. Ohio 1901) 6

Am. Bankr. Rep. 732.

Application for examination. - Any person who shows that he is a creditor of the bankrupt, either by having been named as a creditor in the bankrupt's schedule or by other evidence satisfactory to the referee, is enti-tled to an order for the examination of the bankrupt, although he has not formally proved his claim. 188 Fed. 530.

Notice of examination. - Creditors are entitled to at least ten days' notice by mail, to their respective addresses as the same appear in the list of creditors, of all examinations of the bankrupt. See section 58a (1).

Time of examination - Before or after adjudication. - The authorities are not agreed as to whether the bankrupt may be compelled to submit to an examination prior to his adjudication. The weight of authority, however, is to the effect that there cannot be a compulsory examination until the debtor has been adjudged to be a bankrupt. In re Crenshaw, (S. D. Ala. 1907) 155 Fed. 271, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266 (explaining In re Fixen, (S. D. Cal. 1899) 96 Fed. 748); In re Davidson, (D. C. Mass. 1907) 158 Fed. 678, 19 Am. Bankr. Where an alleged bankrupt answered, denying that he had committed an act of bankruptcy, and the issues so raised were referred to the referee for examination and report, but there had been no adjudication, it was held that the estate was not in process does not authorize a reference for the examination of an alleged bankrupt before his adjudication, and before the time has arrived when he is required to answer the petition. Skubinsky v. Bodek, (3d Cir. 1909) 172 Fed. 332, 19 Ann. Cas. 1035, 97 C. C. A. 116, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689.

But it has also been held that the bankrupt may be ordered to submit to an examination prior to his adjudication. In re Price, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 91 Fed. 635; In re Fixen, (S. D. Cal. 1899) 96 Fed. 748, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 822; In re Knopf, (D. C. S. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 245, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 432; In re Fellerman, (S. D. N. Y. 1906) 149 Fed. 244,

17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 785.
Thus in In re Fleischer, (S. D. N. Y. 1907) 151 Fed. 81, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194, the court said: "The desirability and importance of promptly conducting an investigation into the affairs of any person petitioned into the bankruptcy court has been too often shown to be open to doubt. To wait until adjudication to ascertain from the bankrupt's own lips the situs of his property and his own explanations of the situation in which the creditors find themselves, is in many cases giving to those guilty of fraud just the necessary time to permit the fraud to be consummated and the fruits thereof secured. In my opinion it is not too much to say that a skilful and vigorous use of early examinations of involuntary bankrupts is the one thing which enables creditors to prevent this statute being easily turned into a shield for dishonesty and a potent aid to fraud.

And in U. S. v. Liberman, (E. D. N. Y. 1910) 176 Fed. 161, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 734, it was said that the reason for allowing an examination prior to adjudication is the same as the reason for allowing an examination subsequent to adjudication, and prior to the

In In re Price, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 91 Fed. 635, Brown, J., said: "I do not find anything in the Bankrupt Act or the rules which limits the examination of the bankrupt to any particular time or occasion."

Where issue of sanity is raised. - The alleged bankrupt cannot be required to submit himself to an examination, before trial, as to his sanity; and an application for such order will be denied. In re Ward, (D. C. N. J. 1908) 161 Fed. 755, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 482.

Examination before appointment of trustee. — It is not within the contemplation of the law, upon a motion to discover assets and to consider special questions, that an exhaustive examination of all the issues of the bankruptcy be covered before the appointment of a trustee. In re Stark, (E. D. N. Y. 1907) 155 Fed. 694, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 467.

Examination prior to creditors' meeting. — In In re Franklin Syndicate, (E. D. N. Y. 1900) 101 Fed. 402, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244, the bankrupt was ordered to appear before the referee for examination pending the first meeting of his creditors, but such examination was limited solely to the purpose of preparing schedules.

Examination after discharge. — A creditor or trustee should have the right, even after the discharge, to examine the bankrupt to ascertain whether he has concealed, since his discharge, any property from his trustee, and this right should continue for a year, or during the period within which the discharge could be revoked. In re Peters, (D. C. Mass. 1898) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 248.

After an estate has been closed, a creditor who has failed to prove his claim has no standing on the reopening of the proceedings In re to examine the bankrupt therein. Shaffer, (E. D. N. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 982, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728.

Scope of examination. - Inquiry as to transactions occurring prior to four months period. — On the examination of a bankrupt by his creditors for the purpose of determining the condition of his estate and the disposition he has made of his property, the inquiry is not limited to facts and transactions occurring within four months prior to the bankruptcy, but may be directed to matters anterior to that time, if the circumstances in question will throw any light upon the facts or issues pertinent to the proceedings. In re Brundage, (N. D. Ia. 1900) 100 Fed. 613, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 47.

But where the bankrupt, more than a year before the enactment of the bankruptcy law. had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors under a state law, it is not material or proper, in his examination in the bankruptcy proceedings, to inquire into the circumstances under which the assignment was made, nor to require the assignee to produce the books and papers turned over to him at the time, unless a foundation is first laid for the belief that property of the bankrupt was withheld by him at the time of such assignment, and was still held as his at the time of the enactment of the bankruptcy law. In re Hayden, (S. D. Fla. 1899) 96 Fed. 199, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 670.

Inquiry as to combination of bankrupt's safe. - The president and treasurer of a bankrupt corporation, on an examination before the referee, may properly be required to make known to the trustee the combina-tion of a safe owned by the corporation and alleged to contain assets. In re Hooks Smelting Co., (E. D. Pa. 1905) 138 Fed.

954, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83.

Inquiry as to statements made by bankrupt. - A question as to whether a bankrupt did not make a certain statement in writing as to his assets, within a few months prior to his bankruptcy, upon which he obtained prop-erty on credit from certain of his creditors, is material and proper to be asked him on his examination. In re Jacobs, (W. D. Ps. 1907) 154 Fed. 988, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728. Duty to answer truthfully.—The duty of submitting to an examination involves the duty of answering truthfully, and as intelligently and connectedly and fully as the bankrupt's mental equipment will permit; and the failure to do so is a contempt of court. In re Fellerman, (S. D. N. Y. 1906) 149 Fed. 244, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 785.

Sec. 7 a (9).

Incriminating questions. - The bankrunt cannot be compelled to answer questions, over his claim of privilege, where the answer would tend to criminate him; the privilege available in such case, however, is that provided for by the Federal Constitution, as section 7a (9) of the Bankruptcy Act is insuffi eient for this purpose. The filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptey does not waive the right to claim the constitutional privilege of refusing to answer an incriminating question. U. S. c. Gold-stein, (W. D. Va. 1904) 132 Fed. 789, 12 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 755.

Necessity of foundation for claim of privilege. - It is always a difficult thing to say at just what point a bankrupt who is compelled to answer, and who claims his privilege, should be allowed the exercise of his own unquestioned judgment of the danger of self-incrimination. A priori no question can be said to be outside of the range of proof of some crime, and to allow him to stand mute in all cases is to give him the privilege of keeping silent as to all his affairs, in the interest of merely pedantic and verbal integrity of principle. While in all cases he must be given the benefit of all doubts, there must be something which gives rise to a probability of damage upon which a doubt may be based. In re Bendheim, (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 180 Fed. 918.

If the court is convinced that the answer to the question cannot by any possibility criminate him, and especially if the witness does not swear that he believes that it would. it is the duty of the court to compel him to answer. In re Levin, (S. D. N. Y. 1904) 131 Fed. 388, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382.

Thus where an officer of a bankrupt corporation is under indictment in a state court for embezzlement of funds of the corporation, he cannot be required, on his examination before the referee, over his claim of privilege, to state whether or not he appropriated certain money of the corporation to his own use; but he may be required to state whether or not he has in his possession or under his control any property belonging to the bankrupt estate. In re Hooks Smelting Co., (E. D. Pa. 1905) 138 Fed. 954, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83.

Production of books and papers.—The bankrupt will not be required to develop the whereabouts of papers which might be used against him in a criminal proceeding. In re Franklin Syndicate, (E. D. N. Y. 1900) 114 Fed. 205, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 511. And see the annotation under subdivision (4) of this section, supra, p. 520.

But a bankrupt is not permitted to withhold his books from his trustee or receiver on his mere assertion that they contain evidence which would tend to incriminate him; but he must produce them, so that the question may be determined by the court or referee; and if it appears that they do contain such evidence, the court may make such order as will protect the bankrupt from its use in any criminal case, and at the same time give the trustee the use of the books in the administration of the estate. In re Harris, (S. D. N. Y. 1908) 164 Fed. 292, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 911.

Subsequent use of evidence — Admissibility of evidence in subsequent proceedings. — The testimony of the bankrupt, so far as relevant, may be admitted in subsequent proceedings, where the person who takes the notes of the bankrupt's examination testifies that they were truly and correctly taken. In re Bard, (S. D. N. Y. 1901) 108 Fed. 208, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 810. See also U. S. v. Simon, (W. D. Wash. 1906) 146 Fed. 89, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41.

The words "in any criminal proceeding," used in section 7a (9), are limited to providing immunity to the bankrupt from the use of his evidence only in such criminal proceedings as arise out of the conduct of his business or the disposition of his property, etc.; and these words do not protect the bankrupt from prosecution for false swearing in giving his evidence. Edelstein v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1906) 149 Fed. 636, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 649; Wechsler v. U. S., (2d Cir. 1907) 158 Fed. 579, 86 C. C. A. 37, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; U. S. v. Brod, (N. D. Ga. 1910) 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 740.

But see U. S. v. Simon, (W. D. Wash. 1906) 146 Fed. 89, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41, wherein it appears that the bankrupt was indicted for perjury committed in giving testimony under oath before a referee in support of contested claims, and, in sustaining a demurrer to the indictment, the court said that the statute—section 7a (9)—was an effective obstacle to the conviction of the defendant.

Section 7a (9) does not exempt a bankrupt from prosecution for an offense growing out of a transaction concerning which a bankrupt has testified before the referee in bankruptcy. Burrell v. Montana, (1904) 194 U. S. 572, 24 S. Ct. 787, 48 U. S. (L. ed.) 1122, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 132, affirming (1902) 27 Mont. 282, 70 Pac. 982; Edelstein v. U. S., (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1906) 149 Fed. 636, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 649.

Sec. 8. Death or Insanity of Bankrupts.—a [Not to abate proceedings.] The death or insanity of a bankrupt shall not abate the proceedings, but the same shall be conducted and concluded in the same manner, so far as possible, as though he had not died or become insane; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 549.]

Death or insanity does not abate proceedings.—If the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court in a given case has once rightfully attached, it cannot be defeated by the subsequent death or insanity of the alleged bankrupt. In re Kehler, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1908) 159 Fed. 55, reversing (W. D. N. Y.

1907) 153 Fed. 235, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596. And see the annotation to this effect under section 4b.

Continuance of proceedings mandatory.— When the proceedings are commenced, the further continuance thereof after the death of the bankrupt is mandatory; it is not left to the discretion of the court. Shute v. Patterson, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1906) 147 Fed. 509,

17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 99.

Personal representatives brought in.— Where an alleged voluntary bankrupt died after the filing of the petition, but before the service of process, his heirs and personal representatives should be brought in and made parties to the proceedings before adjudication. Shute v. Patterson, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1906) 147 Fed. 509, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 99.

Insanity does not bar discharge. - The insanity of a bankrupt, which has prevented his examination by creditors, and still continues, is not a bar to his discharge. In re Miller, (E. D. Pa. 1904) 133 Fed. 1017, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345.

Dissolution of corporation as affecting bankruptcy proceedings. — Section 8 of the Bankruptcy Act, relating to the death or insanity of a bankrupt, is by analogy applicable to a corporation which seeks by a dissolution to defeat proceedings in bankruptcy; and in such case, the proceedings do not abate. Scheuer v. Smith, etc., Book, etc., Co., (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1901) 112 Fed. 407, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 384. See also White Mountain Paper Co. v. Morse, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1904) 127 Fed. 643, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 633. It was the intention of Congress, and the public policy embodied in the bankruptcy law, to divide the estate of a bankrupt between him, and his wife and children on the one hand, and his creditors on the other hand, as the laws of the state of his domicile authorized its division under like circumstances. In re McKenzie, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1905) 142 Fed. 383, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 679.

But, under a Vermont statute, it has been held that a bankrupt who died after the title to his real estate had vested in his trustee by the operation of the bankruptcy law, but before it had been disposed of, remained seized of the same until his death for the purposes of inheritance; and that the widow of such bankrupt was entitled to have her dower therein set apart to her. Allowance for support of widow and family of deceased bankrupt. — Where the state court of probate may allow from the estate of a deceased person, in process of settlement before such court, such amount as it may judge necessary for the support of the widow or family during the settlement of the estate, the federal District Court, sitting as a court of bankruptcy in such state, on the death of the bankrupt during the pendency of proceedings, is authorized to make a reasonable

b [Detention for examination.] The judge may, at any time after the filing of a petition by or against a person, and before the expiration of one month after the qualification of the trustee, upon satisfactory proof by the affidavits of at least two persons that such bankrupt is about to leave the district in which he resides or has his principal place of business to avoid examination, and that his departure will defeat the proceedings in bankruptcy, issue a warrant to the marshal, directing him to bring such bankrupt forthwith before the court for examination. If upon hearing the evidence of the parties it shall appear to the court or a judge thereof that the allegations are true and that it is necessary, he shall order such marshal to keep such bankrupt in custody not exceeding ten days, but not imprison him, until he shall be examined and released or give bail conditioned for his appearance for examination, from time to time, not exceeding in all ten days, as required by the court, and for his obedience to all lawful orders made in reference thereto. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 549.]

Extradition of bankrupts similar to extradition of other indicted persons. — Section 10 clearly does not deal with or concern the jurisdiction or power of the court in which the bankruptcy case is pending to issue a warrant for the apprehension of the bankrupt, but only confers power on a court, other than the one issuing the warrant, to extradite the bankrupt, just as a person under indictment in one district may be extradited from another district in which he is found, under the statute upon that subject. In re Hassenbusch, (C. C. # I. IN GENERAL.

Who may grant stays. - It has been held that, under general order in bankruptcy No. 12 (3), a referee has no power to grant an injunction staying a proceeding in a state court. In re Siebert, (D. C. N. J. 1904) 133 Fed. 781, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 348; In re Berkowitz, (E. D. Pa. 1906) 143 Fed. 598, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 251. See also In re Steuer, (D. C. Mass. 1900) 104 Fed. 976, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 209.

Voluntary and involuntary bankruptcy included. - Section 11 applies not only to involuntary cases, but also to voluntary proceedings. In re Geister, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 97 Fed. 322, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 228.

Refusal of state court to stay proceeding not res judicata. — The fact that a creditor of a bankrupt applied to a state court for a stay of proceedings in a pending suit against the bankrupt, and that his application was denied, does not affect the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy to stay such proceedings on the application of the same creditor. New River Coal Land Co. v. Ruffner, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 881, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474.

II. DISCRETION AS TO GRANTING STAYS.

Stay discretionary. - Whether or not a stay shall be granted, under section 11a, is to a large extent within the sound judicial discretion of the court, to be exercised according as the best interests of the estate shall require. Southern L. & T. Co. v. Benbow, (W. D. N. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 514, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Lesser, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1900) 99 Fed. 913, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 758; In re Ennis, (S. D. N. Y. 1909) 171 Fed. 755, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 679; In re Sullivan, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 30; In re Globe Cycle Works, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 447.

A District Court, as a court of bankruptcy, has exclusive power to determine whether a suit pending in a state court should be stayed or not, and the exercise of this power rests on the discretion of the judge, which will not be reviewed by an appellate court unless it appears to have been abused. New River Coal Land Co. v. Ruffner, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1908) 165 Fed. 881, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474.

The injunction, after adjudication, is always discretionary, and providing the cause of action is one dischargeable in bankruptcy, should usually be granted, (1) if the bankrupt is threatened with arrest or will be needlessly harassed, (2) if the suit is not yet in judgment, and (3) even after judgment if (a) the rights of the general credit-ors not parties to the suit will be jeopard-ized by further proceedings in the state court, or (b) the judgment is founded on a transaction which is an act of bankruptcy or a fraud on creditors or the law; but in the absence of either or both of the latter elements (a or b) it should never be granted after the judgment has ripened into an execution sale, provided the state court has, or can be given, jurisdiction of all parties interested in the distribution, including the general creditors represented by the trustee in bankruptcy. Southern L. & T. Co. v. Benbow, (W. D. N. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 514, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Globe Cycle Works, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 447.

But the discretion as to the granting of a stay cannot be exercised unless the suit to be stayed is founded on a claim from which a discharge would be a release. In re Sullivan, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 30.

Interest of majority considered. — A court of bankruptcy, on the filing of a petition against a corporation by a small minority of its creditors, who are hostile to the plans of the majority, will not enjoin a sale of the corporation's property by order of a court of equity, which acquired prior jurisdiction by the appointment of receivers, where a large majority of the creditors desire such a sale, and it does not appear that it will be to the detriment of the minority or jeopardize their rights. In re Edward Ellsworth Co., (W. D. N. Y. 1909) 173 Fed. 699, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 284.

Consideration of comity. — Where a suit to establish a lien under a state statute, against property of a corporation, was pending before the Supreme Court of the state at the time of an adjudication in bankruptcy against the corporation, reasonable considerations of comity require, or at least authorize, the bankruptcy court to leave the question of the validity of the asserted lien to the determination of the state court, which is the appropriate tribunal to construe its statutes, and to direct the trustee to go there and present his case; the manner of carrying into effect the judgment of the state court, in case it upholds the lien, being a matter which may be determined after such judgment is rendered. In re New England Breeders' Club, (D. C. N. H. 1910) 175 Fed. 501. See also În re E. A. Kinsey Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1911) 184 Fed. 694.

III. STAY AS DEPENDENT ON DISCHARGE-ABILITY OF DEBT.

Determination of whether debt will be released. — The bankruptcy court has exclusive jurisdiction to determine, for the purpose of an application for an order staying proceedings in a state court, whether or not the claim upon which such proceedings are founded is one provable in bankruptcy, and which will be released by a discharge, and its determination is conclusive until reversed. Wagner v. U. S., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1900) 104
Fed. 133, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596; Knott v.
Putnam, (D. C. Vt. 1901) 107 Fed. 907, 6
Am. Bankr. Rep. 80; New River Coal Land Co. v. Ruffner, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1908) 165

Fed. 881, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474.

A determination by a state court in an action against a bankrupt that the debt sued on was created by the fraud of the defendant while acting in a fiduciary capacity, and the awarding of an execution against his body under the state statute, are not conclusive upon the court of bankruptcy, on a petition for an injunction to restrain the enforcement of such execution, that the debt is one from which the bankrupt will not be released by a discharge; but that question is to be deter-mined by the court of bankruptcy for itself under the federal laws and decisions. Knott v. Putnam, (D. C. Vt. 1901) 107 Fed. 907, 6

Am. Bankr. Rep. 80.

Stay of actions on dischargeable debts. -Upon proper application being made therefor, under section 11a, the court may stay any suit which is founded upon a claim from which a discharge would release the bankrupt, and which was pending at the time the petition in bankruptey was filed. In re Kletchka, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 92 Fed. 901; Southern L. & T. Co. v. Benbow, (W. D. N. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 514, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Geister, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 97 Fed. 322, 3 Am. Bankr. The word "suit," in section 11, means all steps or proceedings born of or following the judgment therein. In re Grist, (N. D. N. Y.

1898) 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 89.

No matter what the character of the suit, if the claim asserted be such as a discharge in bankruptcy would operate as a release therefrom, the bankrupt court is empowered to stay its prosecution, in furtherance of the policy of the Act authorizing the bank-ruptcy court to administer and distribute the insolvent estate. In re Hymes Buggy, etc., Co., (W. D. Mo. 1904) 130 Fed. 977, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477.

Where proceedings supplementary to execution against the bankrupt, in a state court, begun within four months before the commencement of proceedings in bankruptcy, are pending at the time of the adjudication therein, the court of bankruptcy, by injunction. will stay all further proceedings in the action in the state court. In re Kletchka, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 92 Fed. 901.

Action for breach of promise to marry .-A plaintiff may be enjoined from proceeding in the state courts for the enforcement of a judgment in an action for breach of promise to marry. In re McCauley, (E. D. N. Y. 1900) 101 Fed. 223, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122.

Contempt proceedings. - It is the duty of a court of bankruptcy to stay contempt proceedings against a bankrupt, in a civil suit against him in a state court on a debt or claim from which his discharge would be a release, for twelve months, or until his right to a discharge has been determined. In re Adler, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1906) 144 Fed. 659, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 414.

A proceeding under a municipal ordinance for the removal of a fireman who has been adjudged a bankrupt, for the nonpayment of a dischargeable debt, will be enjoined until the expiration of twelve months from the date of the adjudication, or until the question of the bankrupt's discharge shall be determined. In re Hicks, (N. D. N. Y. 1905) 133 Fed. 739, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 654.

Action begun after institution of bankruptcy proceedings. - A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to stay the prosecution of an action against the bankrupt in a state court, on a debt from which his discharge would be a release, pending the determination of the question of his discharge, though the action was begun after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In re Basch, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 761, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 235.

Stay of actions on nondischargeable debts.

-The court, under section 11a, has no authority to stay an action pending against the bankrupt, which is founded upon a claim from which a discharge in bankruptcy would not be a release. Metcalf v. As to what debts are not released by a discharge in bankruptcy, see the annotation under the several subdivisions of section 17a,

infra, p. 570.

Action on nonprovable claims. — Section 11 only authorizes the restraining of suits founded on claims from which a discharge will be a release, and therefore the Bankruptcy Court has no control over a suit on a nonprovable claim. In re New York Tunnel Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1908) 159 Fed. 688, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25. And see to the same effect In re Nowell, (D. C. Mass. 1900) 99 Fed. 931, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 837; In re Smith, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 67.

As to what are provable claims, see the several subdivisions of section 63.

Action based on bankrupt's fraud.—A court of bankruptcy is without jurisdiction to enjoin proceedings in a state court in an action based on the fraud of the bankrupt, as such action can in no manner affect the proceedings in bankruptcy, nor can the bankrupt's discharge constitute a defense thereto. In re Wollock, (N. D. Ill. 1903) 120 Fed. 516, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 685; Mackel v. Rochester, (D. C. Mont. 1905) 135 Fed. 904, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 429; In re Lawrence, (N. D. Ala. 1908) 163 Fed. 131, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 698.

Action against surety for bankrupt. — A court of bankruptcy is without jurisdiction to enjoin the plaintiffs, in suits against the bankrupt in the state courts, from collecting their judgments from the surety on the bankrupt's bail bond. Jaquith c. Rowley, (1903) 188 U. S. 620, 23 S. Ct. 369, 47 U. S. (L. ed.) 620. 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 525; In rc Eastern Commission, etc., Co., (D. C. Mass. 1904) 129 Fed. 847, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305; In rc Mercedes Import Co., (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1908) 166 Fed. 427, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 591.

Thus it has been held that a pending action against bankrupts on a dischargeable debt, in which they were arrested and had given bail more than four months prior to their bankruptcy, may be permitted by the court of bankruptcy to proceed to judgment for the purpose of enabling the plaintiff therein to enforce his demand against the surety in the undertaking. In re Ennis, (S. D. N. Y. 1909) 171 Fed. 755, 22 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 679.

Diminution of estate immaterial. — That a suit brought against the bankrupt in a state court may result in the diminution of the estate applicable in bankruptcy to the payment of his debts, is not a conclusive reason for restraining the prosecution of that suit, when the personal liberty of the bankrupt is not threatened, and when the judgment sought for is not to be enforced against him, but against some one else. In re Franklin, (D. C. Mass. 1901) 106 Fed. 666, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285. See also In re Horton, (8th Cir. 1900) 102 Fed. 986, 43 C. C. A. 87.

Action to recover fine for contempt.—A court of bankruptcy will not stay proceedings against the bankrupt for the enforcement of a fine for contempt imposed by a state court. In re Hall, (S. D. N. Y. 1909) 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 498, following In re Koronsky, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1909) 170 Fed. 719, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 851.

IV. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS ON VALID LIENS. Stay allowed. - It has been held that a District Court of the United States, in which proceedings in bankruptcy are pending, and which is in the actual possession of property conceded to belong to the bankrupt, has jurisdiction to determine the amount and order of priority of liens thereon and to liquidate such liens, to the end that the property may be sold free of incumbrances, and in aid thereof to enjoin the lienholders from prosecuting the foreclosure of their liens in a suit brought in a state court before the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings, but within four months thereof; and this though the lienholders object, and it is not contended that their liens are preferential or fraudulent or invalid. In re Pittelkow, (E. D. Wis. 1899) 92 Fed. 901, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; In re Vastbinder, (M. D. Pa. 1904) 132 Fed. 718, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148; In re Baughman, (M. D. Pa. 1905) 138 Fed. 742, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 23; In re Dana, (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1909) 167 Fed. 529, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Stay denied. — As a general rule, however, proceedings for the enforcement of a valid lien will not be stayed; and where no good reason is shown to warrant the interference of the court of bankruptcy, an application for such a stay will be denied. In re Holloway, (D. C. Ky. 1899) 93 Fed. 638, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659; Heath v. Shaffer, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 93 Fed. 647, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98; In re Kimball, (W. D. Rep. 52; Reed v. Equitable Trust Co., (1902) 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242, 115 Ga. 780, 42 S. E. 102. And see the cases cited infra, under subdivision V. Where State Court Has Complete Jurisdiction.

Thus where a mortgagee has obtained a judgment for foreclosure and sale in a state court before the institution of proceedings in bankruptcy against the mortgagor, and the court of bankruptcy is satisfied that the mortgaged property will not sell for enough to pay the mortgage debt, whether sold under authority of the state court or by the trustee in bankruptcy, and that the mortgagee has no intention to delay the sale unreasonably or prevent the property bringing a fair price, proceedings in the state court will not be stayed, nor will the bankruptcy court take control of the property for the purpose of a sale by the trustee. In re Hollowsy, (D. C. Ky. 1899) 93 Fed. 638, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659. See also Heatli v. Shaffer, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 93 Fed. 647, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98; In re McKane, (E. D. N. Y. 1907) 152 Fed. 733, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594.

So, also, it has been held that a court of bankruptcy has no jurisdiction to enjoin the sale of property on a judgment rendered in a state court, enforcing mortgage liens of a date long prior to four months preceding the filing of the petition or adjudication of the mortgagor as a bankrupt. Sample v. Beasley, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1908) 158 Fed. 607, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 164; In re McKane, (E. D. N. Y. 1907), 158 Fed. 647, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594; In re Lattimer, (E. D. But, where the facts warrant it, the trustee will be permitted, or directed, to intervene in a foreclosure suit in the state court. Heath v. Shaffer, (N. D. Ia. 1899) 93 Fed. 647, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98; In re Porter, (D. C. Ky. 1901) 109 Fed. 111, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259.

The reason why the bankruptcy court will refrain from interfering with proceedings in a state court and anticipate its judgment, is the obligation of the comity necessary to be observed to avoid conflict between the state and federal courts; but this reason would be wanting if the other court waived its priority of right to possession. In re E. A. Kinsey Co., (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1911) 184 Fed. 694.

Considering the peculiar character of our government, and keeping in view the forbearance which courts of co-ordinate jurisdiction exercise towards each other, it follows that the court which first obtains rightful jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a controversy must be permitted to proceed therein to final judgment. The federal courts will not interfere with the administration of affairs lawfully in the custody and jurisdiction of a state court, nor will they permit the courts of the states to interfere concerning litigation rightfully submitted to the decision of the courts of the United States. The Bankrupt Act does not in the least modify this rule, but with unusual carefulness guards it in all of its detail, provided the suit pending in the state court was in-stituted more than four months before the District Court of the United States had adjudicated the bankruptcy of the party entitled to. or interested in, the subject-matter of such controversy. Pickens v. Dent, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1901) 106 Fed. 653, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 644; In re Rohrer, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1910) 177 Fed. 381, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52.

Mere interest of trustee does not oust jurisdiction of state court.—The mere fact that a trustee in bankruptcy may be interested in the result of litigation which is pending between third parties in a state court does not entitle him to have the proceedings in such action stayed, as between such third parties, and to have the controversy transferred for adjudication to the bankrupt court. Suit to set aside fraudulent deed. — A suit to enjoin the further prosecution in a state court of a long pending suit by a judgment creditor to have a deed set aside as fraudulent, and the property described therein sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of the judgment and the satisfaction of the liens existing against the property, is not within the jurisdiction of a court of bankruptey, especially where instituted by the bankrupte himself. Pickens v. Roy, (1902) 187 U. S. 177, 23 S. Ct. 78, 47 U. S. (L. ed.) 128, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 47. See also National Bank of Republic v. Hobbs, (S. D. Ga. 1901) 118 Fed. 626, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 190.

Proceeding commenced prior to enactment of bankruptcy law.—A court of bankruptcy is without jurisdiction to enjoin further proceedings, under the judgment of a state court, in a judgment creditor's action commenced before the passage of the Bankruptcy Act. Rep. 36.
Suit to determine ownership of property not claimed by bankrupt's estate. — A court of bankruptcy is without authority to enjoin a suit in a state court to recover property from one claiming to have purchased the same from a bankrupt's trustee, where such property was not claimed nor scheduled by the bankrupt, nor in fact sold by the trustee, and the bankruptcy court, therefore, never had any jurisdiction over it or to determine its ownership. In re Bluestone, (N. D. W. Va. 1909) 174 Fed. 53, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 264.

VI. STAY FOR PROTECTION OF ASSETS.

As a general rule a court of bankruptcy will grant an injunction to restrain the disposition of, or interference with, the assets of the bankrupt estate; and, for a like purpose, proceedings pending in other courts may be stayed. Disposal of property conveyed in fraud of creditors may be stayed. — Where an insolvent debtor, who has conveyed all his property to a trustee, with directions to sell the same and distribute the proceeds to the creditors of the grantor, is adjudged bankrupt in involuntary proceedings, on the ground that such conveyance was intended to delay and defraud creditors, the court of bankruptey, pending the appointment of a trustee, may enjoin the trustee under the deed from disposing of the property, or exercising any of the powers given him by the deed except to hold possession of the property and preserve it. Rumsey, etc., Co. v. Novelty, etc., Mfg. Co., (E. D. Mo. 1899) 99 Fed. 699, 3 Am.

Rep. 474.

Foreclosure stayed. — Where a creditor, claiming a mechanic's lien on property of the bankrupt over which the court of bankruptcy has acquired jurisdiction, brings an action in a state court for the foreclosure of such lien without leave of the bankruptcy court, it is an unwarrantable interference with the assets of the estate in the custody of the latter court, and the further prosecution of such action will be stayed. In re Emslie, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1900) 102 Fed. 291, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126.

A preferential mortgagee may be enjoined from selling or otherwise disposing of the property pending the adjudication in bankruptcy; and it is immaterial that the mortgage was given to secure a debt contracted in good faith before the passage of the Bankruptcy Act. In re Nathan, (D. C. Nev.

Bankrupt's landlord restrained from interfering with leased premises.—A court of bankruptcy has power to restrain a landlord from interfering with the possession, by a trustee, of a store occupied by the bankrupt under an unexpired lease, and which contains a valuable stock of goods, until the trustee has had a reasonable time to dispose of the same, where they cannot be removed without serious loss to the estate, on the giving of a bond to protect the landlord from loss. In re Schwartzman, (D. C. S. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 399, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 885. See also In re Lines, (M. D. Pa. 1903) 133 Fed. 803, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 318.

In In re Kimmel, (E. D. Pa. 1910) 183 Fed. 665, it appeared that the bankrupt was a lessee for a term of five years, and that his trustee received an offer for the unexpired term, and the good will of the business, together with certain personal property, and that the referee ordered the acceptance of such offer; and it was held that, pending the offer and its acceptance, dispossession proceedings, instituted by the landlord in a state court, might be restrained.

And where a receiver was appointed to take charge of the assets, and prior to his qualification the bankrupt's lessors instituted summary proceedings in the state court to recover the leased premises which contained such assets, but no possession had been obtained prior to the qualification of the receiver, it was held that the receiver was entitled to an injunction restraining the summary proceedings. In re Kleinhaus, (W. D. N. Y. 1902) 113 Fed. 107, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 604.

VII. STAY IN OTHER CASES.

Stay in aid of jurisdiction. — In many instances the granting of a stay of proceedings, instituted in another court, has been deemed to be necessary for the protection of the bankruptcy proceedings and in order to give effect to the statute; and where this element appears a stay will be allowed. Lea v. George M. West Co., (E. D. Va. 1899) 91 Fed. 237, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 261; In re Basch, (S. D. N. Y. 1899) 97 Fed. 761, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 235; In re Emslie, (C. C. action of replevin was begun.

Stay of proceedings annulled by adjudication.—A court of bankruptcy will stay, on request, all further action in the state courts on such proceedings as are annulled under the provisions of subdivisions c or f of section 67. Stay of action directed against exempt property. — Where a creditor of a bankrupt holds a written waiver of exemptions, which is permitted by the law of the state, the court of bankruptcy should not, on application of the bankrupt, enjoin him from prosecuting an attachment suit in a state court against property claimed by the bankrupt as exempt, at least not longer than until the property shall have been set aside as exempt by the trustee, the validity of the waiver being a matter immaterial to the court of bankruptcy, and one for the state court to determine. Stay of suits brought against officers. -Where a receiver in bankruptcy acts as an officer of the court in the administration of the estate, the bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to determine the validity of his acts, even to the extent of preventing an action at law by one who is raising no question and relying on no right which is not within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court in the bankruptcy proceeding, the parties being the same; but such court has no jurisdiction to prevent the maintenance of an action against the receiver to enforce a liability in personam against him for acts done beyond the scope against nim for acts done beyond the scope of his authority. In re Spechler, (E. D. N. Y. 1911) 185 Fed. 311. And see to the same effect In re Kanter, (C. C. A. 2d Cir. 1903) 121 Fed. 984, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372. See also In re Russell, (C. C. Stay to prevent bankrupt's arrest. — It is the duty of the judge or referee, charged with the administration of the bankruptcy law, to stay proceedings in a state court which will, or may, result in the arrest and imprison-ment of the bankrupt during the pendency of proceedings in which he is the bankrupt; and this is true even though such arrest and imprisonment might be a contempt of court, and the bankrupt still have the right to a discharge from custody through habeas corpus. In re Grist, (N. D. N. Y. 1898) 1
Am. Bankr. Rep. 89. And see the annotation

VIII. VACATING STAY.

When stay will be vacated. - A stay order restraining the prosecution of an action against a bankrupt, entered under section 11a, is in its nature temporary only, and should ordinarily be vacated as a matter of course, on application of the creditor, after the bankrupt has been discharged. In ro Rosenthal,

(S. D. N. Y. 1901) 108 Fed. 368, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 799.

By the terms of the statute the stay is granted only for the time during which the question of discharge may be open and pending. If a discharge is denied, or the time for asking one is allowed to expire without making the application therefor, there is no occasion for a stay. If the discharge is occasion for a stay. If the discharge is granted, the right of action is brought under its effect and the bankrupt is entitled to its protection by proper legal remedies. The vacation of the stay, however, should be made without prejudice to the rights of the bankrupt under the discharge. In re Flanders, (D. C. Vt. 1903) 121 Fed. 936, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 379.

Vacation as to persons not within jurisdiction. — A motion to vacate a stay will be granted in so far as the stay applies to persons outside of the territorial jurisdiction of the court, and not personally subject to its orders within the jurisdiction. In re Isaac Harris Co., (E. D. N. Y. 1909) 173 Fed. 735, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 237.

Vacation to permit sale of property. -Where a bankrupt owned a remainder interest in certain real property in the hands of trustees subject to a valid judgment lien on the bankrupt's interest, and it did not appear that the trustee could obtain a sufficient amount for the bankrupt's rights in the estate in the remainder to justify a direction that the trustee attempt to sell such rights and pay off the undisputed lien of the judgment creditor, a stay precluding the creditor from proceeding to enforce the judgment against such remainder will be vacated, subject to the right of the trustee to join in any proceeding taken by the creditor, or to protect any equity which might arise. I Arden, (E. D. N. Y. 1911) 188 Fed. 475. In re

Vacation to permit proceedings for contempt. — A stay of proceedings against the bankrupt in the state court will be vacated so as to permit creditors to move the state court to punish the bankrupt for contempt committed prior to the filing of the bankruptcy petition. In re Sims, (S. b [Appearance of trustee.] The court may order the trustee to enter his appearance and defend any pending suit against the bankrupt. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 549.7

Intervention by trustee may be allowed. -Under the express terms of section 11b, the court may order the trustee to enter his apcourt may order the trustee to enter his appearance and defend any suit pending against the bankrupt. Allowance discretionary. - Suits begun against a bankrupt before the latter's bankruptcy may be defended or stayed, in the discretion of the bankruptcy court, according as the interests of the bankrupt's creditors shall require. In re St. Albans Foundry Co., (D. C. Vt. 1900) 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594. See also Victor Talking Mach. Co. v. Hawthorne, etc., Mfg. Co., (E. D. Pa. 1909) 173 Fed. 617, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 234.

Intervention in attachment suits. - Where creditors of an insolvent debtor sue out attachments on his property in a state court. and cause the same to be sold thereunder and the proceeds paid into court, and within four months thereafter he is adjudged bankrupt on a petition alleging such attachments to be preferential and to constitute acts of bankruptcy, an intervening petition aled by the trustee in bankruptcy in the state court should be limited to a demand for the proceeds of sale remaining in court. Bear v. Chase, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1900) 99 Fed. 920.

3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746.

The fact that a warrant of attachment has been levied upon the property of the bankrupt does not authorize the trustee in bankruptcy to intervene, in the action in which attachment issued, for the purpose of obtaining possession of the attached property. Jewett v. Huffman, (1905) 13 Am. Bankr. Rep.

738, 14 N. D. 110, 103 N. W. 408.

An order of the bankruptcy court, permitting intervention, but leaving the question of the effect and validity of the attachments to be determined in the state court, is erroneous. Bear v. Chase, (C. C. A. 4th Cir. 1900) 99 Fed. 920, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746.

Intervention to protect assets. - Where, at the time of an adjudication in bankruptcy, property of the bankrupt is in the hands of a receiver appointed by a state court in a suit brought against the bankrupt by a judgment creditor, the trustee in bankruptcy, when appointed, should intervene in such suit in the state court, by petition, for the protection of the interests of the general creditors of the estate. In re Klein, (N. D. Ill. 1899) 97 Fed. 31, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 174.

Intervention does not oust jurisdiction of state court. — A trustee in bankruptcy by intervening in an action to enforce a specific lien upon an insolvent, pending in a state court, cannot thereby oust the jurisdiction of the court. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Morgan Jewelry Co., (1904) 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 781, 123 Ia. 432, 99 N. W. 121.

Effect of state statutes and rules of practice on intervention. - The bankruptcy law, however mandatory it may be, does not control the practice in state courts, and was not intended to do so. If an order be made, under section 11b, commanding the trustee to intervene in a state court in an action to which the bankrupt is a party, the trustee performs his full duty when he makes a proper application to such state court to be let into the action therein pending. In disposing of such an application the state statutes and rules of practice must necessarily govern the same as when any other party invokes the court's jurisdiction. Bank of Commerce v. Elliott, (Wis. 1901) 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409, following National Distilling Co. v. Seidel, (1899) 103 Wis. 489, 79 N. W.

The judgment of the state court is conclusive on the trustee, where he has intervened in a suit pending therein by permission of the court of bankruptcy, even though he was not a necessary party to the suit. Linstroth Wagon Co. v. Ballew, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1907) 149 Fed. 960, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 23. See also In re Skinner, (N. D. In. 1899) 97 Fed. 190, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 163; In re Van Alstyne, (N. D. Rep. 781, 123 Ia. 432, 99 N. W. 121.

Plaintiff may make trustee party defendant.— Where, pending a suit in equity for infringement of a patent against a corporation, the defendant is adjudged a bankrupt, the complainant is entitled to file a supplemental bill, making its trustee a party defendant, that he may be bound by a decree, so far as that result may properly follow, whether or not he will make a defense being a matter to be determined by him and the bankruptcy court. Victor Talking Mach. Co. v. Hawthorne, etc., Mfg. Co., (E. D. Pa. 1909) 173 Fed. 617, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 234.

c [Prosecution of suit by trustee.] A trustee may, with the approval of the court, be permitted to prosecute as trustee any suit commenced by the bankrupt prior to the adjudication, with like force and effect as though it had been commenced by him. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 549.]

Prosecution of suit by trustee. - A trustee in bankruptcy may, with the approval of the court, be permitted to prosecute any suit commenced by the bankrupt prior to the adjudication, with the same force and effect as though such action had been instituted by though such action had been instituted by the trustee. Approval of bankruptcy court essential. -It is improper for the state court to permit the substitution of the trustee in bankruptcy as plaintiff in an action begun by the bankrupt therein, prior to adjudication, unless the consent of the federal court thereto is first obtained and affirmatively shown. Prosecution must be beneficial. - Section 11 relates only to actions in which the estate of the bankrupt has an interest, and which may be prosecuted by the trustee for the benefit of the creditors. In re Haensell, (N. D. Cal. 1899) 91 Fed. 355, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep.

Failure of trustee to intervene does not abate action against bankrupt. - If no trustee is appointed, or if the bankruptcy court does not consider it to the interest of the estate to permit the trustee to prosecute a suit previously brought by the bankrupt, the action does not thereby abate, nor is the bankrupt's debtor discharged from liability in the pending action. Griffin v. Mutual L. Ins. Co.,

Costs. - The trustee will not be held liable for costs in an action wherein he has not intervened, and in the prosecution of which he has taken no part. Kessler v. Herklotz, (N. Y. 1909) 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 257.

d [Time for bringing suit against trustee.] Suits shall not be brought by or against a trustee of a bankrupt estate subsequent to two years after the estate has been closed. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 549.]

Time within which trustee may sue. - A trustee in bankruptcy may maintain an action to set aside a conveyance made by the bankrupt at any time within two years after the estate is closed, provided the action was not barred by the state law at the time the petition in bankruptcy was filed. Sheldon v. Parker, (1902) 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 152, 66 Neb. 610, 92 N. W. 923.

Leave to sue trustee unnecessary. - A trustee in bankruptcy may be sued without first obtaining leave from the bankruptcy court. In re Smith, (S. D. N. Y. 1903) 121 Fed.

Suits against bankrupt and receiver unauthorized. - Section 11 clearly indicates that suits against a bankrupt and the receivers are not to be authorized by the court in any event, and not against any one prior to the appointment of a trustee who is to represent the creditors. Costs. -- A court of bankruptcy cannot, by a summary order, require a trustee to pay a judgment for costs rendered against him in another jurisdiction, where there are no funds of the estate in his hands. In re Howard, (N. D. Cal. 1904) 130 Fed. 1004, 12 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 462.

Sec. 12. Compositions, when Confirmed. — a [When offer may be made.] A bankrupt may offer, either before or after adjudication, terms of composition to his creditors after, but not before, he has been examined in open court or at a meeting of his creditors, and has filed in court the schedule of his property and the list of his creditors required to be filed by bankrupts. In compositions before adjudication the bankrupt shall file the required schedules, and thereupon the court shall call a meeting of creditors for the allowance of claims, examination of the bankrupt, and preservation or conduct of estates, at which meeting the judge or referee shall preside; and action upon the petition for adjudication shall be delayed until it shall be determined whether such composition shall be confirmed. [(Amended 1910) 36 Stat. L. 839.]

Construction of section 12. — The provisions of the Bankruptcy Act prescribing the requisites of a composition with creditors are to be strictly construed as against those who seek by this means to deprive nonassenting ereditors of their right to have the debtor's property administered upon and distributed in the ordinary course of bankruptcy proceedings. In re Rider, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 808, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178; In re Frear, (N. D. N. Y. 1903) 120 Fed. 978, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100 Bankr. Rep. 199.

Offer of composition. - Prior to the amendment of 1910 it was held that a composition could not be offered before the adjudication; but that amendment provides for the offer of a composition either before or after adjudication. The offer must be made after, and not before, the bankrupt has been examined in open court or at a meeting of his creditors, and after he has filed in court the schedule of his property and a list of creditors required to be filed by bankrupts. See the fol-lowing cases which were decided prior to the enactment of the 1910 amendment. In re Rider, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 808, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178; In re Hilborn, (S. D. N. To whom composition must be offered. -A composition, to be valid, must have been offered by the bankrupt to all of his general creditors, whether or not they have proved their debts at the time of the offer; and all must have a reasonable opportunity to consider it. In re Rider, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 808, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178.

The examination of the bankrupt referred to in section 12a is not an examination of the bankrupt as a witness on the issues of insolvency and the commission of acts of bankruptcy charged, but the examination to which the bankrupt is required to submit by section 7a (9). In re Back Bay Automobile Co., (D. C. Mass. 1907) 158 Fed. 679, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835, reversing 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 33.

Necessity of calling special meeting. — The calling of a special meeting of creditors to receive an offer of composition is not required; and a submission of an offer of composition to the creditors at their first meeting, after an examination of the bankrupt, is competent and sufficient. In re Hilborn, (S. D. N. Y. 1900) 104 Fed. 866, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 741.

But where composition is offered before adjudication, it will be observed that the statute provides for the calling of a special meeting.

b [Application for confirming.] An application for the confirmation of a composition may be filed in the court of bankruptcy after, but not before, it has been accepted in writing by a majority in number of all creditors whose claims have been allowed, which number must represent a majority in amount of such claims, and the consideration to be paid by the bankrupt to his creditors, and the money necessary to pay all debts which have priority and the cost of the proceedings, have been deposited in such place as shall be designated by and subject to the order of the judge. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 549.]

Presenting application for confirmation.—
The provision that an application for the confirmation of a composition may be filed in the court of bankruptcy, after the consideration and the cost of the proceedings have been deposited in a place designated by, and subject to the order of, the judge, requires those matters to be presented to the judge rather than the referee. In re Bloodworth-Stembridge Co., (S. D. Ga. 1910) 178 Fed. 372

Acceptance by majority.—Before an application for the confirmation of a composition may be filed, it is necessary that the terms of such composition shall have been accepted in writing by a majority in number of all creditors whose claims have been allowed; and such majority must represent, also, a majority in amount of such claims. In re Rider, (N. D. N. Y. 1899) 96 Fed. 808, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178; In re Messengill, (E. D. N. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 366, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669; In re Harvey, (E. D. Pa. 1906) 144 Fed. 901, 16 Am. The procedure in compositions requires the bankrupt to make an offer of specific terms upon which he shall have back his estate. He must get the consent of one-half of his creditors who have filed claims, and deposit enough money to pay all of them who have been scheduled or filed claims up to that time. Then he may file a petition and compel the remainder to accept the terms induce the court so to order. In re Ennis, (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 183 Fed. 859.

Assignee of several claims counted as one ereditor. — In determining whether a majority have accepted an offer of composition an assignee of a large number of claims should be counted as one creditor only, and not as the number of creditors who have assigned claims to him. In re Messengill, (E. D. N. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 366, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669.

A composition of a bankrupt partner of a bankrupt firm, individually, without the consent of a majority in number and amount of his individual creditors, cannot be effected by the consent of the firm creditors, though the consenting majority be more than a majority of the number and amount of all creditors. In re Ullman, (S. D. N. Y. 1910) 180 Fed. 944.

Withdrawing acceptance.—Creditors of a bankrupt, who have signed an acceptance of an offer of composition and invoked the action of the court thereon, will not be permitted to withdraw their signatures, where it is not alleged that they were procured by fraud or misrepresentation. In re Levy, (W. D. Pa. 1901) 110 Fed. 744, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 299.

Deposit. — The consideration to be paid by the bankrupt to his creditors, and the money necessary to pay all debts which have priority under section 64, and the costs of the proceeding, must be deposited in such place as shall have been designated by, and is subject to, the order of the judge, before the application for the confirmation of a composition is filed. Taxes must be provided for. — The deposit required on the making of a composition must provide for the payment of taxes, which by section 64a are made a preferred claim against the bankrupt's assets. In re Flynn, (D. C. Mass. 1905) 134 Fed. 145, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 720.

Recured claims. — The bankrupt is not required to deposit sufficient to secure a percentage on secured claims, nor for any supposed deficiency, if it has not yet been ascertained and filed. In re Harvey, (E. D. Pa. 1906) 144 Fed. 901, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345.

The intention in the enactment of section 12b was to authorize a majority in numbers and amounts of all creditors, whose claims have been allowed, to pass upon the question of the acceptance of a composition; but after that has been determined, then this section requires the bankrupt to deposit a sufficient sum to cover the percentage offered in the compromise of all the scheduled claims of creditors, and any unscheduled claims which have been presented and allowed before confirmation, because these scheduled claims are undoubtedly provable claims and discharged by a confirmation of a composition by sec-tion 14c (Glover Grocery Co. v. Dorne, (1902) 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 702, 116 Ga. 216, 42 S. E. 347), and unless there is a deposit sufficient to cover them the claimant is without a remedy. As to all unsecured and unscheduled claims provision is made for these by section 17a (3) in that they are not discharged by the confirmation of a composition if they have not been duly scheduled in time for proof and allowance, and the creditor has had no notice or actual knowledge of the proceeding in bankruptcy. So that as to these claims the creditor is protected, and after a composition has been effected and the bankrupt discharged, such a creditor could recover on his claim against such property as the bankrupt might own when suit is brought, at least so much as he paid his other creditors who participated in the composition. But as to a creditor whose claim has been duly scheduled in time for proof and allowance, it seems that he must be protected by a deposit of a sufficient percentage to cover his claim, whether it has been proven or not. There is no hardship in this on the bankrupt, because he knows what debts he owes, and it is presumed he will not schedule more debts, or debts for larger amounts, than he actually owes, and when they are so scheduled by him, and he offers a compromise, he should deposit sufficient to cover all scheduled debts without regard to whether they have been proven ont. Per Holland, D. J., in In re Harvey. (E. D. Pa. 1906) 144 Fed. 901, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345.

Bankr. Rep. 345.
Costs.—"Composition is wholly a matter of arrangement by the bankrupt and his creditors, and the negotiations always should comprehend a disposition of all the costs, with a definite understanding of amounts and the method of their payment. If there be an attorney's fee not waived the attorney should agree with the parties on the amount, or, if disagreed, application should be made to the court to fix the fee, and so of the receiver or the trustee; and with every item not distinctly fixed by the statutes or rules of practice, this should be done, as a preliminary of the composition agreement, and as a part of When the amounts are ascertained, the parties should agree whether the costs come out of the deposit for creditors, or whether the bankrupt provides an additional sum to meet costs. If he is to do this, he should bring the cost money with the other, to be deposited in court. It is all, however, purely a matter of agreement by negotiation, and the court will take no part in it by compell-ing either to do anything about it. It is a mistake to suppose that the statute requires the bankrupt, as a matter of law, to pay the costs in addition to what he agrees to pay the creditors. He is not obliged to pay the creditors anything whatever, nor the costs, and unless all the elements of the composition are mutually settled by the agreement they make, the technical and logical result is that the composition fails, or rather the attempt at composition fails, and the ordinary adminis-tration of the assets goes on as if there had been no attempt to compound the debts. The costs then come out of the assets, and practically out of the creditors, always being paid out of whatever fund is in court, unless otherwise agreed upon and provided for by the parties. Hence, the payment of the costs by the bankrupt under composition is in a proper sense voluntary." Per Hammond, J., in Inre Harris, (W. D. Tenn. 1902) 117 Fed. 575, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 20.

Attorney fees. — Where a composition offered by a bankrupt, which includes the payment of all costs, is confirmed after opposition, the bankrupt's attorney will not be allowed fees from the estate for his services in securing the confirmation. c [Date and place of hearing.] A date and place, with reference to the convenience of the parties in interest, shall be fixed for the hearing upon each application for the confirmation of a composition, and such objections as may be made to its confirmation. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 550.]

Specifications in opposition to the confirmation of a bankrupt's composition with creditors must be similar to specifications in opposition to a discharge. Dallas City Nat. Bank v. Doolittle, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1901) 107 Fed. 236, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 736; Adler

v. Jones, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 967, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245. And see the annotation under section 14b, infra, p. 549, as to specifications of objection to a discharge.

Necessity of entering appearance and filing objections. — Where the requisite proportion of the creditors of a bankrupt have executed the composition agreement, opposing creditors should be required to enter their appearance and file specifications in writing of the grounds of opposition. Adler v. Jones, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 967, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245.

Hearing.— The judge must fix a date for the hearing; that is, a hearing before him. In re Bloodworth-Stembridge Co., (S. D. Ga. 1910) 178 Fed. 372, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 156. See also Adler v. Jones, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 967, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245.

But proposed composition may be referred to ascertain whether there are grounds for believing that the objections are well founded, and what grounds there are for believing that the composition offered will be for the best interests of the creditors. In re Levy, (D. C. Mass. 1908) 172 Fed. 780, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769. See also Adler v. Jones, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 967, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245.

The proper practice is for a referee, when requested in accordance with a rule of court, to appoint a day for bringing the composition before the court, and to issue the required notices to creditors, suggesting in his report any legal questions arising upon the composition papers. Notice of hearing. — Creditors are entitled to at least ten days' notice by mail to their respective addresses of all hearings of applications for the confirmation of a composition. See section 58a (2).

Where an unscheduled creditor acquires notice or actual knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings, after the bankrupt's application for the confirmation of the composition, but before the final order of confirmation, such creditor is not bound by the composition. Where, after the appointment of a trustee for a bankrupt firm, an assignee of the firm's assets was ordered to deliver such assets to the trustee, the latter to hold the assignee harmless from any claims against the assignee with reference to any money or property transferred to the trustee, and he, with notice of the petitioner's claim, before the confirmation of a composition, proceeded therewith without notice to the petitioner and distributed the proceeds, it was held that the trustee was either guilty of negligence, or of a conscious effort to cut the petitioner off from any recourse to the fund; and, the petitioner having recovered judgment in a state court in an action in which the trustee was a party, the trustee was bound thereby, and was liable for the amount of the judgment. - d [When judge shall confirm.] The judge shall confirm a composition if satisfied that
- (1) [Best interests of creditors.] it is for the best interests of the creditors; [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 550.]

Creditors' interests prevail. — The court will not confirm a composition unless it is satisfied that it is for the best interests of the creditors. Adler v. Jones, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 967, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245; In re H. J. Arrington Co., (E. D. Va. 1902) 113 Fed. 498, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64; In re Waynesboro Drug Co., (S. D. Ga. 1907) 157 Fed. 101, 19 Am. Bankr. Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1902) 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206.

It is for the court to determine whether nonassenting creditors have met the burden of showing that the offer of composition is inadequate, and that a substantially larger sum may reasonably be expected to result from the administration of the assets under the regular course of bankruptcy proceedings. In re Hoxie, (D. C. Me. 1910) 180 Fed. 508.

The determination of the question whether a proposed composition is for the best interest of creditors depends on whether they would receive more or less under the composition than might reasonably be expected by the administration of the assets of the bankrupt in due course. Adler v. Jones, (C. C. A. 6th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed. 967, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245.

The court will doubtless be influenced by the consideration that a man can ordinarily do better with his own property, and realize more therefrom, than can be obtained in course of judicial proceedings, with compulsory sales and expenses of administration. In re H. J. Arrington Co., (E. D. Va. 1902) 113 Fed. 498, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64.

A composition should be confirmed upon the recommendation of the referee showing that there is no probability of the estates paying over ten per cent. more than has been offered as being for the best interests of the creditors. In re H. J. Arrington Co., (E. D. Va. 1902) 113 Fed. 498, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64.

The decision of the creditors is prima facie evidence that the composition is for their best interest; and the burden rests upon objecting creditors to show such gross discrepancy between the offer and the amount to be reasonably expected from a sale of the assets as to justify a refusal to confirm. In re Waynesboro Drug Co., (S. D. Ga. 1907)

But the assent of creditors does not relieve the court from passing on the question whether the composition is for the best interests of all the creditors. This question is addressed to the judicial discretion of the court, and from its conclusion either party may appeal. In re Hoxie, (D. C. Me. 1910) 180 Fed. 508.

When composition will not be confirmed. -If the court is satisfied upon the hearing that the composition offered would be considerably less than the creditors might reasonably expect to realize in the administra-tion of the assets in due course, then the composition is not for the best interest of the creditors, and will not be confirmed. In re H. J. Arrington Co., (E. D. Va. 1902) 113 Fed. 498, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64, following Adler v. Jones, (6th Cir. 1901) 109 Fed.

967, 48 C. C. A. 761, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245. The court cannot arbitrarily order that any creditor who objects shall receive twentyfive per cent. of his claim, when it is not apparent that upon a formal liquidation he will not receive a larger amount. Nor can any bankruptcy court compel a creditor to consent to have all the bankrupt estate transferred to a corporation, and accept in settlement of his claim the obligations of the new corporation, payable at a future date. In re J. B. & J. M. Cornell Co., (S. D. N. Y. 1911) 186 Fed. 859.

The court will disapprove of a compromise which is not in consonance with principles of public policy and mercantile integrity. Riley v. Pope, (S. D. Ga. 1911) 186 Fed. 857.

(2) [Acts which would bar discharge.] the bankrupt has not been guilty of any of the acts or failed to perform any of the duties which would be a bar to his discharge; and [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 550.]

Where discharge is barred. - In accordance with the requirements of section 12d (2), the court will not confirm a composition where it has been made to appear that the bankrupt has been guilty of any of the acts, or failed to perform any of the duties, which will bar his discharge. In re Wilson, (E. D. Pa. 1901) 107 Fed. 83, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 849; In re Godwin, (E. D. Pa. 1903) 122 Fed. 111, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252; In re Olman, (S. D. Ohio 1902) 134 Fed. 681, 13 Am. Bankr. As to what will bar a discharge, see the several subdivisions of section 14b and sec-

Thus it has been held that if the bankrupt has been guilty of any of the acts which would be a bar to a discharge, the court is without power to confirm a composition, even if satisfied that it would be for the best inin satisfied that it would be for the best interests of the creditors to do so. In re Comstock, (D. C. R. I. 1907) 154 Fed. 747, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 65. See also In re Godwin, (D. C. Pa. 1903) 122 Fed. 111, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252; In re Griffin, (N. D. And in such case the fact that only one creditor is actively objecting, while a large majority is in favor of taking what the bankrupt offers, is of no importance. In Griffin, (N. D. Ga. 1910) 180 Fed. 792.

The fact that an objecting creditor purchased his claim for the purpose of forcing a settlement in a suit brought by the trustee, by the threats of opposition to the confirmation of a composition, is immaterial, where it is shown that the bankrupt has committed any of the acts which would bar his discharge. In re Comstock, (D. C. R. I. 1907) 154 Fed. 747, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 65.

Elements to bar discharge must be present. - It is necessary that the elements essential in order to bar a discharge be equally present in order to be effective as against the con-firmation of a composition; thus, where it is charged that the bankrupt made a false statement, it will not justify the court in refusing to confirm a composition agreement, was materially false or made for the purpose of obtaining credit. In re Seligman, (E. D. N. Y. 1908) 163 Fed. 549, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 774. where it does not appear that the statement

So, also, where the failure to keep books, from which the bankrupt's financial condition might be ascertained, was urged in opposi-tion to the confirmation of a composition, it was held that where the failure to keep such books was not shown to have been with a fraudulent intent, it was insufficient to prevent the confirmation of a composition. (3) Good faith. the offer and its acceptance are in good faith and have not been made or procured except as herein provided, or by any means, promises, or acts herein forbidden. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 550.]

Good faith and compliance with statute required. - The court will refuse to confirm a composition where the offer, and its accept-ance, are not made in good faith; or where they have been procured by means or promises forbidden by the statute, or in any other manner excepting as provided by the statute.

e [Distribution of consideration — administration when no confirmance.] Upon the confirmation of a composition, the consideration shall be distributed as the judge shall direct, and the case dismissed. Whenever a composition is not confirmed, the estate shall be administered in bankruptcy as herein provided. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 550.]

Effect of confirmation. — The confirmation of a composition has precisely the same effect as the granting of a discharge in bankruptcy. And, as a discharge, it may be pleaded in bar in a subsequent suit against the bankrupt, wherein it is sought to recover debts which were released thereby. In re Rider, (N. D. N. Dismissal on confirmation. - Section 12e does not mean that after confirming a composition the court has lost all further power over the case except to distribute the consideration. The case is to be dismissed; but "dismissed" in this connection can mean no more than that the court is not to proceed further with its administration of the estate under the Bankrupcy Act. It does not mean that there is to be no longer any case before the court, as if the petition of the proceedings had been dismissed under sections 3c, 18d, 18e, 58a (8), 59d, or 59g. Since the consideration must in every case remain to be distributed, and since compositions are not infrequently confirmed within the year allowed for proving claims, the court must retain jurisdiction for these purposes at least. Immediate dismissal is neither directed nor intended. U. S. v. Sondheim, (D. C. Mass. 1910) 188 Fed. 378.

Distribution — Creditors only entitled to percentage agreed upon — In a composition the creditor gets, not his share of the bankrupt's estate, but what he bargained for, and he has no right to claim more. If he does not enforce his bargain, his failure should inure to the bankrupt's benefit, not to the benefit of another creditor. In ro Lane, (D. C. Mass. 1902) 125 Fed. 772, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137.

Claims not scheduled or filed. — The court has no power to require the bankrupt to pay the composition to a creditor whose claim was not scheduled or filed; his only remedy being to procure the setting aside of the composition for fraud. Sec. 13. Compositions, when Set Aside. — a [When fraud practiced.] The judge may, upon the application of parties in interest filed at any time within six months after a composition has been confirmed, set the same aside and reinstate the case if it shall be made to appear upon a trial that fraud was practiced in the procuring of such composition, and that the knowledge thereof has come to the petitioners since the confirmation of such composition. [(1898) 30 Stat. L. 550.]

Section 13 defines exclusively the ground upon which a composition may be vacated, and operates as a limitation upon the general grant of authority in section 2 (9), which gives to the courts of bankruptcy jurisdiction to set aside compositions and reinstate the cases. Secret agreement for more than pro rata share. — A secret arrangement, by which a creditor who joins with others in a composition receives the note of a third person from the debtor for a substantial amount to apply on his claim, and the same percentage as other creditors on the remainder, is fraudulent in law, whether the note was given to induce him to become a party to the composition, or, under the circumstances, in consideration of his advancing money to enable the debtor to make the payments. Batchelder, etc., Co. r. Whitmore, (C. C. A. 1st Cir. 1903) 122 Fed. 355, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641.

But a motion to set aside a composition should be denied, notwithstanding the fact that it is shown that some creditors fraudulently obtained notes for more than the pro rata share of their debts, where the applicant for the order also obtained a preference, and. because of the fact that the bankrupt was unable to pay the composition notes, new proceedings in bankruptcy have been instituted against him, in which the innocent creditors can be best protected by the disallowance of the fraudulent claims. Sacharoff, (E. D. N. Y. 1908) 163 Fed. 664, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 814.

Making false schedule. — That a bankrupt made a false schedule, or a false oath to his schedule, constitutes ground for setting aside a composition for fraud, if not known to the petitioning creditor until after the confirma-tion, notwithstanding the fact that the order confirming the composition recites that it appears that the bankrupt has not been guilty of any acts which would be a bar to his dis-charge, and that the offer and its acceptance are in good faith, and have not been made or procured by means contrary to the Acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy. In re Roukous, (D. C. R. I. 1904) 128 Fed. 645, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 128.

The fact that a bankrupt has failed to fulfil a composition agreement affords no ground for setting aside the composition, whatever its effect may be on the operation of the composition as a discharge. In re Eisenberg, (S. D. N. Y. 1906) 148 Fed. 325, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 776.

Petition to set aside composition - Allegation as to petitioner's knowledge. - A petition to set aside a composition filed within the six months allowed therefor, and which alleges that the fraud charged was not known to the petitioner until after the confirmation, is sufficient, and need not allege the time or manner in which the petitioner's knowledge was acquired. In're Roukous, (D. C. R. I. 1904) 128 Fed. 645, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 128.

A discharge is not an absolute right existing at the time of filing the petition in bankruptcy. Extension must be applied for within the six months period. — In express terms the discretion of the judge is limited to the six months following the expiration of the year beginning with the date of the adjudication; and this is a limitation on the jurisdiction of the judge over the matter of discharge. The power and right to grant a discharge effectual to bar the enforcement of debts is conferred by the statute, and is governed by the limitations found in the statute; and therefore, unless it is petitioned for within the time limit fixed by section 14 of the Act. the court of bankruptcy is without the power and jurisdiction to grant a discharge. If the court, yielding to equitable considerations. should grant a discharge in form to the bank-rupt, its validity could be impeached before any court wherein it might be pleaded as a bar to a claim, on the ground of want of jurisdiction to entertain the petition for discharge; the record showing on its face that the petition was not filed within eighteen months of the date of the adjudication. In re Fahy, (N. D. Ia. 1902) 116 Fed. 239, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 354.

Inquiry whether a bankrupt was unavoidably prevented from applying for a discharge within the year should be had within the additional six months period during which filing may be allowed on such showing. Chase, (D. C. Mass. 1910) 186 Fed. 408.

Application for extension must be sustained by proof. — A petition filed by a bankrupt asking an extension of time for filing an application for discharge on the ground that he was unavoidably prevented from filing it within the year allowed therefor is not evidence of the facts therein alleged; and, on a reference of such petition, they must be sustained by proof, although no formal answers may be filed thereto. Failure to apply because of previous discharge. - In In re Vaine, (N. D. N. Y. 1911) 186 Fed. 535, it appears that a bankrupt was adjudicated within six years of his former voluntary bankruptcy proceedings, and that he requested an extension of six months' time within which to file his application for discharge in the second proceeding, on the ground that he was unavoidably prevented from making such application within the twelve months period because, if the applica: tion were made within that period, it would be within six years of his former discharge. In disposing of this contention the court said: "Section 14b (5) was intended to prevent the filing of voluntary petitions in bankruptcy by the same person oftener than once in six years, and not merely to space discharges to the same person six years apart." And see the annotation under section 14b

Notice of application for extension. — An application by a bankrupt for an extension of time within which to file an application for discharge being addressed wholly to the dis-cretion of the judge, it is not necessary that notice thereof be given to all creditors; the notice of hearing required to be given by section 58a being sufficient. In re Fritz, (E. D. N. Y. 1909) 173 Fed. 560, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84; In re Chase, (D. C. Mass. 1910) 186 Fed. 408.

Effect of extending time. -- Where bankrupts have been allowed to file a petition for a discharge, notwithstanding more than a year has passed since the adjudication, the only question open thereafter is whether they are entitled to a discharge; and creditors seeking to oppose the discharge are confined to the statutory objections. In re Haynes, (M. D. Pa. 1903) 122 Fed. 560, 10 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 13.

Though the court entertains a petition for a bankrupt's discharge more than a year after the adjudication, on an insufficient showing, the remedy is by motion to vacate; and it is too late to contest the matter on the hearing of the petition. In re Haynes, (M.

D. Pa. 1903) 122 Fed. 560, 10 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 13.
Verification. — An application for a bank-rupt's discharge should be considered a pleading within section 18c; and, therefore, should be verified. In re Taylor, (N. D. Ala. 1911) 188 Fed. 479. And see to the same effect, In re Holman, (S. D. Ia. 1899) 92 Fed. 514; In re Brown, (C. C. A. 5th Cir. 1901) 112 Fed. 49, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252; In re Glass, (W. D. Tenn. 1902) 119 Fed. 509, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 394.

Filing. — An application for a bankrupt's discharge must be filed with the clerk of court, and not with the referee. In re Taylor, (N. D. Ala. 1911) 188 Fed. 479.

It is improper to mail the application for a discharge to the judge, instead of filing it with the clerk. In re Sykes, (W. D. Tenn.

But where an application for a bankrupt's discharge, though erroneously filed with the referee instead of the clerk, was, with the other proceedings thereon before the referee, filed with the clerk within a year after adjudication, and no objection had been taken by the objecting creditor to the improper original filing, it was held that the petition would be regarded as properly filed. In re Taylor, (N. D. Ala. 1911) 188 Fed. 479.

Under District Court rule 11 in bankruptcy, in the southern district of New York, which makes the office of the referee the office of the court, the filing of a petition for discharge with the referee is sufficient. In re Pincus, (S. D. N. Y. 1906) 147 Fed. 621, 17

b [Hearing application and granting discharge.] The judge shall hear the application for a discharge and such proofs and pleas as may be made in opposition thereto by the trustee or other parties in interest, at such time as will give the trustee or parties in interest a reasonable opportunity to be fully heard, and investigate the merits of the application and discharge the applicant unless he has  $\lceil (Amended 1910) 36 Stat. L. 839. \rceil$
